

THE EVENING TIMES, ST. JOHN, N. B., MONDAY, MAY 6, 1907.

DOWLING BROS.

The Largest Retail Distributors of Ladies' Coats, Jackets and Blouse Waists in the Maritime Provinces.

LADIES' COATS AND SKIRTS.

Been so busy lately we've had little to say about these garments, still we lead the way in the Mantle business. The sales have been very, very large and we've heard but one opinion from the many ladies who have purchased here; all say our stock is the fullest, best and most stylish hereabouts -- it is larger and better than any 'round town. Have you seen our smart, stylish

SHORT JACKET at $6.90

It is a New York model--an ideal spring style, smart, brisk and mannish. We have it in different cloths and qualities up to $12.00. We have also a charming assortment of specially designed for street or tourist wear, artistic in design and tailored in a perfect manner. Ladies' Skirts from $2.90 to $12.90

The Fashionable Long Coat, from $7.90 to $16.90

DOWLING BROTHERS,

95 and 101 King Street.

Men's Russian Calf

Oxford Ties

"Invictus" Make.

Men's Gun Metal Calf, Oxford Ties, "Invictus" Make, Handsome Shoes.

Waterbury & Rising,

KING STREET UNION STREET.

Carpets, Oilcloths, Linoleums, Lace Curtains, Roller Blinds, and General Housefurnishings. Lowest Prices in St. John. Let us measure your rooms.

S. W. McMACKIN,

335 MAIN STREET, 'Phone Main 600.

Now! It is 55 Charlotte where Anderson & Co., are showing a nifty line in HATS and CAPS.

Anderson's Special $2.00 Derbies are without exception the best value in the city. Good lookers, good shapes, easy on the head. From all the best manufacturers.

Pure Fur Felt Derbies, at $2.00. All colors in Soft and Flexible Hats.

NEW STAND:

ANDERSON & CO., 55 Charlotte Street.

APPLES!

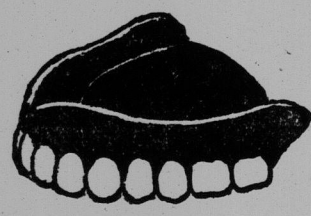

re Carload.

TO ARRIVE:

Nonpareils.

sound stock. at once.

J. W. Ltd.

$5.00.

BEST VALUE EVER OFFERED.

We Make the Best Gold Crown in the City.

Teeth without Plates $5.00

Gold Filling from $1.00

Silver and other Filling from 50c

Teeth Extracted Without Pain FREE

Consultation FREE

THE FAMOUS HALL METHOD.

Boston Dental Parlor.

WHEN ST. JOHN BALL PLAYERS WENT TO DEFEAT IN BANGOR

Story of An Old Time Ball Game Played in Bangor on July 4, 1876, Between Bangor Orients and Mutuals of St. John.

(Bangor Commercial.)

The Commercial has received a letter from Charles F. Olive of the St. John Times asking that it publish the account of the baseball game which was played in this city, July 4, 1876, between the Bangor Orients and St. John Mutuals. As there is considerable local interest in happenings of these early days, the Commercial takes pleasure in publishing the complete story which was printed in the Commercial of July 5, 1876.

As far as the Commercial can ascertain, a number of members of the Bangor Orients are still alive. Fleming is in San Francisco, Ball at Bucksport, Eugene M. Hersey died recently, and David J. McGraw has a grocery store at the corner of Grove and Garland streets, and Fred Woodbury is a railway mail clerk, while the other members of that famous nine cannot be located.

The account was as follows: Perhaps the most exciting feature of yesterday's entire programme was the match game of baseball between the Orients of Bangor and the Mutuals of St. John, for a silver ball, offered by the city of Bangor.

Somewhere or other the people got an inkling that the game would be a very hotly contested one, and, as a result, 200 people, in carriages and on foot, gathered to witness the sport. The carriages occupied the streets and "outfield," while the pedestrians crowded close to the lines of the diamond, on the third and first base sides. The St. John visitors occupied a position at the side of the catcher's stand and opposite the scores. The grounds were not in excellent condition, but were, nevertheless, much better than formerly. During the forenoon savant had been distributed in places.

The Orients won the toss and sent the Mutuals to the bat. Each club scored one on the first innings.

The Mutuals went in on their second innings, and, through unfortunate playing on the side of the Orients, succeeded in making five scores. The Orients took their half of the innings in a blank.

Again the Mutuals took up the bat and succeeded in entering five more scores before the third man was out. The Orients went in for another one, two, three--out.

