It Cannot Succeed.
(Amherst News.)
There has been some talk of professional baseball being started in Amherst this summer. Just who had this idea is rather hard to say, but it looks to me as if the person or persons who brought the subject to the forefront had a screw loose in some part of their machinery. Amherst can no more stand the costs of professional baseball than a dog can handle a second tail. If the talk concerned independent baseball, it might be different, but as far as professional baseball is concerned, I can see but little chance. For one thing there is not the material in Amherst for a good professional baseball team. In the second place, they could not get grounds, and, in the third place, a team could not be financed. These arguments are sound enough. Far better to stick to the amateur or independent sport, and let well enough alone.

Delightful Simplicity.
(Montreal Gazette.)
Queen Victoria taught her daughters to make their own clothes; and the forthcoming royal wedding is, we are officially told, to be marked with great simplicity. This accords with the spirit of the times, not the spirit of sombre austerity, but of unostentatious and in a measure democratic familiarity, and this lesson which is now happening everywhere—the spirit which broadens human relations and makes for human warmth. Our own royal family has been quick to recognize the new spirit which will be all the more virile from growing outward instead of inward. Queen Victoria was frequently referred to as "that German Princess," but St. James is today a British Court in every essential particular.

Princess Mary is a bonnie English Princess through and through. She has the English instinct for directness. She is wholesome, fond of the out-of-doors, and throughout her young life she has, while not derogating from her high position, which she sustained with dignity, enacted her role to the utmost satisfaction of the British public. The thorough association which now marks the royal family with the British people will have intimate effect making for the stability of the throne, while it will at the same time encourage more robust features and qualities, of which there is need for infusion from time to time. The war taught many things. "The Divinity which doth hedge in a king" has lost its meaning; and if there be any thrones left in the world, give them a constant airing. The royal family observed the signs of the times when the thrones began to topple; and it is more efficaciously doing this by its voluntary alliances with families which touch hands with the robust heart of the British people.

It is of an immense dynastic consequence that the members of the royal family should ally themselves with the simple features of the wholesome British life. A dynasty is guaranteed by a cordial amity history has said so before now; and the simplicity of Princess Mary appealing to the common affections may in the years to be among the elements supporting that power which knows when to take "occasion by the hand."

You Pay For Your Music There.
Moscow, Feb. 7.—(Associated Press by mail).—Grand pianos are heavily hit by the new luxury taxes framed by the Moscow Soviet. Each owner of a grand piano must pay an annual tax of 750,000 rubles, which exceeds the annual wages of many government employees. Ordinary pianos are taxed 600,000 a year and phonographs must pay 200,000.

UNIQUE TODAY HERE'S A DANDY PROGRAMME

Read the Following

The play that created a Broadway sensation. And lured Elsie Ferguson back to the stage for the greatest dramatic triumph of her career.

A drama of life's master emotion—its daring, its pain, its ecstasy. Its terrible power to drag down. Its sacred power to glorify.

A romance of love and music, youth and fang. Dressed in silks, basking in luxury, but touching at times the underworld haunts of those who have lost the fight.

Now brought direct from stage to screen to mark the beautiful star's return to motion pictures. Yet far more pretentious and varied than any stage production could be.

A beauty-picture that carries straight to the heart.

LESSONS FROM HOLLYWOOD.

(New York Globe)

As everyone who has lived in Hollywood knows, a majority of the producers, actors, directors, and other important elements in the motion picture industry are decent and hard-working people. Many a legitimate actor and actress has taken up motion picture work because it means regularity of employment, a chance for a home of your own, the opportunity to become a citizen instead of a nomad. On the other hand, a lot of people who want to misbehave themselves have also drifted into the business. And, in particular, enormous salaries have been acquired overnight by young men and women, many of whom are without intellectual or moral standards and have not known the discipline of years of unsuccessful toil. That such a situation should not debauch many individuals would be to subvert the rules of nature.

It may be true, as Mr. Herbert Brenon suggests, that the existence of the motion picture colony in Hollywood, shut off from association with persons of other professions is abnormal and results in abnormal recreations. It is more true that the whole industry needs to get on a commonsense basis of suitable reward for solid artistic achievement, and to put an end to the endowment with fabulous sums of persons whose only virtue is their cow eyes and wary hair. Mr. Hays can find a real field for himself there.
