MR. HARRIMAN AND HIGH FIN-

Because Mr. E. H. Harriman has returned to New York in precarious health, Wall-street is disturbed, investors and speculators are nervous and bulletins indicative of his physical condition are awaited with feverish impatience and are immediately followed by stock market fluctuations. Of late years Mr. Harriman, his doings and intentions have occupied more space in United States metropolitan journals than any other of its notable public men, not excepting even the late and present presidents. He has come to be regarded as typical of his time, the apotheosis of an ambition that seeks power thru methods as ruthless, ckless of moral restrictions, as indifferent to wreck and ruin as that of any war captain who ever waded thru slaughter to a throne. Yet, to all appearance, this is the kind of success that appeals to-day to many people of the republic, that is held up for the emulation of the young and ardent spirits and exhibited as the flower of