On the fourth innings the Orients held the Mutuals down to one score, and by hard work made three for themselves.

The game now stood 10 to 4 in favor of the St. John boys, and Bangoreans began to grow down-hearted. How our boys were going to pick up they couldn't see--but they picked up, nevertheless. The Mutuals, confident and happy, went in on their fifth. But alas for them, the Orients had commenced business in earnest and without adding a score to the list, our provincial cousins gave up the bat to the Orients. By good playing on the part of the Orients and errors by the Mutuals, our boys succeeded in making five scores. The shouts, yells and hurrahs which greeted this unmistakable impression on the part of the Orients--was deafening.

THIS EVENING.

The Every Day Club meets as usual. Kirk Brown is The Christian at the Opera House.

New programme at the Nickel.

Band at Victoria Roller Rink.

Moving pictures and illustrated songs in Wonderland.

Band at the Queen's Rollaway.

Monthly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Seamen's Mission, at 184 Prince street, at 8 o'clock.

Annual inspection of both companies Scots Boys' Brigade in St. Stephen's school room at 745 o'clock.

Painters' Union, monthly meeting.

Cygnets Co. U. R. K. of P. meet in the armory Germain street, at 8 o'clock.

No. 3 R. C. A. will meet at 8 o'clock for drill, Fort Howe.

THE WEATHER

Forecasts--Moderate to fresh westerly to southerly winds, fair today, light rain on Tuesday.

Synopsis--Unseasonably cold weather still prevails generally, winter temperatures obtaining. Fresh westerly to southerly, and to easterly winds, moderate to fresh. Sable Island, west, 20 miles, clear, Point Lepreau, south wind, 12 miles at 1 P. M.

LOCAL WEATHER REPORT AT NOON.

Monday, May 6, 1907.

Highest temperature during last 24 hours 56.

Lowest temperature during last 24 hours 26.

Temperature at noon 50.

Humidity at noon 75.

Barometer at noon 30.1 (sea level) and 29.8 (at St. John's).

Wind at noon--Direction south, velocity 18 miles per hour.

Same date last year--Highest temperature 65; lowest, 27. Showery.

D. L. HUTCHINSON, Director.

THE KNOCKER

THE TELEPHONE SERVICE.

On page 3 of the new telephone directory issued to subscribers by the New Brunswick Telephone Company, Ltd., the following paragraphs appear under the caption of "Rules for Calling Subscribers Connected with St. John and Suburban exchanges":

"When the office is called the operator will say 'number'.

"You will then give the name of the exchange and the number of the subscriber wanted."

"The operator in all cases will repeat the number and name of the exchange required."

"If the line is found in use the operator will answer 'Line busy'. Otherwise she will make the connection and the way will be open for conversation as soon as the subscriber answers the call."

That is the way it reads in the book. That is the way telephone solicitors will tell you the service will act--if they are soliciting you to have a "phone placed in your office or residence."

Looks real nice and convenient, doesn't it? Seems as if all you have to do to enjoy all the benefits of a "phone is to pay your subscription promptly, have the "phone installed and then sit back with your feet on your desk and wait for the bell to ring.

That's what you quite naturally have the right to expect, but what you get is another story.

You do your part of it all right, and taking down the receiver you listen for the word "Number." Actually it comes in a feminine tone and with an air of importance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "That's Main 4114," and the answer comes back "No; this is Lemon 23." Then for the first time you realize you have been stung by the young lady with the haughty voice.

Again you follow directions and after a brief wait you hear "Hello." When you ask for your number someone says "Why don't you ring off." As you attempt to explain a sharp "Brrrrr-burr-burr" rings in your ear and, thoughtfully, you replace the receiver on the hook and go and kick the cat. After you have said a few things and have mastered our courage to try it again you address the maiden of the chilly tones and at last you get the connection. For a few seconds all goes well, but when your friend at the other end of the wire is about to supply the information for which you phoned him, his voice suddenly stops and you hear nothing. Then you again call the central office and say, "Parlor me, Central, but I am afraid you cut us off." In an instant your ear is almost frozen to the receiver by the chilly reply which comes back, "I did not cut you off, your 'phone is still connected." With a sigh you--but what's the use. Every user of a "phone can supply the rest ad lib. But suffice it to say that the telephone service St. John is "enjoying" just now is about the worst ever, and a sudden change is surely due.

portance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "That's Main 4114," and the answer comes back "No; this is Lemon 23." Then for the first time you realize you have been stung by the young lady with the haughty voice.

