Brantford, June 13 .- The Six Nations Warriors' Association at a big picnic at Oshweken entered a strong protest against what is characterized as the

"petticoat government" of the system of hereditary chieftainships, and an appeal will be made to Ottawa. According to tradition, dating from 1390, chieftainships are confined to cer-tain families, and when one chief dies the women of the families select an-other. President Jacob Miller and others, delivered impassioned addresses to the ivered impassioned addresses to the gathering, charging graft and malad istration against the Strike in St. Petersburg For More Pay and Other Things.

St. Petersburg, June 14.-A general strike of the electric street car employees of St. Petersburg began to-day. The me ndemand increased pay and a different arrangement of the shifts. The authorities declare they will not con-cede either point. Although the de-mands are purely economic, the strike has a political basis, and was arranged by the Social Democrats to test their organization and the moral effect on workmen generally.

HIS LAST LOOK.

What the Future Holds for Canada

Goldwin Smith has been telling us Goldwin Smith has been teiling us time and again these many years that "Canada's ultimate destiny is to fall into the hands of the United States of Amer-ica." And Canadians have invariably laughed at the warning. But let us take stock. Let us study portents and pos-sibilities.

Not since the days of Washington has the feeling of friendship between Canada and the United States been so close as it is at the present time. Every years sees the domestic and religious life of the two people more unified. The unthe two people more united. The unvirtlen laws governing household and social life in Canada have their origin not in the motherland, but in the United States of America, the coinage and postage systems of the two countries are similar and though descriptions may postage systems of the two countries are similar, and though descriptions may differ, cents and dollars have the same value, and in towns and cities along the frontier coinage of similar designation passes at par. True there is not as yet in Canada the same rage for the almighty dollar as in the neighboring republic, nor has divorce played such havoc with home ties, but in almost every other respect, saving in their political institutions, the two in their political institutions, the two peoples are one. Again, the number of railways crossing from one country to the other is growing fast and in every possible way social intercourse and busi-ness transactions are encouraged. If the fundamental principles of gov-ernment in the two countries differ con-siderably, experience considerably modisiderably, experience considerably modifies any prejudice which may have resulted from other surroundings. The adopted citizen finding himself in possession of the same liberties in which he has been schooled, soon becomes reconciled to his new surroundings. Already there are in the United States over a million of native born Canadians. I have been in the homes of Canadian people in New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Chicago, Denver, Omaha and San Francisco, and elsewhere, and I have never yet found one of these people regretting having changed from one country to the other.

At the rate at which people are going siderably, experience considerably modi-and I have gretting having changed from one countries. If the products of the business men of Detroit went free and unhampered into Canada, perhaps the flag would follow into that country. Similar views have been expressed by Boards of Trade both in Boston and New York.

Hitherto Canadians have been more than a million persons born and reared in the United States. In neither case have these people left their native land because they had any quarrel with its government. And finding both so familiar as far as the elements of free naturally ask, Why may we not be one, commercially and politically?

When the great western provinces of lanada outnumber in population the older eastern provinces, as they bid fair to do, they will have the larger representation at Ottawa. What, then, could be the position if a question like that of continental commercial union vere to come to the front? were to come to the front?

It has long since gone out from Washington that if Canada will join the republic in a tariff of equal measure against the world, the republic will join with Canada in putting an end to all tariff's between the Dominion and the United States. As years roll by the invitation is sure to be oft repeated, and no matter how much the loyal old casterners oppose, the will of the people must prevail. What heed will the western provinces, populated largely by those

Detroit, said:

"The problem of the future is, the government of America by Americans. In the working out of this problem I believe we must obliterate the imaginary line between the United States of America. I can see no research for the America and the Canadian states of America. I can see no reason for the division. I believe the flag bearing the Stars and Stripes must finally float over the whole continent. The intellectual energies of the country must be directed to the commercial union of the two countries. If the products of the business men of Detroit went free and unhampered into Canada, perhaps the flag would follow into that country.

DEATH PENALTY -AND CAPITAL CRIMES

Virginia is the latest of a considerable number of States to substitute electroution for hanging in the case of condemned criminals. New York was the first, and then Massachusetts, Ohio, and New Jersey. This method of legally killing murderers is considered an improvement on the old hanging method, and there is a general movement to adopt it. To some extent electrocution seems to be a sort of amelioration of hanging, and it is not fantastic to read in that the death penalty hand to be recistablished, and there is a general movement to adopt it. To some extent electrocution seems to be a sort of amelioration of hanging, and it is not fantastic to read in that the death penalty altoson. Several States in he union have already done so, and so capricious; inhabitants of Fiji, however, cannibalism was practised to an extent influential newspapers have suggested the to have been shared by white renegades who had settled among them.

