CYNTHIA GREY'S MAIL-BOX

The Vast Army.

Dear Miss Grey,—Just another one of the vast army which is at present fighting holes in stocking feet. Would you please send me the foot pattern? And would some kind reader send a few quilt patterns? Or do you know of a book containing such? Hoping I can be of use next time. DIXIE. Molly-O From U. S. A.

Dear Miss Grey,—At last I have got up and started to cry. I rocked aga "The Face on the Barroom Floor" and the same thing happened when written out. I see it was asked for twice, so if I am too late for one, I guess I'll be in time for the other. I guess I'll be in time for the other. I bottle. I anight have sent before, but did not want to send the one I had, as my son sent it to me from Camp Borden, so was afraid it might get lost, but, never mind; better late than never. Well, Miss Grey, isn't it fine to see the boys coming back? We had one friend to see us this week, but we do not expect our own son till April, as he is in Germany, but safe and well, but says he will be glad to get back in the plow handles again. Will sign as before.

Ans.—That is such a long piece to copy, I think any Pageite who does so deserves a very special word of thanks. I can just imagine the joy in your home when "the boy" comes back. Let us speed April all we can!

Double. She relused to take it, and reied harder, so I picked her up again and rocked her to sleep. I said to myself. "If you cry this time, you'll keep on crying, for I won't pick you up again." As soon as I began to lower her into her basket she began to struggle and cry. I laid her down and went back to my work. She cried pitceously for a while, then screamed. I got frightened and took her bottle to her again. She flatly refused to have anything to do with it, so I left her alone until I heard her sobs growing weaker and weaker. (I was crying by this time myself.) Then I tiptoed in to peek at her, and to cked her to sleep. I said to myself. "If you cry this time, you'll keep on crying, for I won't pick you up again." A Canadian War Worker," I agree with you, re bragging. I'm a Canadian (and very proud of it, too!) living in the United States, and I have nearly come to blows with some of the girls in the office over who should receive the most credit for winning the war. These Yankee girls claim that if it hadn't been for America, Great Britain would have been defeated long ere this, and it was the Yankees who had won the war. This roused my ire. I say they all won it, each helped, and all the honor cannot be placed on any one country entirely.

Who was it that kept the hungry Hun from the American shores for almost three years? It was Britain's navy and army, and her allies! It was not until America saw the possibility of the Germans defeating the Allies, and that Germany would come to America to conquer it, did she declare war. She wanted to save America from the horrible fate of Belgium and France. I love America as much as I do Canada, for I expect to make my "Spring" is Here.

"Spring" is Here.

Dear Miss Grey,—This is my first do Canada, for I expect to make my home in Missouri some day, and I like fair play. As I said before, the honor for winning the war is placed upon the Milles, and not on any individual country. We all helped to win the war.

My letter to "Keep Smiling" was returned to me all worn and weary from its travels, but I suppose he is safely back in dear old Canada.

I had a letter from "Oxfordite's" lonely soldier before Christmas, which I answered, and sent him a Christmas box. I have not heard from him since, and I am wondering if "Oxfordite" can the meant of the words at the end of each verse and I am wondering if "Oxfordite" can the meant of th
