May Day Menaces.

While a good deal of our May Day agitation may be credited to the uninvestigated impulses of spring fever, there are occasionally developments of delirium that threaten the safety of society. We can tolerate a great deal of wild talk in view of the difficult conditions facing civilization, but loudly applauded speeches in the German language, like that delivered at the Labor Temple yesterday, do not commend the feverish symptoms of the May Day movement to the people of Canada generally.

There was some talk of socialism as

The Globe is wise enough to try and get away from these entanglements.

The St. Lawrence Water Powers.

Sir Adam Beck has raised a question of the vastest importance, not only to Ontario, but to Quebec and every other province in the Dominion. We in Ontario, however, are particularly and immediately concerned with the conservation of our water power. It is our sole means of generating sources in peat or timber that we possess. Coal as a source of power becomes more precarious and more expensive in Ontario yearly. For the future we shall have to rely on our water power to its ultimate degree

Sir Adam Beck speaks of the time when our population has doubled. It is from that point of view we must judge the disposition of our water powers at present. We are trustees for our children, and we must leave them in control of this master resource of their economic life.

Hence it is that the St. Lawrence vater powers assume so much importance, and Sir Adam Beck is so fully justified in accenting the importance of our control.

The Ontario government should summon all its energies to the protection of our provincial rights as Sir Adam has defined them.

Ottawa, May 1.—That hoary hoax, a "fall session," is again in circulation. We hear that if parliament will hurry up and go home there will be an extra session in October. The government would just as lief postpone a part of its legislative program to another session and may be anxious for an early prorogation, but if the parliamentarians once turn their backs on clawa, they may safely count on not being invited back until St. Valentine's Day or St. Patrick's Day, 1920. The subject of immigration is always important, but the immigration policy of the country will not be changed by the bill.
