

Caroline Martin

B.Sc., Ph.D., Advisor - Science and Technology, Canadian High Commission, London, England.

Dr. Caroline Martin is the Manager of the Science and Technology Programme at the Canadian High Commission in London, England, since November 1998.

- 1995 - 1998 Associate Lecturer in Chemistry at the University of Cambridge, and Bye-Fellow of Selwyn College. Responsible for various teaching, research and administrative tasks, including the coordination of an EUR&D network and promoting the public understanding of science. Co-author of over 40 scientific publications.
- 1994 - 1995 Post-Doctoral Research Fellow, University College London, Department of Chemistry. Responsible for research in the areas of homo- and heterogeneous catalysis.

Educated at The University of Edinburgh, Scotland, UK (Ph.D. in Inorganic Chemistry, 1994) and The University of Hertfordshire, England, UK (B.Sc. Hons in Combined Science; Chemistry and Manufacturing Systems, 1990). Born St. Albans, Hertfordshire, UK on 19 March 1969.

Robert N. Webb

B.Sc., Counsellor - Science and Technology, Canadian Embassy, Washington

Born in London, England, Mr. Webb graduated in 1968 from the University of Leicester with a B.Sc. (Hons) in Mathematics and Economics. After spending a number of years in large technology companies such as TRW, Westinghouse, GBC, LSI Logic and Commodore and Northern Technologies - where he occupied the positions of VP and Director International Business, he joined the Canadian Government in the Department of Foreign Affairs. Prior to being appointed Counsellor (S&T) at the Canadian Embassy in Washington, his previous five years with Foreign Affairs were in the U.S. Midwest where he served as Canadian Liaison Officer at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio and the National Center for Manufacturing Sciences, Ann Arbor, MI and as Deputy Program Manager at the Canadian Consulate in Detroit.