

(Continued.)

" didn't exactly mean to put it that way, Deane, but my temper is a little short these days. My position on board this ship is intolerable. As a matter of fair dealing to me you should put a stop to your daughter's attitude toward Anstruther on the ground that her engagement is neither approved of by you nor desirable under any consideration."

It may be assumed from this remark that even the earl's sardonic temper was ruffled by the girl's outrageous be havior. Nor was it exactly pleasant to him to note how steadily Anstruther advanced in the favor of every officer on the ship. By tacit consent the court martial was tabooed, at any rate until the Orient reached Singapore. Every, one knew that the quarrel lay between Robert and Ventnor, and it is not to be wondered at if Lris' influence alone were sufficient to turn the scale in favor of her lover. The shipowner refused point blank to interfere in any way during the voyage. "You promised your co-operation in business even if we found that the Sirdar had gone down with all hands," he retorted bitterly. "Do you wish me to make my daughter believe she has come back into my life only to bring me irretrievable ruin?"

"That appears to be the result, no matter how you may endeavor to disguise it "

"I thought the days were gone when a man would wish to marry a woman against her will." 'Nonsense! What does she know about it? The glamor of this island romance will soon wear off. It would be different if Anstruther were able to maintain her even decently. He is an absolute beggar, I tell you. Didn't he ship on your vessel as a steward? Take my tip, Deane. Tell him how matters stand with you, and he will cool off."

CHAPTER XVII.

ting alone in his cabin in a state of deep dejection when he was aroused by a knock, asked. "I have something to say to you before we land."

to a seat.

your words when we met on the island that both you and Lord Ventnor re-garded Iris as his lordship's promised bride. From your point of view the financier, Sir Artnur Deane, to raise on his note of hand. A few months ago men offered me one hundred times the amount on no better security. And now to think that a set of jabbering fools in London should so destroy my credit and their own; that not a bank will discount our paper unless they are assured Lord Ventnor has joined the board! Fancy me, of all men, being willing to barter my child for a few pieces of gold!" The thought was maddening. For a little while he yielded to utter despondency. It was quite true that a compar atively small amount of money would restore the stability of his firm. Even without it, were his credit unimpaired. he could easily tide over the period of depression until the first fruits of his enterprise were garnered. Then all men would hail him as a genius.

Wearily turning over his papers, he suddenly came across the last letter written to him by Iris' mother. How she doted on their only child! He recalled one night shortly before his wife died when the little Iris was brought into her room to kiss her and lisp her infantile prayers. She had devised a formula of her own: "God bless father! God bless mother! God bless me, their little girl!" And what was it she cried to him from the beach? "Your own little girl given back to you!"

Given back to him! For what-to marry that black hearted scoundrel whose pastime was the degradation of women and the defaming of honest men? That settled it. Instantly the cloud was lifted from his soul. A great peace came upon him. The ruin of his business he might not be able to avert, but he would save from the wreck that which he prized more than a.l else, his daughter's love.

The engines dropped to half speed. They were entering the harbor of Singapore. In a few hours the worst would be over. If Ventnor telegraphed to London his withdrawal from the board nothing short of a cabled draft for £10,000 would prevent certain creditors from filing a bankruptcy petition. In the local banks the baronet had about a thousand to his credit. Surely among the rich merchants of the port, men who knew the potentialities of his scheme, he would be able to raise the money needed. He would try hard. Already he felt braver. The old fire best calculated to secure his daughter's happiness stimulated and encouraged him. He went on deck, to meet Iris skipequitable, but since your daughter left own the hatchway. Hongkong it happens that she and I have fallen in love with each other. No; please listen to me. I am not here to urge my claims on you. I won greens and blues and browns! Run, her fairly and intend to keep her were quick! I want you to see every inch the whole house of peers opposed to

SEMI-WEEKLY SUN, ST. JOHN, N. B., SEPTEMBER 9. 1905.

was

"What did Miss Deane dor"

