BRUNSWICK FIRE LOSS NEAR $100,000

More Than Dozen Buildings, Including Two Churches and Railway Shops

Bangor, Me., April 27.—More than a dozen buildings, including two churches, the water tower and shops of the Maine Central railroad, the coal sheds of Knight & Standwood, and half a dozen dwelling houses, were destroyed by a fire in Brunswick yesterday. For a time it threatened to wipe out the entire town. The high wind carried sparks and burning embers for more than a mile and several grass fires were started in the town of Topsham, across the Androscoggin river. The losses total upward of $100,000.

For three hours the flames were beyond control, and it was not until help arrived from Topsham, Bath, Lewiston and Portland that their progress was stayed. The list of burned buildings, located in Cedar street, with the estimated losses in each case is:—
Maine Central Railroad water tower, carpenter shop and storehouse, $40,000; Knight & Standwood's coal sheds, $8,000; St. John's Catholic church and parochial school, $40,000; St. Paul's Episcopal church, $5,000; dwelling house of John C. Mountford, Mrs. Adelaide C. Dennison, Daniel T. Toothacher, Wm. H. Hill, Karl Von Hydtegard, of New York, Mrs. Marcia E. Getchell, Geo. D. Campbell and John A. Deah, $12,000. In addition to these there were several buildings slightly damaged. In nearly every case the buildings destroyed were either wholly or partially insured.

UNDERGOING OPERATION
The many friends of Captain Thomas Clarke, the commander of the tug Neptune, will regret to hear that he underwent a serious surgical operation on Saturday evening. The operation was performed by Dr. Murray MacLaren, assisted by Doctors Barry and Pratt. Captain Clarke is reported resting as easily as can be expected, and good hopes for his recovery are held out.

LITTLE MARGARET LOST MOPS WHEN TITANIC WENT DOWN

(New York Sun.)

A little girl from overseas whose father kissed her good-bye and put her by her mother in one of the Titanic's lifeboats on that tragic night has almost forgotten now the sights she saw as the life boat went away from her father on the deck, the sounds she heard as the giant liner sank and the anguish of the hours before the Carpathia came, has forgotten so that those things are dim beside her one prevailing grief, the loss of her very best doll that closed its eyes when you rocked it.

She is eight-year-old Margaret Collier, and she and her mother who boarded the Titanic at Southampton, bound with her father Harvey Collier, for a fruit farm in Idaho, are being cared for by the family of Dr. J. A. De Tieme at 1475 Glenwood road, Brooklyn.

Margaret has plenty of dolls now. Strange, quick talking American girls of her own age have stopped in at the doctor's home to give their English cousin blue eyed china dolls, and dolls with their eyes and noses painted on 'em, and just rag dolls—for the child and her story came known in a very short time all through the neighborhood—but then you know a Flintheart doll can never make up for Mopsy—Mopsy that was drowned in the ocean.

Margaret's father had a store up the big hill in Bishop's Sides, as Margaret will tell you, and one day he told her that they were all going to America. Margaret thought that would be very nice indeed, though she didn't know much about America save that every one there had loads and loads of money, and her brown eyes shone when her father told her.

Harvey Collier had heard of the profits to be made in fruit farming, and he took his family aboard a train for Southampton, with far-away Idaho as his goal. They booked second cabin on the Titanic. Margaret waved at her friends at the dock as her father held her up, when the boat started and through all the excitement of departure clutched fast to Mopsy of the golden hair and sweetest smile.

Margaret made friends with another little English girl on the ship and they shipped rope together and threw a ball up over the side. Her name was Bertha. She has never seen Bertha again.

Margaret was so busy with Mopsy by her side that she didn't know that her father dressed and went upstairs where people were talking about Mopsy. He came down and said something to her mother and mother lifted her and carried her up to the top of the ship. Margaret was so busy with Mopsy that she didn't know that her father dressed and went upstairs where people were talking about Mopsy.

There was a man in her boat who had a pistol. He shot it off once when a man pushed a woman. Her mother had a rug over her nightgown and Margaret clung close under it, for it was cold.

They heard music from the liner. A woman told Margaret that it was the hand playing a hymn. Then they heard men and women singing and by and by when she looked back there was no ship in sight and Margaret cried because Mopsy would catch cold with no one to look after her. She asked where her father was and her mother told her he was in another boat probably. For a long time they floated around. The ladies in the boat sat very quietly and didn't say much.

