NOMINATIONS FOR THE MAYORALTY YESTERDAY.

Mr. W. F. Maclean Retires After the Other Candidates Agree Not to Block the Will of the People in Securing a Vote on the Sunday Car Question Next Summer.

At 9:55 a.m. yesterday City Clerk Bevis stalked into the Council Chamber followed by his faithful henchman, James Somers, carrying the ever-present statutes.

At 10 o'clock Mr. Bevis informed the few people present that he was ready to receive nominations of candidates for the mayoralty of Toronto for 1894.

Then the over-burdened taxpayers began to arrive by twos and threes, and as they entered formed in small groups and discussed civic affairs in whispers.

Among those present were: Messrs. George Faulkner, Frank Somers, N. L. Steiner, A. R. Williamson, Aid. Hallam, Aid. J. E. Verral, F. C. Cribben, J. B. Perry, W. F. Maclean, M.P., Michael Jasso, Frederick Kennedy, Rev. W. F. Wilson, R. W. Elliot, Thomas Mitchell, W. Adams, O. E. Sheppard, Dr. Tarrvin, James Kennedy, Thomas Hunter, Aid. Hewitt, Aid. Lamb, Doctors Barriok and McKewen and William Ince.

By the time the candidates commenced to speak the chamber and gallery were crowded.

At 10:45 Returning Officer Bevis in a warning voice said the time for receiving nominations was rapidly passing and would soon expire.

Then up spoke Mr. R. W. Elliot and nominated Mr. Warring Kennedy and Mr. William Ince as the candidates for the office.

Mr. Maclean made a short and pithy speech, in which he caught the audience's attention. There was a total absence of the old-time bitterness.

Mr. Maclean's speech was a model of brevity and force. He said he would be a candidate on one condition only.