"Clung to Anstruther like a weeping angel and kissed everybody all round when Ventnor got away. Well-hands off. I mean her father, Anstruther and not tall to note the manghant purpose of the parting sentence. In his quietly masterful way he placed his hand on the baronet's shoul-"What did Lord Ventnor mean?" he asked. the stout uncle. Unfortunately I was Sir Arthur Deane answered, with a calm smile: "It is difficult to talk open-reach the hotel." The news flew fast through the settlement that her majesty's ship Orient had returned from her long search for the Sirdar. The warship occupied her usual anchorage, and a boat was lowered to take off the passengers. The boat swung off into the tideway. Her progress shoreward was watched by a small knot of people, mostly oungers and coolies. Among them however, were two persons who had driven rapidly to the landing place when the arrival of the Orient was reported. One bore all the distinguishing marks of the army officer of high rank, but the other was unmistakably a globe trotter. The older gentleman made no pretense that he could "hear the east a-callin'." He swore impartially at the climate, the place and its inhabitants. At this instant he was in a state of wild excitement. He was very tall, very stout, exceedingly red faced.

Producing a tremendous telescope he vainly endeavored to balance it on the shoulder of a native servant. "Can't you stand still, you blithering idiot," he shouted, after futile attempts to focus the advancing boat, "or shall steady you with a clout over the ear?"

His companion, the army man, was looking through a pair of field glasses. "By Jove," he cried, "I can see Sir Arthur Deane and a girl who looks like his daughter! There's that infernal scamp, Ventnor, too." The big man brushed the servant out of his way and brandished the telescope as though it were a bludgeon. "The dirty beggar! He drove my lad to misery and death, yet he has come back safe and sound. Wait till I meet him. I'll"-

"Now, Anstruther! Remember your promise. I will deal with Lord Ventnor. My vengeance has first claim. What! By the jumping Moses, I do believe- Yes. It is. Anstruther! Your nephew is sitting next to the girl! The telescope fell on the stones with a crash. The giant's rubicund face suddenly blanched. He leaned on his friend for support. "You are not mistaken?" he almost whimpered. "Look again, for God's sake, man! Make sure before you speak. Tell me! Tell me!" "Calm yourself, Anstruther. It is Robert, as sure as I'm alive. Don't you think I know him, my poor disgraced friend, whom I, like the rest, cast off in his hour of trouble? But I had some excuse. There! There! I didn't mean that, old fellow. Robert himself will be the last man to blame either of us. Who could have suspected that two people-one of them, God help me, my wife-would concoct such a hellish

The boat glided gracefully alongside the steps of the quay, and Playdon sprang gracefully ashore to help Iris to alight. What happened immediately afterward can best be told in his own words, as he retailed the story to wisdom can manifest itself by putting even the creeping and crawling things MOTHER IGNORES of the earth to some useful purpose." "Dash it all, lad," vociferated the elder Anstruther, "what ails thee? I never heard you talk like this before?" DAUGHTER'S DEATH The old gentleman's amazement was mical that further tension was out of the question Robert, in calmer mood, informed them of the manner in which he hit upon the mine. The story sounded like wildest romance-this finding of a volupon the mine. The story sounded like canic dyke guarded by the bones of "J. S." and the poison filled quarrybut the production of the ore samples changed wonder into certainty. Next day a government metallurgist estimated the value of the contents of the two oil tins at about £500, yet the specimens brought from the island were not by any means the richest available.

And now there is not much more to tell of Rainbow island and its castaways. On the day that Captain Robert Anstruther's name appeared in the Gazette, reinstating him to his history of a beautiful young girl whose body, clothed in a pauper's shroud, lay in the undertaking rooms of the Stephen Merritt Undertaking Company, Eighth avenue and Nineteenth street. There were a hundred things which told that the girl had not belonged to the pauper class. Taken on Saturday morning from a handsomely furnished room in No. 221 West Forty-fifth street to Bellevue Hospital, suffering from poison, the girl died in the hospital at half-past seven o'clock Saturday night. Yester

Poison Gave Two Names

and Galled Her

"Next Friend."

to Answer Questions and Body

Lies Unclaimed in Pauper's

Shroud.

