The hitters on both sides went out with precision, Pitchers Flint and Downs receiving airtight support until the third, when, with two down and three on, Danford dropped Brake's throw of Smith's grounder, allowing Chub Dinsmore and Doherty to score. Fotheringham came home on Ernie Dinsmore's hit. Dinsmore shot into Danford like a bullet and Jack, who used to cavort around home plate for Doc Reisling's Tecumseh, dropped the ball. This seemed to unnerve Mr. Downs and he heaved a wild one, allowing Smith to hike in with another run. "Yankee" Flint then trotted out with his long war club and slugged out a two-bagger, sending Dinsmore across the pan with the fifth count. Pirie ended the butchery by striking out, which ended the scoring for the game.
