

The voluntary UN oil embargo, supported by various resolutions of the General Assembly (res. 41/35F, A/42/L.31) as well as, by the Commonwealth Accord, Nassau 1985

- restrictions on exports and imports of crude oil and related petroleum products.

The arms and oil embargoes will remain in effect until a new post-apartheid South African government is firmly established, with full democratic control and accountability or until the UN or the multi-party forum requests their removal.