++

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 .- Many in old and had purposely taken poison.

GIRL GIVES TWO NAMES.

"My mother," answered the girl.

"What is the name and address of our next friend ?" asked the attend-uiries were made last night about the day Dr. O'Hanlon, coroner's physician performed an autopsy. He concluded from what meagre information he had that it was a case of suicide. All the time physicians were working over her in the hospital she was con scious, and the few words she uttered rank and regiment, Iris and he were her case. In answer to the usual quesmarried in the English church at Hongtions she said her name was Bessie kong, for it was his wife's wish that the place which witnessed his ignominy should also witness his triumph. Soon afterward Robert resigned his commission. He regretted the necesant, bending over the cot. sity, but the demands of his new sphere in life rendered this step imperative. Mining engineers, laborers, stores, portable houses, engines and "She is Mrs. Minnie Wilson, of No. 101 West Fifty-second street." A few equipment were obtained with all haste, and the whole party sailed on hours later, when she realized that one of Sir Arthur Deane's ships to condeath was rapidly approaching, she told an attendant that her right name voy a small steamer specially hired to attend to the wants of the miners. was Elizabeth R. Wilson and not Bes-At last, one evening early in July, sie Graves. the two vessels anchored outside Palm Tree rock, and Mir Jan could be seen running frantically about the shore.

door from Sixth avenue. There are rugs on the hall floor and the apartfor no valid reason save that he could rugs on the hall floor and the apart-not stand still. The sahib brought him ments are of the better class. On the of Nova Scotia, and with a combination good news. The governor of Hong- sixth floor the name Wilson was found cut glass and silverware service of kong felt that any reasonable request on a door by a reporter for the Herald, made by Anstruther should be granted who called there last night. When the if possible. He had written such a strong, representation of the Mohammedan's case to the government of India that there was little doubt the returning mail would convey an official notification that Mir Jan had been granted a free pardon. formation."

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 5. - A despatch from Tiflis, received today, says: "The whole of the southeast Caucasus is now terrorized by Tar-

"Details from Shusha show that several engagements were fought between Tartars and Armenians behind regular positions, and that a consider-able part of the town was soon in flames.

"According to an official estimate over 200 houses were destroyed." BAKU, Sept. 5 .- Troops under the direction of the governor are acting with the utmost vigor, but they have not succeeded in restoring order, although there is rather less firing. Armed rioters today attacked the oil works in the suburb of Balakhan and after a hot fight set fire to them.

Woman at Address Recorded Refuses Tartar bands are scouring the country, murdering and pillaging. The country is in a state of wild panic and country houses and farms are being abandoned. The famine in many parts of the country renders the situation more terrible.

St. PETERSBURG, Sept. 5.-Fighting continues between Armenians and Tartars and the troops at Baku, Caucasia. Many of the oil fields are in flames. Reinforcements have ben sent from Tiflis. Official despatches state that the workmen's quarters at Baku were burning last night.

ELIZABETHPOL, Caucasus, Sept. 5 -Sanguinary fighting has occurred be tween Tartars and Armenians in the village of Khankend.

There is great alarm here. All the Aremnian shops are closed and troops are patrolling the streets day and night KUTAIS, Caucasus, Sept. 5 .- A conflict between nobles and peasants occurred today in the village of Grandlet. Eleven persons were killed or wounded.

LAURIER WILL TURN

THE FIRST SOD.

there only increased the mystery of REGINA, Sept. 5 .- Sir Wilfrid Laurier stated today that he would turn the first sod of the Grand Trunk Paci-Graves, that she was nineteen years fic's Lake Superior branch at Fort William on his return east.

MR. McISAAC IS HONORED.

Nova Scotia Members and His Com

stituents Make Presentations.

