

Here Are Appropriate New Waists For Fall Wear

The ones above illustrated are just $2.00, but in fact they are WORTH MORE, worth much more when compared with prevailing Waist standards.

We say "appropriate for fall wear," and we mean just that, for not only did they just arrive, but it was only a few days ago that the Styles were developed.

There are many advantages in buying Blouses here AL-WAYS, and not the least of these is the fact that because of our closer co-operation with the makers the NEW styles always reach us but a very brief time after they have left the designer's studio.

Another decided advantage that we want you to remember is that you pay the identical price here for your Blouses that you would pay in the largest centres of popula-an incident which happened in the ome of a friend of mine. It was in Northern Michigan lumbering dis- sight rict, where the Smiths kept a roominghouse, accommodating thirty oc-cupants. During the fortnight's ab-sense of the proprietor, Mrs. Smith's sense of the proprietor, Mrs. Smith's niece of sixteen summers, came from her far-off home on vacation. Timid at the number of strange faces, Grace sought her room upon arrival, her aunt accompanying her in order to continue the chat about the dear home folks.

Footfalls frequently passed the bedroom door as one or another of the odgers sought their sleeping quarters on the upper floor.

One, with shuffling step and puffing breath, caused the proprietress to smile. "That's Old Man Brown," she said by way of explanation; "he's rather said by way of explanation; "he's rather erascible, and being heavily built and asthmatic, grumbles a good deal at the long stairs. Something of an agitator, too. he is, and would enjoy stirring up discord." Opening the door a short way, she called out sternly:

"A little less noise, if you please." and instantly the fat object near the top of the dark stairs was quiet.

Noises Again.

Grace soon having fallen into a sound sleep, her aunt slipped across the hall.

leep, her aunt slipped across the hall o her own room, hoping that nothing would disturb her favorite amid these from Brown's room, restless bumpings, with puffs of exertion and sniffs of seeming disapproval. Evidently during the "boss" absence Old Man was taking liberties in his fit

The following is a true account of investigate, Mrs. Smith found the door of incident which happened in the lamp which had been lighted at nightlamp which had been lighted at night-fall, shedding its rays on a strange sight. All of the bedding, stripped off the bed, was in the centre of the floor, and there about to wrap himself in the fleecy blanket, was not Brown, but Mike, the pet bear of the establishment, preparing for a nap.

In his master's absence Mike had been growing restless and sullen, owing to his chain, and having by some unknown means become released, slipped unseen into the hall, and mounted the two flights of stairs, puffing and grunting. The sound of Mrs. Smith's familiar voice had quieted him for the timebeing.

At the discovery of Bruin's presence no sound of alarm was given, the woman's busy wits working out strategic plans for his quiet removal. A roomer returning late was pressed into service, and Mike was coaxed, good naturedly down the two flights of stairs, almost to the outer door, when the animal suddenly espied in a large mirror on the wall, his own reflection, which pleased him mightily. Back and forth, to and fro, he paraded, now on all fours, now erect, preening himself like any dandy. All might yet have gone well had not his claws caught in a chenille table drape upon which rested a lighted keroense lamp. There was a crash, darkness and awful stillness. Then quick as a flash Mike was pushed out, the door slammed too, and bolted. In a rage Mike tore and clawed the door. door slammed too, and bolted. In a rage Mike tore and clawed the door. Then turned to seek entrance elsewhere, and one of the roomers, possessing the only weapon in the house, shot the beast dead.

It was an excited gathering that in the morning learned for the first time of the strange happenings of the night. So quietly had Mike been expelled that few had heard any stir in the bedroom directly above the one in which Grace lay dreaming sweetly of home.

CORN ROAST ON THURSDAY

May Take Over Hunt's Flats as Park For Women and Children.

A new figure in London Y. W. C. A. circles made her first appearance yesterday when Mrs. Mattie Rose Crawford arrived in the city to take up her duties as Y. W. C. A. industrial secretary. Mrs. Crawford, a former teacher-trainer in the Toronto Normal Model School, and author of several textbooks used in the schools, has had a wide experience among young girls, so that her work here is bound to be successful. Normal school students will be familiar with her name on the title page of "Guide to Nature Study." She has also written "Public School Nature Study" and "Methods in Bible Study," as well as assisted in compiling other well-known school books. London has already become familiar with her name through her husband, the Rev. John Crawford of Chelsea Green Presbyterian Church.

Importance of Factory Girl. In addition to being keouly interested in girl life, Mrs. Crawford is herself somewhat of a student of the newer problems of industrial life. She be-lieves the industrial worker to be one

A Comfortable Work Apron.

2841—Here is a model easy to develop and one that shows an apron which will do service as a housedress. It is especially nice for warm days, has no cumbersome sleeves, and is easily and quickly adjusted. Seersucker, drill, khaki, gingham, percale, lawn, alpaca and sateen are good for this style.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: Smally extra large, 44-45 inches bust measure. Size medium requires 4½ yards of 36-inch material, with 1¾ yards of banding, 2¼ inch wide, for neck and front. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

Problems of industrial worker to be one of the most important factors in the life of the day.

Referring to this she says:

"The girl knitting stockings in the factory is as important to the country as the professional nurse at the bedside or any other woman worker, seem she however important. It is with this fact that I wish to impress the girls and the public."

Mrs. Crawford takes a broad view of her work. Not only does she intend to work among the industrial women of the city, but it will be her aim to interest the public at large in her work, and as it is rumored that she is an excellent public speaker, her task will not be a very difficult one. The industrial section of Y. W. C. A. work is entirely dependent upon public support, and Mrs. Crawford hopes for support both as to suggestions for her work and financially. as to suggestions for her work and financially.

Brew your coffee, not boil it

WHY is it the coffee some people make is always bitter? This shell of the coffee bean contains valuable aromatic oils, also bitter substances. When you boil your coffee you not only boil out the oils, but the bitter substances as well. When you brew coffee by simply pouring furiously boiling water on it—then standing it in a hot place for ten minutes, you get perfect coffee because only the oils are extracted. You get most satisfaction when you use
