

In Lighter Vein

An Ideal Substitute

"I want a piece of meat without any bone, fat or gristle," said the bride on her first marketing trip.
"Yes, madam," replied the butcher.
"I would suggest that you take an egg."

Diplomatic

Colonel Fairfax: "And you like chicken, Sam?"
Sam: "Gee! Ah certainly does, boss."
Col. Fairfax: "And you get 'em once in a while?"
Sam: "Oh, sure, boss, Ah gets 'em."
Col. Fairfax: "How do you get 'em, Sam?"
Sam: "Well, boss, you know dat ol' saying, 'Love will find the way.'"

A Great Man

When George Arliss was making his wonderful run with Disraeli, an usher came to the star one evening and said, "We have a great man in the house."
"Who is he?" inquired Mr. Arliss.
"It is Elbert Hubbard."
"Well, who is Elbert Hubbard?"
"Why, he's the man who doesn't believe in God."
"Well," said the star as he added the last dab to his make-up, "well, I suppose that's the last of God."—Chicago Tribune.

Solicitous

The wife of the late Professor Agassiz was one morning putting on her stockings and boots. A little scream attracted the professor's attention. Not having risen, he leaned forward on his elbow, and anxiously inquired what was the matter. "Why a little snake has just crawled out of my boot," cried she. "Only one, my dear?" interrogated the professor, calmly lying down again, "there should have been three." He had put them there to keep them warm.

While president of the Lake Shore Railroad the late John Newell was so opposed to granting passes that he frequently refused to issue them to railroad officials, and when he did he limited such transportation to certain trains. On one occasion he prepared a parcel of exchange passes and sent them out as usual. Across the end of the one he forwarded to President Caldwell was printed in red ink the words "Not good on limited or fast trains." Without exasperating delay President Caldwell's annual pass for the Nickel Plate to President Newell arrived. Across the face, in the bold handwriting of President Caldwell, were the words, in red ink, "Not good on passenger trains."—Argonaut.

On the Level

It is not often that a schoolboy is so honest as a certain youngster in a Baltimore school, who had taken a prize for an exceptionally well-drawn map. After the examination, the teacher, a little doubtful, took the lad aside and questioned him:
"Who helped you with this map, Henry?"
"Nobody, ma'am."
"Come tell me the truth. I don't want your brother help you?"
"No, ma'am; he did it all," he said, candidly.

Pat's Patriotism

An Irishman on returning home to his native land gave vent to his joyful feelings by exclaiming repeatedly: "Hurrah for Ireland! Hurrah for Ireland!" much to the amusement of the passengers, but very much to the disgust of an Englishman on board, who finally retaliated with these words:
"Hurrah for Ireland! Hurrah for Hell!"
"That's right," answered Pat. "Every man for his own country."

Very Trying

Mr. William Muggins was angry, and he certainly appeared to have some justification for wrath.

Liza, he expostulated, don't I always tell you I won't have the kids bringing in the coals from the shed in my best hat? It ain't nice, Liza.

Just listen to reason, if you please, Bill, said his wife coldly. You have spoiled the shape of that hat with your funny head already, and as you're working coal all day at the wharf, what can a little extra coal dust in your hat matter?

You don't see the point, Liza, explained William, with dignity. I only wear that hat in the evenings, and if, while I'm out, I takes it off my head it leaves a black band round my forehead. What is the consequence? Why I gets accused of washin' my face with my hat on.

One Way

There was only one piece of pie for luncheon, and Mrs. Jones divided it between Ned and Grace. Ned looked first at his piece of pie, and then at his mother's empty plate.

"Mother," he said, "I don't believe I can eat my pie while you haven't any."
"Why, Ned," said the mother, much pleased, "how unselfish you are, dear! But you see, my boy, there is no more pie."

"I know that, mother," answered Ned; "you take Grace's."

How to arouse a sluggish skin

Just before retiring, wash your face and neck with plenty of Woodbury's Facial Soap and hot water. If your skin has been badly neglected, use a flesh brush, scrubbing it for about five minutes until the lather makes it feel somewhat sensitive. After this, rinse well in warm, then cold water. Now rub your skin five minutes with a Lump of Ice. Woodbury's Facial Soap is the work of an authority on the skin and its needs. This treatment with it cleanses the pores, brings the blood to the face and stimulates the fine muscular fibres of the skin. You can feel the difference the first time you use it. Woodbury's Facial Soap costs 25c a cake. No one hesitates at the price after their first cake. As a matter of fact it is not expensive, for it is solid soap—all soap. It wears from two to three times as long as the ordinary soap.

Tear off the illustration of the cake shown below and put it in your purse as a reminder to get Woodbury's today and try this treatment.

SHARPLES MECHANICAL MILKER

The March of Mechanism

ONCE perfected, a mechanical device inevitably overcomes every barrier against its use. The invention of the reaper swept away ten centuries of the scythe.

Mechanical progress is swift and certain.

Men have milked by hand since the dawn of husbandry. Yet in four years over 2,000 Sharples Milkers have been installed. This is prophecy of the new era in dairy science.

That such progress should be made in so short a time is largely due to the universal confidence of the dairymen in the Sharples product. For thirty-two years the name of Sharples has stood for correct principles and sturdy quality.

The elimination of the drudgery of hand-milking will effect a great economy of labor in the dairy and on the farm.

Cows are more contented when milked by the Sharples. The milk flow is greater, and teats and udders are kept in perfect condition.

There is a dairy near you in which a Sharples Milker is working successfully. Let us tell you how you can inspect it.
