The New York Herald is stating far too mildly a case which will soon press itself upon the public in overwhelming proportions. Money is accumulating, where shall it be invested ? In stocks ? "Hardly ever." if the investors are above the grade of -well, let us say, super-excellent fools. Shall it be in pork or wheat ? Not much, we should say, looking to recent developments. To come a little nearer homeshall it be in Canadian loan companies Doubtful, because those that are good investments have no shares for sale; and, as for the shares that are for sale, why, you can do better vourself.

The practical inference is that there is a splendid opportunity for real estate investment by individuals. Supposing that there should be, real estate would only be recovering a part of its own, what it was cheated out of when stocks grabbed the market, and held it. If real estate was to come up it would only be a case of the king getting his own again, and the right king too. Things are going that way.

THE DISCONTENT IN SPAIN.

It is not easy to arrive at a consistent estimate of the movement which seems to have brought about the crisis through which Spain is now passing. It is still more difficult to gauge accurately the causes which have set it on foot and enrolled selves among its adherents such very different people as the Catalonian manufacturers, the Urgelan peasants and the workmen and Urgelan peasants and the workmen and idlers of Gerona and Figueras. It saves trouble to brand the whole business with the damning epithet of "revolutionist" or As to reading, the teachers seem to agree "anarchist." But it is hard to believe that there is not some real ground of complaint sons that to read means to recite aloud a there is not some real ground of complaint at the bottom of a movement sustained by such an array of very diverse forces. The Spanish people are, in the main, not apt to concern themselves with politics, but at this moment there is so much distress in many parts of Spain that any political agitation may be able to find strong support. Anarchy, disorder of any kind, is an evil however brought about. Where, however, the large majority of the disorderly agents are peasant farmers one cannot help thinking that they have been driven to it by very potent grievances. It is too well known that the ideas attributed to the International Workmen's association have found many and warm supporters throughout Spain, Seville has been for more than ten years haneycombed by secret societies. So far as these societies had any political or social aims they were confined to the towns. Sometimes they were mixed up with brigandage, never disreputable, in the peninsula. and then some of the rural population, especially among the mountaineers, furnished contingents. Contrabandistas have been even popular in every land not very advanced in political life. They have in variably maintained most friendly relations with the agricultural peasantry. But the very vocation of the contrabandiata in-posed upon him the role of a political radi-cal, at least, and he was a ready sgent for enlightening the rural population upon their wrongs. The last three years were most unfavorable for the farmers oxing to prevailing drought. Then came terrific raias and floods. The agricultural districts suffered worst. The laborers began to advanced in political life. They have in-Toronto might find a suggestion or two in the following, from the New York Herald : The several hundred distinguished educators who were in session at Ocean Grove should not have loaded themselves with so should not have loaded themselves with so many essays and discussions on fine abstrac-tions that they could not find time to de-nounce some of the glaring imperfections of the public school system. It is quite grati-fying to boys and girls who wish to study music, the modern languages and higher mathematics that they are enabled to do so for nothing in the public schools; but as only a limited number of pupils pursue these studies, and the salary of a teacher of any of the higher branches is several times at great as that of the young woman who teaches arithmetic and geography, the times at great as that of the young woman who teaches arithmetic and geography, the parents of the great majority of children have a right to grumble. As a rule, the lower the classes the greater the number of pupils under a single teacher. The reverse should be the case. When two or three score of little children recite in chorus or by rote to a single teacher these who are lazy or slow of comprehension learn about as much as if they were playing in the streets If extra teachers can be afforded they should be placed in rooms and departments where the pupils are least able to learn them