ANTIGONISH, Sept. 6 .-- C. F. Mc-Isaac, M. P., for Antigonish, who has recently been appointed to the trans-

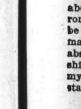

No. 101 West Fifty-second street is a continental railway commission, well appointed apartment house, one presented today with a .handsome silverware cabinet by his colleagues of is appoint

CHIPMAN.

"Sweetheart." said her husband that their arch enemy was actually helping the baronet's affairs at that very moment and would continue to do so until he was flung aside as being of no further value. Although Ventnor himself had carefuly avoided any formal commitment, the cablegrams awaiting the shipowner at Singapore showed that confidence had already been restored by the uncontradicted use of his lordship's name.

"You two are quietly assuming the attitude of the financial magnates of

AR.

Provinces. IG NEWS.

and Robert entered.

ry Lord Ventnor."

his head between his hands.

"I cannot choose but believe you,"

he admitted huskily. "Yet how came the sworn testimony not only of my colonel's wife, but of the civil head of an important government mission, not to mention some bought Chinese evi-

"But you are powerless now. You can hardly hope to have your case revised. What chance is there that your

"Mrs. Costobell can do it if she will.

The vagaries of such a woman are not to be depended on. If Lord Ventnor has cast her off her hatred may prove stronger than her passion. Anyhow, I should be the last man to despair of God's providence. Compare the condition of Iris and myself today with

"I hope your faith will be justified.

If it is not-the more likely thing to happen-do I understand that my daughter and you intend to get married whether I give or withhold my,

Anstruther rose and opened the door.

"I have ventured to tell you," he said

why she should not marry Lord Vent-

for her, which I pray may be soon, it will be time enough to answer that question should you then decide to

It must be remembered that Robert knew nothing whatever of the older man's predicament, while the baronet.

full of his own troubles, was in no mood to take a reasonable view of Thus, for a little while, these two were driven apart, and Anstruther disdained to urge the plea that not many weeks would elapse before he would be a richer man than his rival. The chief sufferer was Sir Arthur Deane.

Had Iris guessed how her father was tormented she would not have remained on the bridge, radiant and mirthful, while the gray haired baronet gazed with stony eyed despair at some memoranda which he extracted from his pa-

Anstruther's position.

When I come to you and ask you

The shipowner sighed heavily.

name will ever be cleared?

our plight on the ledge!"

sanction ?"

put it."

pers.

sentence.

ficers?"

dence "

The shipowner silently motioned him "It concerns Iris and myself," continued Anstruther. "I gathered from arrangement was perhaps natural and

IR ARTHUR DEANE was sit-

"Can you give me half an hour?" he had returned to his blood. The very plot!" belief that he was acting in the way

"Oh, there you are!" she cried. "I room was just coming to find out why you were moping in your cabin. You are missing the most beautiful view-all not on in that scene. But for some reason they all nearly wrung my arm off. ly at this moment. Wait until we and the men were so excited that they gave the party a rousing cheer as their rickshaws went off in a bunch." The next commotion arose in the hotel when Sir Arthur Deane seized the first opportunity to explain the predicament in which his company placed and the blow which Lord Vent-nor yet had it in his power to deal. Mr. William Anstruther was an interested auditor. Robert would have spoken, but his uncle restrained him. "Leave this to me, lad," he exclaimed. "When I was coming here in the Sirdar there was a lot of talk about Sir Arthur's scheme, and there should not be much difficulty in raising all the brass required if half what I heard be true. Sit you down, Sir Arthur, and tell us all about it." The shipowner required no second bidding. With the skill for which he was noted he described his operations in detail, telling how every farthing of the first installments of the two great loans was paid up, how the earnings of his fleet would quickly overtake the deficit in capital value caused by the loss of the three ships and how in six months' time the leading financial houses of London, Paris and Berlin would be offering him more money than he would need. To a shrewd man of business the project could not fail to commend itself, and the Yorkshire squire, though a trifle obstinate in temper, was singularly clear headed in other respects. He brought his great fist down on the

