

“ thing arranged for the practice of the most perfect freedom from
“ worldly passions, and they preserve among themselves so admirable a method to promote their holiness, that it would be difficult to add anything else.”

I hope, my Reverend Father, that your zeal will often lead you to pray to the God of mercy for these new converts, to the end that He would preserve them in that state of fervor in which He has placed them by His grace. With every sentiment of respect,

END OF PART I.