

INDEX.

V.

- Van Groesbeck, Mr. his character, 230; an intimate friend of Colonel Burr's, 231.
- Vermont, its population, 195.
- Verplanck point, on the east side of the North river, 243; near this place the union of the French and American armies was formed in 1781, ib.
- Verplisnck, Mr. at Verplanck point, his unfriendly reception of the Author, 242.
- Virginia, slave laws milder than in other countries, 43; its courts of justice, 43; public debt, 44; injudicious grants of lands, 45; unprovided with arms for its militia, 48; schools about to be erected, ib.; qualifications of the candidates for the house of delegates, 49; governors, justices of the peace, &c. 50; religion, its freedom, ib.; extensive grant of Queen Elizabeth to Sir Walter Raleigh, ib.; mongrel negroes in greater numbers than in Georgia or Carolina, 82; general observations, 111, 112; its exports, 114; its population, 115; its extent, ib.; character of its inhabitants, 117; its canals, 121; roads, ib.
- Virginians, their veneration for the French army, 29; their politeness and civility to each other, 37; character of the, 117.

U.

- United States, situation of, previous to the year 1787, 470, 471, 472; its constitution, 472 to 485; no religious test required, ib.; debates in the convention of the several states on the adoption of the constitution, 497 to 501; table of the periods when the several states accepted it, and how it passed the different conventions, 502; new articles proposed to be added to the convention and submitted to the states, 502, 503, 504; general observations on the constitution, 505 to 510 inclusive; state of parties from the adoption of the constitution to the present period, 511 to 527; states added since, 527; election of president and vice president, 528, 529; laws relative to that election, 529 to 532; including states in which the electors are named by the people, 583; and by the legislature, ib.; remarks on the same, 533, 534, 535; summary account of the choice of president, 536; of vice president, 537; the ceremony of, 538; departments of the executive power in the government, 539; its judicature, 539, 540, 541; its criminal jurisprudence, 541 to 543; its civil jurisprudence, 543, 544; department of the state, 543 to 549; finances, their history and present situation, taxes, revenues, &c. 549 to 559; its debts, 558; its banks, 559 to 564; Author's opinion of, 561; statement of the affairs of, 563; its dividends and prices of funds, 564; table of tonnage, 564, 565, 566; its duties and drawbacks in general, 567; on wines and spirits, 571; on various articles, 571 to 574; including exports and imports to England, 582, 595; its commerce, 583; exports in general, 587, 589; trade, 597; remarks on its trade, 601 to 608; dealings in land, 608 to 619; military establishment, 619; of what it consists, 620; pay of the, 621; pay of the militia and cavalry, 623, 624; fortifications, 625; sums raised for ship building, 620, 627; expences of the war department, 620; its connections with the Indians, 635 to 638; the trade with them and capital employed, 638; civilization of the neighbouring Indians, 641; naturalization in the United States, 642 to 644; enumeration and population, 645; extent of its territory, 646; its coin and division of monies, 648, 649; climate, 652; its effects on the inhabitants, ib.; common traits of character, 657; observations on the cultivation of letters, 659; education, 660, 661; observations by the Author, 663.

W.

- Warwick, village of, 276.
- Warton, Doctor's farm, description of, 238; its trees, 249; his character, ib.; his agricultural system, 260.
- Washington, George, a statue to his memory, in the capitol at Richmond, 33.
- Well, Mr. account of his revenue from his timber, 265.
- Westfield, its soil and population, 211; its soil mostly meadow, ib.
- Wheat, produce of, at Stockbridge, 212; at Kinderhook landing, 217; at Hudson, 219; at Brandywine mills, 253.
- Wheat, produce of, 100 bushels, 254.
- Williams, Mr. a candidate as member of the house of representatives, 213.
- Williams, Roger, a minister of the gospel, banished from Rhode Island to Salem for religious principles, 141; again from them to Mothawick, ib.
- Williams, Mr. at Marlborough, account of his family and farm, 205; its produce, workmen s