"Send a cable to your company, Sir Arthur," be cried, "and tell them that your prospective son-in-law will provide the £10,000 you require. I will see that his draft is honored. You can add, if you like, that another ten will be ready if wanted when this lot is spent. I did my lad one deuced bad turn in my life. This time, I think, I

"You are, indeed," said 5ris' father enthusiastically. "The unallotted capital he is taking up will be worth four

"All the more reason to make his holding twenty instead of ten," roared the Yorkshiredan. "But, look here. You talk about dropping proceedings against that precious earl whom I saw today. Why not tell him not to try any funny tricks until Robert's money is safely lodged to your account? We have him in our power. Dash it all, let us use him a bit." Even Iris laughed at this naive suggestion. It was delightful to think Robert at last obtained a hearing.

table with a whack. am doing him a good one."

times its face value in two years."

MARSH.

FREE :

DRS.

Med 1

OaD

ngest;

D

re the vessel

the ship to

ere a storm

was a stiff

woman re-

the Aragon

, spurred or

y, said they,

savers stood

ady to take off, but the

was declin-

f the treach.

d has gone

ing on the figures can

The deck-

hrown over-

so that she

e this after-oated. She sea and an-

tug will tow

narter of the UN.

mpany.

is tossing

g and there

tanding But Busy.

Marsh Creek July. It is of last week of hay were thout saying ut since. At ek, probably about Coldav had not standing on great hay utilized to went lost of this condition.

ABLES.

uite finished

e Dominion session here ing officers: Montreal: Stark, Tor tee, Lt. Col. rrison.Westlall, Guelph, antford; its action and sheriffs two Ontario

ted to mem-

Nerve in -Now

"nerve" and perb and virile ian to privately of nervous ex and weakness res of life. no other med-and permanent rve and sexual him equal the hope of de recked youth; vorked middle ouble, bladon, stricture ress to the with full of it." me. At this moment I want to tell She held out her hand and pulled you, her father, why she could never, him gleefully up the steps. Leaning even under other circumstances, maragainst the taffrail, some distance apart from each other, were Anstruth-Then he proceeded to place before er and Lord Ventnor. Need it be the astounded baronet a detailed hissaid to whom Iris drew her father? tory of his recent career. It was a "Here he is, Robert," she laughed. sordid story of woman's perfidy twice "I do believe he was sulking because told. It carried conviction in every Captain Fitzroy was so very attentive to me. Yet you didn't mind it a bit!" At the conclusion Sir Arthur bowed

The two men looked into each other's eyes. They smiled. How could they resist the contagion of her sunny nature? "I have been thinking over what you you to be so unjustly convicted by a tribunal composed of your brother ofsaid to me just now, Anstruther," said the shipowner slowly. "Oh!" cried Iris. "Have you two "They could not help themselves To acquit me meant that they discredited been talking secrets behind my back?" "It is no secret to you, my little girl"- Her father's voice lingered on the phrase. "When we are on shore, Robert, I will explain matters to you more fully. Just now I wish only to tell you that where Iris has given her heart, I will not refuse her hand." She took his face between her hands and kissed him. Lord Ventnor, wondering at this effusiveness, strolled forward. "What has happened. Miss Deane?" he inquired. "Have you just discovered what an excellent parent you possess?" The baronet laughed almost hysterically. "'Pon my honor," he cried, "you could not have hit upon a happier explanation. His lordship was not quite satisfied.

"I suppose you will take Iris to Smith's hetel?" he said, with cool impudence.

Iris answered him.

"Yes. My father has just asked Robert to come with us-by inference, that Where are you going?"

The adroit use of her lover's Christian name goaded his lordship to sudden heat.

"Indeed!" he snarled. "Sir Arthur Deane has evidently decided a good many things during the last hour."

"Yes," was the shipowner's quiet retort. "I have decided that my daughter's happiness should be the chief consideration of my remaining years. All else must give way to it."

