In the House of Lords this evening Earl In the House of Lords this evening Earl Stratford de Redcliffe moved for a copy of the Alabama treaty. He said the Government had shown the greatest conciliation in its desire to maintain peace, and he trusted that when negotiations were resumed between the two countries, a calmer spirit than that which succeeded Sumnet's speech would show its influence, and that the Americans would feel that there were demands that England could not entertain.

Lord Clarendon regretted the unavoidable delay in furnishing the papers called for. He traced the history of the negotiations, and said the House of Commons was not entitled to assume that a majority of the Senate and people of the United States sup-ported Sumner's demand. He was not aware of the nature of Motley's instructions, but he hoped what had occurred would pro mote, and not binder negotiations, as the terms that England was willing to concede were well known. A. H. Stephens, of Georgia, has a letter in one of the Washington papers to-day, in reply to some criticisms on his history of the rebellion; he takes a very gloomy view of the situation, and argues that we are drifting to consolidation into an empire. Nothing, he says can prevent the final estabishment of imperialism, but a determined effort on the part of the people to preserve free institutions. The remedy, he says, is not in secession; that was tried and found insufficient; it must be at the bellot box. He calls upon the people of the several States to seriously consider whether they will maintain free institutions or accept imperials ism.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Old Wounds, Sores, and Ulcers.—Daily experience confirms the fact which has triumphed over opposition for thirty years—viz, that no means are known equal to Holloway's remedies for curing bad legs, sores, wounds, diseases of the skin, erysipelas, abseesses, burns, scalds, and, in truth all cases where the skin is broken. To cure these infirmities quickly is of primary importance, as the compulsory confinement indoors weakens the general health. The ready means of cure are found in Holloway's Ointment and Pills, which heal the sores and expel their cause. In the very worst cases, the Ointment has succeeded in affecting a perfect cure after every other means has failed of giving any relief. Desperate cases best display its virtues.