Again you follow directions and after a brief wait you hear "Hello." When you ask for your number someone says "Why don't you ring off." As you attempt to explain a sharp "Brrrrr-burr-burr" rings in your ear and, thoughtfully, you replace the receiver on the hook and go and kick the cat. After you have said a few things and have mastered our courage to try it again you address the maiden of the chilly tones and at last you get the connection. For a few seconds all goes well, but when your friend at the other end of the wire is about to supply the information for which you phoned him, his voice suddenly stops and you hear nothing. Then you again call the central office and say, "Parlor me, Central, but I am afraid you cut us off." In an instant your ear is almost frozen to the receiver by the chilly reply which comes back, "I did not cut you off, your 'phone is still connected." With a sigh you--but what's the use. Every user of a "phone can supply the rest ad lib. But suffice it to say that the telephone service St. John is "enjoying" just now is about the worst ever, and a sudden change is surely due.

portance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "That's Main 4114," and the answer comes back "No; this is Lemon 23." Then for the first time you realize you have been stung by the young lady with the haughty voice.

Again you follow directions and after a brief wait you hear "Hello." When you ask for your number someone says "Why don't you ring off." As you attempt to explain a sharp "Brrrrr-burr-burr" rings in your ear and, thoughtfully, you replace the receiver on the hook and go and kick the cat. After you have said a few things and have mastered our courage to try it again you address the maiden of the chilly tones and at last you get the connection. For a few seconds all goes well, but when your friend at the other end of the wire is about to supply the information for which you phoned him, his voice suddenly stops and you hear nothing. Then you again call the central office and say, "Parlor me, Central, but I am afraid you cut us off." In an instant your ear is almost frozen to the receiver by the chilly reply which comes back, "I did not cut you off, your 'phone is still connected." With a sigh you--but what's the use. Every user of a "phone can supply the rest ad lib. But suffice it to say that the telephone service St. John is "enjoying" just now is about the worst ever, and a sudden change is surely due.

portance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "That's Main 4114," and the answer comes back "No; this is Lemon 23." Then for the first time you realize you have been stung by the young lady with the haughty voice.

Again you follow directions and after a brief wait you hear "Hello." When you ask for your number someone says "Why don't you ring off." As you attempt to explain a sharp "Brrrrr-burr-burr" rings in your ear and, thoughtfully, you replace the receiver on the hook and go and kick the cat. After you have said a few things and have mastered our courage to try it again you address the maiden of the chilly tones and at last you get the connection. For a few seconds all goes well, but when your friend at the other end of the wire is about to supply the information for which you phoned him, his voice suddenly stops and you hear nothing. Then you again call the central office and say, "Parlor me, Central, but I am afraid you cut us off." In an instant your ear is almost frozen to the receiver by the chilly reply which comes back, "I did not cut you off, your 'phone is still connected." With a sigh you--but what's the use. Every user of a "phone can supply the rest ad lib. But suffice it to say that the telephone service St. John is "enjoying" just now is about the worst ever, and a sudden change is surely due.

portance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "That's Main 4114," and the answer comes back "No; this is Lemon 23." Then for the first time you realize you have been stung by the young lady with the haughty voice.

Again you follow directions and after a brief wait you hear "Hello." When you ask for your number someone says "Why don't you ring off." As you attempt to explain a sharp "Brrrrr-burr-burr" rings in your ear and, thoughtfully, you replace the receiver on the hook and go and kick the cat. After you have said a few things and have mastered our courage to try it again you address the maiden of the chilly tones and at last you get the connection. For a few seconds all goes well, but when your friend at the other end of the wire is about to supply the information for which you phoned him, his voice suddenly stops and you hear nothing. Then you again call the central office and say, "Parlor me, Central, but I am afraid you cut us off." In an instant your ear is almost frozen to the receiver by the chilly reply which comes back, "I did not cut you off, your 'phone is still connected." With a sigh you--but what's the use. Every user of a "phone can supply the rest ad lib. But suffice it to say that the telephone service St. John is "enjoying" just now is about the worst ever, and a sudden change is surely due.

portance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "That's Main 4114," and the answer comes back "No; this is Lemon 23." Then for the first time you realize you have been stung by the young lady with the haughty voice.