The earl's swarthy face grew sallow with fury. His eyes blazed, and there was a tense vibrato in his voice as he said.

"Then I must congratulate you, Miss Deane. You are fated to endure adventures. Having escaped from the melodramatic perils of Rainbow island you are destined to experience another variety of shipwreck here." He left them. Not a word had Robert spoken throughout the unexpected scene. His heart was trobbing with a tremendous joy, and his lordship's

"Ten thousand pounds!" he muttered. "Not a great sum for the millionaire sneers were lost on him. But he could an appreciative audience in the ward-

"We had just landed," he said, "and some of the crew were pushing the coolies out of the way when two men jumped down the steps, and a most fiendish row sprang up-that is, there was no dispute or wrangling, but one chap, who, it turned out, was Colonel Costobell, grabbed Ventnor by the shirt front and threatened to smash his face in if he didn't listen then and there to what he had to say. I really thought about interfering until I heard Colonel Costobell's opening words. After that would gladly have seen the beggar chucked into the harbor. We never liked him, did we?"

"Ask no questions, Pompey, but go ehead with the yarn," growled the first lieutenant. "Well, it seems that Mrs. Costobell is dead. She got enteric a week after the Orient sailed and was a goner in four days. Before she died she owned He paused, with a base eye to effect.

Not a man moved a muscle. "All right," he cried. "I will make no more false starts. Mrs. Costobell begged her husband's forgiveness for her treatment of him and confessed that she and Lord Ventnor planned the affair for which Anstruther was tried by court martial. It must have been a beastly business, for Costobell was sweating with rage, though his words were icy enough. And you ought to have seen Ventnor's face when he heard of the depositions, sworn to and signed by Mrs. Costobell and by several Chinese servants whom he bribed to give false evidence. He promised to marry Mrs. Costobell if her husband died, or, in any event, to bring about a divorce when the Hongkong affair had blown over. Then she learned that he was after Miss Iris, and there is no doubt her fury helped on the fever. Costobell said that, for his wife's sake, he would have kept the wretched thing secret, but he was compelled to clear Anstruther's name, especially as he came across the other old Johnnie"-"Pompey, you are incoherent with excitement. Who is 'the other old Johnnie?" " asked the first luff severely. "Didn't I tell you? Why, Anstruther's uncle, of course, a heavy old swell with just a touch of Yorkshire in his tongue. I gathered that he disinherited his nephew when the news of the court martial reached him. Then he relented and cabled to him. Getting no news, he came east to look for him He met Costobell the day after the lady died, and the two vowed to be revenged on Ventnor and to clear Anstruther's character, living or dead. Poor old chap! He cried like a baby when he asked the youngster to forgive him. It was quite touching. "Well, Costobell shook Ventnor off at last, with the final observation that Anstruther's court martial has been quashed. The next batch of general orders will reinstate him in the regiment, and it rests with him to decide whether or not a criminal warrant shall be issued against his lordship for conspiracy."

this gathering," he said. "I must admit that you have managed things very well between you, and I do not propose for one moment to interfere with your arrangements. Nevertheless. Iris and I are really the chief moneyed persons present. You spoke of financial houses in England and on the continent backing up your loans six months hence, Sir Arthur. You need not go to them. We will be your bankers." The baronet laughed with a whole hearted gayety that revealed whence Iris got some part at least of her bright disposition. "Will you sell your island, Robert?"

he cried. "I am afraid that not even Iris could wheedle any one into buying it."

"But, father, dear," interrupted the girl earnestly, "what Robert says is true. We have a gold mine there. It is worth so much that you will hardly believe it until there can no longer be any doubt in your mind. I suppose that is why Robert asked me not to mention his discovery to you earlier." "No, Iris, that was not the reason, said her lover, and the elder men felt that more than idle fancy inspired the astounding intelligence that they had just heard. "Your love was more to me than all the gold in the world. I had won you. I meant to keep you, but I refused to buy you."

