RUBBER INDUSTRY OUTLOOK BETTER

Indication That 1923 Will See Return of Real Earning Power in U. S.

New York, January 9.—The rubber industry in the United States, particularly the tire manufacturing division, enters 1923 with every indication that the year will witness the return of real earning power, absent since 1920.

TITLED BRITONS TURN 'FISHWIVES' FOR CHARITY

Shop in Bond Street Filled With Sea Delicacies Attracts Much Attention.

London, Jan. 9.—Fishmongers in Bond street—London's Fifth Avenue—are what might be termed "what might be" but when they happen to be titled Englishwomen, as was the case this week, their party is still more enhanced.

OPINIONS ON THE MARKET

(McDougall & Cowans, Private Wire.) New York, Jan. 9.—Hornblower & Weeks—"Would sell at market any stocks you do not hold."

Hutton & Co.—"We regard the European situation as serious and prefer being in a conservative position."

Thomas McKinnon—"Despite the encouraging news at home we feel that the foreign situation cannot be ignored, and the policy of selling stocks on a basis should be followed."

Bache & Co.—"The chances favor some further weakness for the present."

Housman & Co.—"We think the market may be so bound by shifting sentiment as to result in considerable irregularity."

Block Maloney—"If France occupies the Ruhr, as now seems likely, this will clear the air, and then we will get something definite."

Evans—"The market continues firm in face of the European situation. Whatever happens in the near future is only one step closer toward the right-up of the entire matter. The market wants to go up and will rise as soon as the foreign situation clears."

DR. E. B. CARMAN LOSES $14,000 TO WIRETAPPERS. Swindling of Physician Revealed When He Identifies Prisoner as One of Narragansett Pier Gang—One Man Loses $10,600.

New York, Jan. 9.—The fact that Dr. E. B. Carman of Freeport, L. I., was defrauded of a sum of $14,000 at Narragansett Pier was disclosed last week when he identified Frank Henderson as one of the gang of wire-tappers who took on money from Dr. Carman's wife and subsequently acquitted of having murdered Mrs. Louis Bailey while she was in the doctor's office on June 2, 1922.

Henderson, who is also known as Frank McCray, was the master mind of the old Gonford wiretappers, according to the police. The Gonford was accused of having received rich persons out of millions of dollars. Henderson was identified in the line-up at police headquarters yesterday, not by Dr. Carman, but also by Edward Meixner, who declared the prisoner had duped him out of $10,600 at the Rhode Island Hotel on November 2 by the same wiretapping scheme of which the physician says he was a victim.

Recognized on Broadway. Henderson was recognized on Broadway, at Fifty-eighth street, Wednesday, night by Detective John Barron of the Fifth Avenue squad, who took him into custody. His chief accomplice in the Narragansett Pier operations, who is described as Louis Silverman, alias Louis G. Wood, is said to be under arrest in Newark City Hospital, where he is under treatment. It is said that Silverman was also identified yesterday by Dr. Carman, though he denied he had seen the physician.

Dr. Carman told the police that while he was selling oil bonds in Freeport he met Wood, who induced him to go to the bank and withdraw $10,000 for him. He was then taken to a rooming house in New York City, where he was to be kept until he could be taken to a more profitable stock proposition there. While Carman and Wood were at dinner at a hotel, Wood picked up a white brief case under his chair and, opening it, expressed surprise at finding in it stock supposed to have been worth $75,000, newspaper clippings purporting to tell of Frank Henderson's grand winnings at horse races and personal cards of Henderson's.

Lucky Wallet Returned. Wood proposed to return it to Henderson and Carman, suspecting nothing, according to the police, acquiesced. Henderson expressed gratitude over the return of the wallet, which he said he valued more as an heirloom than for its contents, and gave the other two men new $20 bills to show his appreciation. He also insisted on entertaining them at Narragansett Pier, and told them at length of his large winnings, while creating the impression of being reluctant to talk.

The next day Henderson took Dr. Carman to a place where, with Henderson's advice, he was able to place a $1,000 bet on a horse, which he won, the police say.

Dr. Carman and Wood returned to the gambling house the following day, and more tips were given the physician, on which he apparently won $25,000. When he tried to collect from the cashier, however, the latter told him that Dr. Carman returned and that he must show that he could have paid had he lost.

Carman Surrenders $14,000. Wood drew out $15,000, which he asserted would have guaranteed his share, and directed the physician to show his money. Carman handed $14,000 to the cashier, and immediately feeling something was wrong asked for its return.

