The Presence.—The River is said to be at present swollen to a greater height than for several years past, and the low lands on its margin, with its unmerious Islands and Intervals, are much inundated; at the indian House the water is unusually high. In consequence of this sudden freshet, any attempt to descend the Falls with londed bonts is sattended with great danger, and to ascend them in their present state is nearly impossible. Our markets already begin to feel the effect of this River Enduryon, and the price of fuel and country produce has experienced a rapid rise.—Yesterday, we had a severe gule from the N. E. with rain, the effect of which will no doubt be to swell the riverstill more. The weather continues cold, and winter still more. The weather continues cold, and winter the subject of which will no doubt be to swell the riverstill more. We hope, for the sake of the country that we may soon be blessed with a change of weather.

We have copied in another part of our paper the Resolutions passed at a very numerous and highly respective mention in the subject of West huids infairs, which will no doubt be read with interest by every one who has the welfare of the British Colonies at heart.