He turned to her father. His pent up emotion mastered him, and he spoke as one who could no longer restrain his feelings.

"I have had no chance to thank you for the words you uttered at the moment we quitted the ship. Yet I will treasure them while life lasts. You gave Iris to me when I was poor, disgraced, an outcast from my family and my profession. And I know why you did this thing. It was because you valued her happiness more than riches or reputation. I am sorry now I did not explain matters earlier. It would have saved you much needless suffering. But the sorrow has sped like an evil dream, and you will perhaps not regret it, for your action today binds me to you with hoops of steel. And you, too, uncle. You traveled thousands of miles to help and comfort me in my anguish. Were I as bad as I was painted your kind old heart still pitied me. You were prepared to pluck me from the depths of despair and degradation. Why should I hate Lord Ventnor? What man could have served me as he did? He has given me Iris. He gained for me at her father's hands a concession such as mortal has seldom wrested from black browed fate. He brought my uncle to my side in the hour of my adversity. Hate him! I would have his statue carved in marble and set on high to tell all who passed how good may spring out of evil-how God's POLITICS IN THE WEST.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 5 .- John Hays has een 'nominated by the conservatives as a candidate for Gleichen district, in Alberta by-election,

The mining experts verified Robert's most sanguine views after a very brief examination of the deposit. Hardly any preliminary work was needed. In twenty-four hours a small concentrating plant was erected and a ditch made to drain off the carbonic anhydride in the valley. After dusk a party of coolies cleared the quarry of its former occupants. Toward the close of the following day, when the great steamer once more slowly turned her head to the northwest. Iris could hear the steady thud of an engine at work on the first consignment of ore.

Robert had been busy up to the last moment. There was so much to be she said, "with another girl, who made done in a short space of time. The arrangements for the room. I saw vessel carried a large number of passengers, and he did not wish to detain them too long, though they one and all expressed their willingness to suit his convenience in this respect. Now his share of the necessary preparations was concluded. His wife, Sir Arthur and his uncle were gathered in a corner of the promenade deck when he approached and told them that his last instruction ashore was for a light to be fixed on Summit rock as soon as the dynamo was in working order. "When we all come back in the cold weather," he explained gleefully, "we will not imitate the Sirdar by running on to the reef should we arrive by night." Iris answered not. Her blue eyes were fixed on the fast receding cliffs. "Sweetheart," said her husband, "why are you so silent?"

She turned to him. The light of the setting sun illumined her face with its golden radiance. "Because I am so happy," she said.

"Oh, Robert, dear, so happy and thankful!"

THE END.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 6-3.45 a. m. -The news of the signing at Portsmouth of the treaty of peace was received here quietly and even with the same apathy that has marked the attitude of the Russian people throughout the war. There was no demonstration and no special means were adopted to make the news known. No extra editions of the newspapers were issued, and a large part of the population of St. Petersburg will be ignorant of the final act of the plenipotentiaries until they read of it in this morning's newspapers. Two or three of the newspapers this morning publish the text of the treaty as cabled from Portsmouth.

Piles To prove to you that Da Chase's Ointment is a cortain and absolute cure for each and svery form of itching. Needing and pretruding piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. See testimonials in the daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. EOe a box, as all dealers or EDMANSON, BATES & Cr., Toronto, ance to the inhabitants of the town.

Dr. Chase's Ointment | copper.

ht. When the bell was rung a well dressed, middle ment. In connection with the presentaged woman appeared. Three children ation addresses were made by Hon. H. R. Emmerson, minister of railways; accompanied her, a girl of about fifteen, a lad of perhaps twelve, and a Deouty Minister Butler, Premier Muryounger girl. When the woman was ray, of Nova Scotia, and several of the asked if she was Mrs. Wilson, she re-Liberal representatives of the province. Mr. MacIsaac made forcible reply. plied coldly: "Mrs. Wilson has no in-

"Does Mrs. Wilson know her daugh ter is dead and that she named her CHIPMAN, N. B., Sept. 6.-Chipman Volunteers, L. O. L., No. 150, met last mother as her best friend?" was asked.