CAPITAL OFFENCES.

CAPITAL OFFENCES.

In most of the countries where captal punishment is in vogue it is applied only in the case of murder in the first degree, although there are usually two or three other crimes for which it may be invoked. Treason is nearly everywhere punishable by death; and in most countries raple, and sometimes arson, is reckoned as terrible a crime. A century ago there were no fewer than 200 caputal crimes in England, among them such relatively trivial offences as stealing apples, counterfeiting, and forgery. Under Henry VIII., 72,000 thieves were hanged in England, and it is estimated that between the accession of William of Orange and the death of George III., 100,000 people were hanged. As recently as 1894, in the nited States, there were 25 capital offences under the military code of laws, 22 under the mailitary code of laws, 22 under the naval code, three under the extra-territorial jurisdiction of Consuls, and 17 under the civil code. Of course, these laws were dead letters; but to make assurance deaubly sure, they were abolished by the fifty-second Congress, and now there are only three crimes under the Federal Law of the Republic punishable by death.

MODES OF EXECUTION.

MODES OF EXECUTION.

From time immemorial a distinction has always been made between hanging and any other means of death, the former being considered the most disgraceful that could befall a man. Decapitation is "the gentleman's death," and some of the greatest rulers, and statesmen, and scientists of history have met their death at the hands of the headsman. At present China, France, and Germany are the only countries that thus dispose of their condemned criminals. In Mexico shooting is the method employed, and in Spain it is the garrote, which consists in the piercing of the spinad column by a screw. Every civilized country adopts the mode of death that it considers the most painless and certain; and there remains no trace of the savage spirit that sought to torture the condemned man to death. MODES OF EXECUTION.

CIVILIZATION ADVANCES.

In England prisoners were boiled alive in the middle ages, and there is a record of King Jonn having an offending clergyman encased in a garment of lead, wheer he died. The diabolical tortures of the Spanish Inquisition cannot be described without a shudder. Burnings and other hideous torments marked many religious persecutions. The rack and the teating of a body asunder by horses were recognized legal means of punishment for centuries. It is quite possible that our children's children will look back with equal horror upon the scaffolds of our day. The experience of Iowa is not reassuring, but the weight of evidence goes to show CIVILIZATION ADVANCES. e weight of evidence goes to show at not one prospective murderer out a hundred gravely contemplates the mishment his act will entail. He calpunishment his act will entail. He carculates on escaping scot free; and a prospect of life imprisonment would daunt him almost as certainly as that of death on the gallows, if he paused for a moment to ponder the matter.

MOBILIZING GERMAN ARMY.

System by Which Each Reservist Finds His Place and Regiments.

Kobody who has visited Germany can fail to have been struck by the large official signboards at the entry to each town or village.

These contain full information as to exactly which official in the community to apply to should the magic word "mobilize" be spoken. Wherever the German reservist may chance to be when the order to mobilize is given—assuming of course that, he is not out of the country—he has only given—assuming of course that, he is not out of the country—he has only to ask the first inhabitant or walk to the end of the village and look at born under flags not British, pay to any talk about loyalty to the mother country?

Moreover, the republics ever ready to pour its millions into Canada for the development of our almost unlimited natural resources, and make our country as prosperous as the United States.

The desirability of bringing the whole continent under one government has often been expressed and apparently is increasing among the leading citizens of the republic. Quite recently Governor Johnson, of Minnesster, etc. more important, will give him the money and the raffway pass to take him there. Arrived at his destination, he will find his uniform, arms and acoutrements piled neatly in a heap with a label bearing his name and regimental number on the top of the heap.

He has only to put it on and take his place among the comrades with whom he did his military service years ago. This destination was aryears ago. This destination was arranged upon many years back, and the exact time schedule for marching and railway journeys are compiled long since.—From Pearson's Weekly.

A long nose is perhaps the most of ficult. It is at variance with the present style of hair dressing, for one thing, since the pointed psyche knot sticking out in the back makes the profile most unattractive.

Neither may the hair be worn in a knot that drops very low on the neck, nor in a very high peak on the top of the head.

Low collars are difficult to adjust so that they wil' look well.

V-shaped chemisettes and dangling ornaments on the bodice are tabooed.

The person with the long nose should wear trim neckwear, while, conversely, the girl with the tip-tilted nose wears fluffy little bows and laces.

The_latter also, if she is wise, leaves alone severe, uncompromising hats, with trimming that sticks out straight, making a funny angle with her nose.

Curiously enough, most people give but seant attention to the matter of noses, but it is quite as important as
