

LIKE KNIGHTS OF OLD

Sergeant-Major Elliot, R. H. A., and Ivan de Malchin Do Battle On Horseback.

Stirring Scenes at the Fifth Regiment Drill Hall Last Evening.

It is a pity Ivan de Malchin did not have a better mount last night when he faced Battery Sergeant Major Elliot, late of the British Royal Horse Artillery, in a mounted sword combat.

The style of the two opponents was in complete contrast: Elliot rode like a well trained British cavalryman, body up, right, head erect, hands low, sword, while advancing to the attack, making light passes at arm's length downward, then when about to engage, held at the "ready."

Elliot's blows were regular Halaclava strokes, delivered with all the vigor of an enormously strong arm and wrist, de Malchin's cuts seemed weak in comparison, although placed quite as effectively for securing points.

Elliot's blows were regular Halaclava strokes, delivered with all the vigor of an enormously strong arm and wrist, de Malchin's cuts seemed weak in comparison, although placed quite as effectively for securing points.

However, there was abundance of good sport in the 29 attacks made by the pair last evening. The Russian wordsman was unhorsed three times; but, as noted already, he played at serious disadvantage with a shift of bridle of a horse. Elliot took full advantage of all his opportunities, and his use of his flashing blade, with its big polished brass guard, were very effective in frightening de Malchin.

Captain Chive Phillips Wolley made an excellent judge—surely no better could be found than the champion broadswordman of the British empire, and the author of the most valuable work on the art extant. He was ably assisted by several gentlemen who marked points for the combatants.

Among those who came by the Seattle and who departed here are, John W. J. Mattson, Alex. Gillis, J. Hoffman, E. E. Coy and W. H. Gibson. T. R. Needham, the founder of the first newspaper at Wrangell, The Stickeen River Journal, went on to Seattle, but will return here in a few days.

Dr. Chase's Cures Catarrh After Operations Fail. Toronto, March 13, 1897. My boy, aged fourteen, has been a sufferer from catarrh, and lately we submitted him to an operation at the General Hospital.

THROWS UP HIS BRIEF

An Unexpected Denouncement in the City Police Court To-Day.

Mr. Martin Retires from the Defence in the Bostock Case.

When the case against Mr. W. C. Nichol was brought up in the police court this morning Mr. Martin said he wished to draw his worship's attention to the fact that for the second time the Colonist had printed comments strongly reflecting upon the action of the defendants in the matter now before the court.

The Colonist of yesterday was produced, containing an article, entitled: "Those Libel Suits," and Mr. Martin called upon the magistrate, in view of the peculiar position his worship occupied, even if he had no power to punish the offenders, to at least express his disapproval of the course pursued by the morning paper. The magistrate declined to do so.

Mr. Martin said that as he contended as to his desire to call evidence, the usual questions were put to the defendant as to his desire to call evidence. Mr. Martin said that as he contended as to his desire to call evidence, the usual questions were put to the defendant as to his desire to call evidence.

MUST STAND TRIAL

Mr. Coltart Bound Over for Trial at the First Court of Competent Jurisdiction.

Hearing of the Charge Against Mr. Nichol Proceeding Before the Magistrate To-Day.

Mr. Ian Coltart, of the Province, was this morning formally bound over to stand his trial at the first court of competent criminal jurisdiction, on the charge of libelling Hon. J. H. Turner and Hon. C. E. Foyle, in an article published in the Colonist on the 27th of December last.

Mr. J. W. Jenkinson, Gifford, Ont., writes as follows: "I spent between two and three hundred dollars, tried all kinds of treatments, but got no benefit. One box of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure did me more good than all other remedies. In fact I consider myself cured, and with a 25 cent box at that."