"Mrs. Wilson has no information," night and elected the following officers. she again answered. in accordance with the resolution of "Will the girl's mother or family Grand Lodge permitting county lodges claim the body?" was the next ques- to hold their annual meeting earlier tion. To that the same answer was given. A dozen questions concerning the case followed, always bringing the Porter, D. M.; Thos. A. Stewart, same negative answer. Chap.; Hugh McRae, R. Sec.; Arch. Wiley, F. Sec.; D. B. MoPhee, Treas.; HER BEAUTY EXCEPTIONAL. Burbage Bishop, D. of C.; A. L. Stil-well, Lect.; D. W. Dunbar, 1st Com.; In No. 221 West Forty-fifth street an G.'F. Austin, 2nd Com.; F. J. Brew-ster, 3rd Com.; M. R. Kadey, 4th Com.; aged woman, who said she was Mrs. French, proprietress of the house, gave what information she could.

"The girl came here last Thursday a thing like this?"

of the inhabitants.

the storm.

"No," replied the girl calmly.

DAMAGED BY TORNADO:

only too glad it is all over."

Fred Fowler, 5th Com. FACIAL PARALYSIS.

Mrs. W. J. Brennan, Western Hill, little of either of them until the young-St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "My face was all twisted out of shape with er one was taken away in an ambulance. She attracted my attention facial paralysis, and five doctors failwhen I did see her because of her beauty. I have rarely seen a more beautiful girl. I know nothing about ed to cure or even relieve. By the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been entirely cured, and have her, but I was told by the friend who accompanied her that she was a telereturned to work strong and well. I have gained in weight and feel that I have a new lease of life." Standing near were a young man and young woman. Both spoke of having KOMURA' AT HARVARD. seen the girl and of having remarked BOSTON, Sept. 6.—Baron Komura, the Japanese chief plenipotentiary, and at the time how unusually pretty she was. In the hospital it was said she the Japanese secretaries and delegates who accompanied him from Portshad been a chorus girl, but no one was able to give his source of information. Nothing could be learned as to the identity of her girl companion, as she mouth, intend to spend the last moments of their stay in New England at Harvard University. The members of left the West Forty-fifth street house the party were about early and arrangafter her friend had been taken away ed to leave for Cambridge today. After in the ambulance. Mrs. French did spending several hours at the univernot know who was in the room when sity it was planned to return to this the girl is supposed to have taken the poison or who called the ambulance. city and board a special train for New York.

As she was being carried into Bellevue Hospital on a stretcher an attend-CHARLTON, Mass., Sept. 5-Two ant asked: "Aren't you ashamed to do persons were killed and 19 injured, three or four probably fatally, as the "I am result of a trolley car on the Worcester and South Bridge Street Railway system leaving the rails and running in to a tree a mile east of this village early today.

The car was taking to Worcester party of people who had been attend-ing an old home dance in Charlton and was running at a high rate of GUAM, Sept. 5.-The town of Sapain speed. Miss Nelson was thrown was badly damaged by a tornado Aug-ust 27. The American naval collier through a window and was buried beneath the car, which was overturned. Supply and the German steamer Mowe The injured were taken to a hospital have been dispatched to the assistance at Worcester.

The government house and a num-ST. EUSTACHE, Que., Sept. 5 .- Fire ber of dwellings have been destroyed. which broke out last night in the prem-The cocoanut groves have been badly ises of the St. Eustache Canning Cominjured, and it will take two years for pany, owing to the explosion of a mathem to recover from the effects of chine run by gasoline, caused fifty thousand dollars damages, with only There has been no loss of life, and there is no immediate need of assistten thousand dollars insurance. Tha ompany's buildings were entirely destroyed and one hundred men thrown Sapain is a town of 4,860 inhabitants out of employment.

