there were last year, says A. H. Frankland of the city's assessment department. He attributes the circumstance to the swelling values of real estate and the general prosperity which has placed the average property holder in a complacent frame of mind. Criticism of the work of the assessors is most common in times of depression, in Mr. Frankland's opinion.

The figures for the Fourth Ward are significant. While there were all told, 232 appeals in the ward this year as against 208 in 1904, it must be taken into consideration that this year ias seen the introduction of the system of business assessment. The bulk of appeals have been against the levy upon income and the protests against as sessments on realty have been very light.