Once in a while she slept under the rug next her mother. When she thought of Mopsy Margaret would cry and her mother would try to comfort her. She was awakened toward morning by a creak in the boat. People were pointing over the water. Some said another boat was coming. Some said it was a star. But it was another boat and the sailors rowed hard and came up to it and they all got aboard. It wasn't as nice as the Titanic, said Margaret. Her father was not there, though they looked, the mother and the girl, everywhere. She asked several people if they had seen Mopsy, but none of them had.

F. S. Waterman, Dr. De Tieme's brother-in-law, received a telegram from friends of the Colliers asking him if he would meet the two and care for them until they could be sent home. He met them at the pier. Mrs. Collier was very ill. He took Margaret and her mother to a hotel, but it was closed there and Dr. De Tieme offered them shelter until they can arrange to get out to Idaho and the fruit farm.

"GIRDING THE MIND"

Synopsis of Sermon by Rev. H. E. Cooke of Coburg Street Church

Rev. H. E. Cooke, pastor of Coburg street Christian church, spoke last night on the subject of "Girding the Loins of the Mind." In part he said:

"The apostle here can be easily understood by referring to eastern customs of dress. The large flowing garment * * *

Here you see the point, our minds should not run loosely on the study of the word of God. For there is nothing so great as the loins of the mind like the word of God. Again, he speaks of the mind as the seat of the entire man; for it is that which makes the man.

The religion of Christ carries man beyond the outward scaffolding of ungodly passions, and into the face to face with God's living truth. Man was made for God, and he is never his true self until God possesses him.

It is true that the most of man's darkness is made by himself because he lives in the shadow. His darkness is the result of the mind not being thoroughly girded and lighted by the lamp of truth. Let the mind be in you," says the Apostle Paul to the Philippians, the mind of Christ. Conformity to human opinions, or subscriptions to dogmatical theories, will not save a man, while he holds in his hand the reins of external godliness, and while in Christianity begins by creating a new man within the man. Described by Jesus as leaven in meal, it begins to change, and continues until the whole lump is leavened. We should put Christianity to the test, as the great laws of science are tested. How do we know there is a great law of gravitation? We see every particle of matter under the earth and walk because he knows it will bear him up. God wants us to trust His truth in like manner.

"(1)—What should the mind be girded for? For the purpose of conquest over destroying demons.

"(2)—What should the mind be girded with? The truth as it is in Jesus."

CONSTRUCTION WORK IN NOVA SCOTIA; PLENTY OF JOBS

Things are booming at Eastern Passage, and in other sections of the county east of Halifax. At Eastern Passage, the Nova Scotia Construction Co., who have the contract for building the big piers at Deepwater, have completed their preliminary arrangements, while in other sections of the county, construction work on the H. & E. Railway is now fairly well under way.

Men are in great demand and the problem, now confronting the contractors, is that of securing a sufficient number of workmen, both skilled and unskilled. Skilled and unskilled workmen from all parts of Nova Scotia have been hired.

Several hundred men are now engaged in the construction work on the Halifax and Eastern Railroad. At Musquodoboit and Porters Lake the work is being rushed ahead. For some reason or other the Dartmouth end of the line is not receiving much attention. At Musquodoboit, and at Porters Lake a large tract of the land has been cleared, and much of the road bed laid. Temporary tracks have been laid, thus expediting this part of the work. Previous to the 15th inst., the contractors were allowed to clear the land by firing it.

IMMIGRATION TO CANADA FROM THE GREEN ISLE

Determined Press Campaign to Keep The Workers at Home

(Times' Special Correspondence)

London, April 16.—"With each returning spring the young men of Ireland renew the national tragedy," says the Dublin "Irish Times," which is most determined in its discouragement of emigration, and points in gloomy colors the conditions awaiting new settlers in Canada. The small-homesteaders and their employes, according to this journal, are completely in the hands of the machine agents, the railway and grain elevator companies, the timber merchants, and more than all others, of the small tradesmen. Many of the homesteads are mortgaged up to the hilt, and money is worth half what it is at home.

Sustained opposition of this kind is beginning to tell, and is reflected in the emigration figures for 1911 which show the movement to be the lowest average since 1881. Still it is large enough to make it a national question; seven per cent. of the total population was the record for last year. In spite of this organized opposition it is satisfactory to note the success which has attended the operations of the Canadian government officials in what is admitted to be the most difficult field on this side. Although the majority of the settlers went as usual to America, Canada secured a good number, for instance, more than four-fifths of the movement from Ulster went to the dominion.

Maud—Why shouldn't he? He knew he was caught.