Again you follow directions and after a brief wait you hear "Hello." When you ask for your number someone says "Why don't you ring off." As you attempt to explain a sharp "Brrrrr-burr-burr" rings in your ear and, thoughtfully, you replace the receiver on the hook and go and kick the cat. After you have said a few things and have mastered our courage to try it again you address the maiden of the chilly tones and at last you get the connection. For a few seconds all goes well, but when your friend at the other end of the wire is about to supply the information for which you phoned him, his voice suddenly stops and you hear nothing. Then you again call the central office and say, "Parlor me, Central, but I am afraid you cut us off." In an instant your ear is almost frozen to the receiver by the chilly reply which comes back, "I did not cut you off, your 'phone is still connected." With a sigh you--but what's the use. Every user of a "phone can supply the rest ad lib. But suffice it to say that the telephone service St. John is "enjoying" just now is about the worst ever, and a sudden change is surely due.

portance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "That's Main 4114," and the answer comes back "No; this is Lemon 23." Then for the first time you realize you have been stung by the young lady with the haughty voice.

Again you follow directions and after a brief wait you hear "Hello." When you ask for your number someone says "Why don't you ring off." As you attempt to explain a sharp "Brrrrr-burr-burr" rings in your ear and, thoughtfully, you replace the receiver on the hook and go and kick the cat. After you have said a few things and have mastered our courage to try it again you address the maiden of the chilly tones and at last you get the connection. For a few seconds all goes well, but when your friend at the other end of the wire is about to supply the information for which you phoned him, his voice suddenly stops and you hear nothing. Then you again call the central office and say, "Parlor me, Central, but I am afraid you cut us off." In an instant your ear is almost frozen to the receiver by the chilly reply which comes back, "I did not cut you off, your 'phone is still connected." With a sigh you--but what's the use. Every user of a "phone can supply the rest ad lib. But suffice it to say that the telephone service St. John is "enjoying" just now is about the worst ever, and a sudden change is surely due.

portance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "That's Main 4114," and the answer comes back "No; this is Lemon 23." Then for the first time you realize you have been stung by the young lady with the haughty voice.

Again you follow directions and after a brief wait you hear "Hello." When you ask for your number someone says "Why don't you ring off." As you attempt to explain a sharp "Brrrrr-burr-burr" rings in your ear and, thoughtfully, you replace the receiver on the hook and go and kick the cat. After you have said a few things and have mastered our courage to try it again you address the maiden of the chilly tones and at last you get the connection. For a few seconds all goes well, but when your friend at the other end of the wire is about to supply the information for which you phoned him, his voice suddenly stops and you hear nothing. Then you again call the central office and say, "Parlor me, Central, but I am afraid you cut us off." In an instant your ear is almost frozen to the receiver by the chilly reply which comes back, "I did not cut you off, your 'phone is still connected." With a sigh you--but what's the use. Every user of a "phone can supply the rest ad lib. But suffice it to say that the telephone service St. John is "enjoying" just now is about the worst ever, and a sudden change is surely due.

portance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "That's Main 4114," and the answer comes back "No; this is Lemon 23." Then for the first time you realize you have been stung by the young lady with the haughty voice.

Again you follow directions and after a brief wait you hear "Hello." When you ask for your number someone says "Why don't you ring off." As you attempt to explain a sharp "Brrrrr-burr-burr" rings in your ear and, thoughtfully, you replace the receiver on the hook and go and kick the cat. After you have said a few things and have mastered our courage to try it again you address the maiden of the chilly tones and at last you get the connection. For a few seconds all goes well, but when your friend at the other end of the wire is about to supply the information for which you phoned him, his voice suddenly stops and you hear nothing. Then you again call the central office and say, "Parlor me, Central, but I am afraid you cut us off." In an instant your ear is almost frozen to the receiver by the chilly reply which comes back, "I did not cut you off, your 'phone is still connected." With a sigh you--but what's the use. Every user of a "phone can supply the rest ad lib. But suffice it to say that the telephone service St. John is "enjoying" just now is about the worst ever, and a sudden change is surely due.

portance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "That's Main 4114," and the answer comes back "No; this is Lemon 23." Then for the first time you realize you have been stung by the young lady with the haughty voice.

Again you follow directions and after a brief wait you hear "Hello." When you ask for your number someone says "Why don't you ring off." As you attempt to explain a sharp "Brrrrr-burr-burr" rings in your ear and, thoughtfully, you replace the receiver on the hook and go and kick the cat. After you have said a few things and have mastered our courage to try it again you address the maiden of the chilly tones and at last you get the connection. For a few seconds all goes well, but when your friend at the other end of the wire is about to supply the information for which you phoned him, his voice suddenly stops and you hear nothing. Then you again call the central office and say, "Parlor me, Central, but I am afraid you cut us off." In an instant your ear is almost frozen to the receiver by the chilly reply which comes back, "I did not cut you off, your 'phone is still connected." With a sigh you--but what's the use. Every user of a "phone can supply the rest ad lib. But suffice it to say that the telephone service St. John is "enjoying" just now is about the worst ever, and a sudden change is surely due.

portance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "That's Main 4114," and the answer comes back "No; this is Lemon 23." Then for the first time you realize you have been stung by the young lady with the haughty voice.