Dr. Carman returned and that he was looking for Wood, but heard nothing of him until informed of his arrest. Another victim of wiretapping schemes, who gave his address at 69 West Thirty-sixth street, but who failed to tell his name, called at police headquarters to look at Henderson, but failed to identify him. As the crimes alleged to have been committed by Henderson took place in Rhode Island, officers of that state will be notified to come here for the prisoner, according to Inspector Coughlin.

SMOKE THE HARVEST TOBACCO. The Largest Sale of any Brand in Canada. "QUALITY TELLS" Also in 1/2 lb. tins.

Washington, Jan. 9.—For one hour last week the Senate debated whether or not peyote is a good thing for the American Indian. The debate was precipitated by an item in the Department of Interior appropriation bill, which set aside $25,000 to curb the peyote habit among the red men. It was explained that peyote is a flower that grows on the banks of the Rio Grande. It looks like a small sandflower, but, according to Senators from the west and southwest, it has a "kick" that makes ordinary bootleg "white mule" tame in comparison.

It was explained by Senators who have studied the effect of the flower on the red man that it makes the poor Indian feel religious, while a missionary was quoted as authority for the assertion that chewing the flower when in the dried state or drinking tea brewed from it creates "a beautiful state of mind" in the addict. One single dried flower, it was said, produces an "exhilaration" that sometimes lasts two days.

Senator Harrison of Mississippi opened the peyote discussion. "I wish," said Senator Harrison, "a little information from some Senator regarding the $25,000 peyote item. What is peyote?"

"It is a drug," replied Senator Smoot "that acts upon the white man, as rot gut whiskey does upon the white man. The only difference is the effects last longer. However, in justice to the Indians I want to say they use it in their religious worship and for that reason they object to its suppression."

"What is it made of?" inquired Senator Smoot. "A small bean, I think," replied Senator Smoot.

"It grows along the Rio Grande in the State of Oklahoma, and I think, and possibly in some parts of New Mexico. It is a deleterious drug. Observation leads me to believe that it is a little information from some Senator regarding the $25,000 peyote item. What is peyote?"

"I am against the item," explained Senator Harrison of Oklahoma, "and I think it should be stricken from the bill. It is a question that is very much in doubt. A few years ago a few old fossils in the Interior Department made a report that it was deleterious. A House committee is now investigating, and I oppose this proposition because of the legislation pending in the House which will determine whether or not peyote is deleterious."

"Let me explain," interrupted Senator Jones of New Mexico, "and I claim, as does, Dr. Wiley among others, that peyote is deleterious. On the contrary, there are others who have visited the Indians and who say that it is used for sacramental purposes in connection with their religious rites. I was a member of a committee that has had the Indians and who say that it is used for sacramental purposes in connection with their religious rites. I was a member of a committee that has had the Indians and who say that it is used for sacramental purposes in connection with their religious rites. I was a member of a committee that has had the Indians and who say that it is used for sacramental purposes in connection with their religious rites."

"No," replied Senator Jones, "they did not. We had some samples and could have tried it, but, of course, we did not. I may say that peyote is a bud that grows on a shrub and after it is dried it is probably a quarter of an inch thick, having the appearance of a small dried onion. Sometimes they chew it and sometimes they boil it in water and drink the tea. It is used by the Indians for ceremonial purposes, usually on Saturday nights, and some of the churches objected because some members were not able to attend church the following day. It is a question about which there are great differences of opinion."

"I know," said Senator Smoot, "that when the Indians in Utah drink or chew it, they are in a stupor for two days. They may dream beautiful dreams, but the testimony we have had from people in my State is that they would prefer that the Indians drink liquor than to have them use this drug. I want to ask the Senator from New Mexico if it isn't true that the testimony taken by his committee left the committee in doubt as to whether the effects complained of were produced by this dried bud or by dried onions?"

"Whether it was deleterious to the Indian's physical or spiritual welfare, it was impossible to determine from the evidence, which came from a great number of witnesses," replied Senator Jones.

The peyote item was finally stricken from the bill. When the House investigation is concluded, independent legislation, it was said, will be forthcoming. In the meantime the Indians can continue to drink peyote and dream.

PROFESSOR WANTS $50,000 OR JOB BACK. (Canadian Press Cable.) Toronto, Jan. 8.—Alleging that his dismissal from the position of professor of oriental languages in the University of Toronto was illegal and unjust, and ultra vires of the board of governors, Professor James A. Craig is suing the University before Mr. Justice Ondaatje. The university contends that all professors come under that age limit rule.

Professor Craig's term was, however, on the recommendation of the president to the board of governors, extended for two years. He was re-elected on June 30 last in his sixty-eighth year.
