AGE.

Treachery is a detestable fault : therefore let nothing tempt you to betray a secret confined to your honor. What if the friend who once trusted you, and told you all the secrets of his heart, has become your enemy? You are still bound to keep your word inviolate, and preserve locked in your heart the secrets confidentially made known to you. A man of principle will never betray an enemy. He holds it a Christian duty never to reveal what in good faith was placed in his keeping. While the Albanians were at war with Philip, King of Macedon, they intercepted a letter which the King had written to his wife Olympia. It was returned unopened, that it might not be read in publictheir laws forbidding them to reveal secret. Among the Egyptians it was a criminal offence, to divulge a secret. A priest, who had been found guilty of offence, was ordered to leave the country. Have you another's secret in your keeping? Then reveal it not for the world. A confiding friend may tel you a hundred things, which, if whispered abroad, would bring him into contempt and ridicule, and injure his character through life. No one is so upright that he may not have committed some ungentlemanly act, or some impure offence, which may have been done years ago, before the individual's character was formed, and before he had a wife and children. Would it not be a po anation of the most social duties, in a fit of anger, or out of malice or revenge, to divulge a secret like this? A man's enemies would not care whether it was the fault of his thoughtless youth or his maturer years, so long as they could make a handle of it to his injury, and thus effect their purpose. Be careful then, never, under any consideration whatever to repeat what has been whisp ered to you in the confidence of friendship. A betrayer of secrets if fit only for every day, my boy. Stand one side and the society of the low and vile.

Bow to make the Garden Pay.

The garden pays well, even with hand labor. It would pay much better if the main burden of the cultivation were put upon the muscles of the horse. But the saving of cost in cultivation is only a small part of the benefit of the long rowed arrangement. It would lead to a much more frequent and thorough cultivation of our garden crops. Most farm ers neglect the garden for their field crops. The advantage of a frequent stirring of the surface soil to growing crops is greatly underestimated. It is said that it pays to hoe cabbage every morning before breakfast during the early part of the season. We can testify to Get on intimate terms with yourself, my the great advantage of cultivation every week. This frequent breaking of the crust admits of a freer circulation of the views you will be a stronger, better, air among the roots below, and makes purer man. Don't forget this, Telemac-writes this from Antigonish, N. S., who the most of the dews and rain that fall. hus, and it will do you good. The manufacture of plant food goes on more rapidly, and to a certain extent, cultivation is a substitute for manure. Another benefit of the long-row system would be the almost certain enlargement of the fruit and vegetable garden, and a better supply of these fruits for the table. This, we believe, would have an impormore rapidly, and to a certain extent, tant sanitary influence in every house-

The Origin of "News."

It is commonly supposed that the word "news" is derived from the adjective "new," but this proposition is wrong. In former times it was a prevawrong. In former times it was a prevalent custom to put over the periodical publications of the day the initial letters of the compass, as above, this importing of the compass, as above, this importing the compass of the day the initial letters is better than "grunting it out." following advice to maidens :-

"If a man wipes his feet on a doormay be sure he will make a good domestic husband. If a man, in snuffing the candles, snuffs them out, you may be sure he will make a stupid husband. If a man puts his hankerchief on his knees whilst taking his tea, you may be sure he will be a prudent husband In the saine way always mistrust the man who will not take the last piece of toast or tea cake, but prefers waiting for the dy the night before." next warm betch. It is not unlikely he will make a greedy, selfish husband, with whom you will enjoy no 'brown' at dinner, nor crust at tea, no peace whatever at home. The man, my dears, who wears goloshes and is careful about wrapping himself up we'l before venturing into the night air, not unfrequently makes invalid husband that mostly stops at home, and is easily comforted with slops. The man who watches the kettle and prevents it boiling over, will not fail my dears, in his married state in exercising the same care, in always keeping the pot boiling. The man who doesn't take tea. ill-treats the cat, takes snuff, and stands with his back to the fire, is a brute whom I would not advise you, my dears, to marry under any consideration, either love or money, but most decidedly not for love. But the man who, when ten is over is discovered to have none, is sure to make the best husband. Patience like his deserves being rewarded with the best of wives, and the best of mothers in law. My dears, when you meet with such a man, do the utmost to marry him. -In the severest winter he would not mind going to bed first."

Get away from the crowd a little while let the world run by while you get acquainted with yourself, and see what kind of a fellow you are; Ask yourself hard questions about yourself; find out all you can about yourself. Ascertain from original sources if you are really the manner of a man people say you are, find out if you are always honest ; if you always tell the square perfect truth in ousiness deals ; if your life is as good and upright at 11 o'clock at night as it is at noon; if you are as sound a temperance man on a fishing expedition as you are at a Sunday-school picnic; if you are as at a Sunday-school picnic; if you are as grown from those that have never fruit-good a boy when you go to Chicago as od.
