CLAIMS EDUCATION IS MASTERY OF LIVING

Sir Henry Newbolt Lectures in City On "Literature and Life."

ABOLISH STUFFING Asserts Present Day System of

Gaining Knowledge Is To Cram the Mind. "Education cannot be education if t does not deal directly with life." This was the fundamental principle of education laid down last evening by Sir Henry Newbolt, eminent English educationist, author and poet, addressing a gathering in the Maiestic Theatre, which taxed the building to its capacity. Again and again in the course of his lecture. which had been labelled in advance "Literature and Life," he was applauded to the echo for the views which he has come to give in Can-ada on behalf of the National Council of Education. "It doesn't matter much what you call it," said the tall, aesthetic, and possibly a trifle severe looking visitor humorously. "It all amounts to about the same thing, whether you call it education, life, literature, patriotism, or literature and life. I will say the same thing in the end.

"Life is what everybody wants to be doing, with the exception of a few pessimistic or would-be suicides. Everyone else agrees it is the one good thing in the world, the greatest blessing in the world. Patriotism is a form of life, and has been the ex-pression of the greatest souls of Engand, from Chaucer to Rupert Brookes, or the last soldier who died in the war who wrote poetry.
"Literature is a form of life, and one is never so much a part of the eternal

You may go down to your cabin and be as comfortable as you please, but if the boat goes down to you will go down too. One of our most common sayings over in England is "All in the same boat." That is one thing which is brought home on shipboard, the fate of all. You learn by experience, the first, last and greatest thing said 1900 years ago, that men cannot live to the measure of reprisal, except as a last resort, owing to the fact that the world is might. The tis aduty to be powerful, and to despise the weak, and that the only it is a duty to be powerful, and to despise the weak, and that the only right in the world is might. Walter T. Hubbard of Saginaw Placed On Trial For Murder of His Twelve-Year-Old Daughter-Prosecution Will Endeavor To Show Motive For Crime.

Saginaw, Feb. 24.—The charge that Walter T. Hubbard murdered his own daughter, Marguerite, 12 years old, because she knew he had killed his father-in-law, Matthew Shaeffer, in August, 1919, was made by Assistant Prosecutor Crane, when the trial of Hubbard covered evidence.

Mrs. Hubbard and her daughter Marguerite, then 8 years old, were the only persons in the house when Shaeffer was found dead. It is the prosecution's claim that Shaeffer was killed so that Hubbard could collect $4,600 life insurance Shaeffer carried. Crane said the prosecution had uncovered evidence. by Assistant Prosecutor Crane, when the trial of Hubbard was resumed in circuit court here yesterday. Judge Snow ordered the jury from the courtroom while attorneys argued the introduction of testimony against Hubbard relating to the Schaeffer Crane charged in his argument that one Sunday morning in August of 1919 Hubbard arose early and went into the room where Shaeffer slept; that a few minutes later Hubbard left home, saying he was going fishing; that later in the morning Mrs. Geytrude Hubbard, his wife, found Shaeffer, who was her foster-father, dead in bed, with gas pouring went into the room where Shaeffer slept; that a few minutes later Hubbard left home, saying he was going fishing; that later in the morning Mrs. Geptrude Hubbard, his wife, found Shaeffer, who was her fosterfather, dead in bed, with gas pouring from a pipe recently installed.

The defence asserts Hubbard is being tried for murder of his daughter, and that another case cannot be brought up at this trial. It is the claim of the prosecution that the Shaeffer case presents a motive for the slaying of Marguerite, and as such should be admitted.

Crane said the prosecution had un-covered evidence which tends to show that Marguerite had informashow that Marguerite had information in regard to the mysterious death of Shaesfer, and that she prattled of it to her schoolmates. Hubbard, then fearing that circumstances surrounding Shaesfer's death would be exposed, killed Marguerite and cut his throat, to make it appearates the temperated suicide the prosethat he attempted suicide, the prose-

A strong reason advanced for making the idea of education in Canada and throughout the British Empire coincide with every phase of life was because of the value of the British ideal and beliefs in life to the world.

A plea was made for giving prominence to the study of the best in English literature in evolving a national ideal of education in Canada, because of the deep, powerful, enriching experience only made pos compartments, three at first, for reading, writing and arithmetic. This was the method of education which Sir Henry Newbolt would see abolished. He would put in its place the study of life.

In a more ideal scheme of education he would give a large place to the study of the best of literature, the nterpreter of human life, the key to exactly their temper and mind and exactly their temper and mind and expressed all their feelings, personal

A thrust was taken serious, if humorous, at the comparatively low salaries paid teachers, compared with remuneration received by people doing work of much less significance "The first thing that has got to be ione in connection with education," leclared Sir Henry Newbolt, "is to the welfare of humanity. When teachers discovered they were great, in consequence, said the speaker, they went into better paying lines. Possibly they went into politics. And at this point, Sir Henry Newbolt took occasion to rap politicians, and "dull old gentlemen, who, never having done anything but eat, drink, and prewho, never having side at tiresome board meetings, are put into cabinets and make a muddle of foreign politics.
