EXODUS OF CHILDREN FROM GREATER NEW YORK Epidemic of Infantile Paralysis Hastens Departure of Thousands— Outlook a "Little Encouraging"

New York, July 6.—The epidemic of infantile paralysis here has hastened the departure of thousands of families who usually leave town for the summer. Estimates of the number of children who have been taken out of the city since the epidemic began to run as high as 50,000, but this is the season when the city population is annually reduced by the summer exodus.

Thus far 225 cases of the disease have been reported to the board of health, and 186 persons have died. It is most prevalent in the Italian quarter of the southern section of Brooklyn, where the paralysis made its first appearance. High mortality continues to be the striking feature of the epidemic, and the death toll has reached approximately that of the entire epidemic of 1907, when 2,500 cases were reported.

Although fifty-nine new cases and twenty-five deaths were reported on Tuesday, the health commissioner says the outlook was "a little encouraging" as there were fewer true cases than reported on some previous days. Nevertheless, he made requisition for fifty additional field nurses and eighty-seven hospital nurses, together with servants and orderlies.

An order of the health commissioner, excluding children under sixteen years of age from moving picture shows, went into effect yesterday. Physicians say there is no known positive treatment for the disease, but that the child's physician has to combat it with such aid as the doctors can give to lessen the probability of permanent injury.

If a strain is allowed to fall upon the affected limb, says the health commissioner, there is great danger of permanent paralysis.

DOG'S LONG JOURNEY Mrs. Harry Baynton, of Delhi street, has two dogs which she prizes very highly. They are two black field spaniels and may be termed "military dogs" or "strappers." The dogs have been the mascot of the Royal Canadian Regiment, but more recently they have been the pets of the 104th Battalion. Mrs. Baynton had gone to Sussex to see her husband, and on coming home she brought the pets with her. However, when she came home, one of the dogs was missing, and it was found that he had started back to Sussex, after arriving in St. John, to find his master. The incident was a wonderful one, and the manner in which he found his way back to Sussex, a distance of 84 miles, can be attributed only to the dog's "intelligence."
