Mercantile Summary.

An editor, having received many dunning letters from his tailor, at last wrote upon one, from habit, doubtless, "This correspondence must now cease."

Mr. Wm. McIntosh, of Springfield, has purchased, says the Free Press, the general store formerly owned by Mr. H. Arkell, of Aylmer, and purposes opening up business there.

On Friday last, the Bennet Furnishing Manufacturing Co. assigned to Mr. H. E. Nelles in consequence of the suspension of the Bank of London, the president of which was the leading stockholder in the company. The same president, Henry Taylor, largely owned the London and Petrolia Barrel Co., which is also in difficulties owing to his absconding and assignment.

SIMPLICITY of action in a boiler-feeder is the quality most generally desired. This, it is claimed, is secured by the McAvity improved boiler feeder. The mechanism of this feeder is very simple, it can be easily and readily repaired when necessary, and it has an improved strainer attached which excludes gravel. Messrs. Rice Lewis & Son, of this city, are offering the instrument for sale.

The project of a memorial volume of the Colonial Exhibition, devoted mainly to Canadian affairs, is being carried out by Mr. E. B. Biggar, of Montreal. It is to give statistics showing the industrial and agricultural progress of the country, and its capabilities for taking a prominent future share in foreign trade. The publisher intends to send out a thousand copies to legislative and public libraries, boards of trade, chambers of commerce, and similar institutions in Great Britain and every British colony, as well as a few to France, Germany and the United States. Mr. Biggar is a thorough Canadian and knows how to do such things as this well. We shall be glad to hear that his enterprise is successful.
