

To treat with foreign powers	PAGE . 425
The law of treason and state citizenship 425

CHAPTER XXVII.

THE PEOPLE OF EVERY AMERICAN COLONY DEMAND INDEPENDENCE.

June-July 1776.

American independence the choice of the whole people 426
Virginia becomes a republic 427
Connecticut, Delaware, New Hampshire 428
Massachusetts, The wise conduct of New York insures its unanimity 429
The British foment a deadly conspiracy against Washington 430
New Jersey frames its constitution and government 431
The counties of Pennsylvania frame a government 432
Questions of internal reform and of religious liberty 433
The constituent convention of the people of Maryland 434

CHAPTER XXVIII.

THE RESOLUTION AND THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

From the First to the Fourth of July 1776.

The members of congress of that day 435
The voices of the colonies 436
Speech of John Adams for independence 437
Reply of Dickinson 438
The committee of the whole house resolve on independence 440
The colonies without dissent resolve on independence 441
The enthusiasm of John Adams 441
Character of Thomas Jefferson 442
He drafts the declaration of independence 444
Criticisms on his paper 445
Principles of the declaration 446
The king has striven to govern the colonies absolutely 447
Parliament has enacted unconstitutional laws 448
The king has waged war against the colonies 449
The British people have been appealed to in vain 449
The colonies become free and independent states 450
The principles of the declaration addressed to all nations 450
Its relation to other forms of government 451
Why America became a republic 451
The declaration established a people and a government 452
The declaration not signed on the fourth 452
Why the fourth of July is the great anniversary 452