Again you follow directions and after a brief wait you hear "Hello." When you ask for your number someone says "Why don't you ring off." As you attempt to explain a sharp "Brrrrr-burr-burr" rings in your ear and, thoughtfully, you replace the receiver on the hook and go and kick the cat. After you have said a few things and have mastered our courage to try it again you address the maiden of the chilly tones and at last you get the connection. For a few seconds all goes well, but when your friend at the other end of the wire is about to supply the information for which you phoned him, his voice suddenly stops and you hear nothing. Then you again call the central office and say, "Parlor me, Central, but I am afraid you cut us off." In an instant your ear is almost frozen to the receiver by the chilly reply which comes back, "I did not cut you off, your 'phone is still connected." With a sigh you--but what's the use. Every user of a "phone can supply the rest ad lib. But suffice it to say that the telephone service St. John is "enjoying" just now is about the worst ever, and a sudden change is surely due.

portance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "That's Main 4114," and the answer comes back "No; this is Lemon 23." Then for the first time you realize you have been stung by the young lady with the haughty voice.

Again you follow directions and after a brief wait you hear "Hello." When you ask for your number someone says "Why don't you ring off." As you attempt to explain a sharp "Brrrrr-burr-burr" rings in your ear and, thoughtfully, you replace the receiver on the hook and go and kick the cat. After you have said a few things and have mastered our courage to try it again you address the maiden of the chilly tones and at last you get the connection. For a few seconds all goes well, but when your friend at the other end of the wire is about to supply the information for which you phoned him, his voice suddenly stops and you hear nothing. Then you again call the central office and say, "Parlor me, Central, but I am afraid you cut us off." In an instant your ear is almost frozen to the receiver by the chilly reply which comes back, "I did not cut you off, your 'phone is still connected." With a sigh you--but what's the use. Every user of a "phone can supply the rest ad lib. But suffice it to say that the telephone service St. John is "enjoying" just now is about the worst ever, and a sudden change is surely due.

portance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "That's Main 4114," and the answer comes back "No; this is Lemon 23." Then for the first time you realize you have been stung by the young lady with the haughty voice.

Again you follow directions and after a brief wait you hear "Hello." When you ask for your number someone says "Why don't you ring off." As you attempt to explain a sharp "Brrrrr-burr-burr" rings in your ear and, thoughtfully, you replace the receiver on the hook and go and kick the cat. After you have said a few things and have mastered our courage to try it again you address the maiden of the chilly tones and at last you get the connection. For a few seconds all goes well, but when your friend at the other end of the wire is about to supply the information for which you phoned him, his voice suddenly stops and you hear nothing. Then you again call the central office and say, "Parlor me, Central, but I am afraid you cut us off." In an instant your ear is almost frozen to the receiver by the chilly reply which comes back, "I did not cut you off, your 'phone is still connected." With a sigh you--but what's the use. Every user of a "phone can supply the rest ad lib. But suffice it to say that the telephone service St. John is "enjoying" just now is about the worst ever, and a sudden change is surely due.

portance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "That's Main 4114," and the answer comes back "No; this is Lemon 23." Then for the first time you realize you have been stung by the young lady with the haughty voice.

Again you follow directions and after a brief wait you hear "Hello." When you ask for your number someone says "Why don't you ring off." As you attempt to explain a sharp "Brrrrr-burr-burr" rings in your ear and, thoughtfully, you replace the receiver on the hook and go and kick the cat. After you have said a few things and have mastered our courage to try it again you address the maiden of the chilly tones and at last you get the connection. For a few seconds all goes well, but when your friend at the other end of the wire is about to supply the information for which you phoned him, his voice suddenly stops and you hear nothing. Then you again call the central office and say, "Parlor me, Central, but I am afraid you cut us off." In an instant your ear is almost frozen to the receiver by the chilly reply which comes back, "I did not cut you off, your 'phone is still connected." With a sigh you--but what's the use. Every user of a "phone can supply the rest ad lib. But suffice it to say that the telephone service St. John is "enjoying" just now is about the worst ever, and a sudden change is surely due.

portance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "That's Main 4114," and the answer comes back "No; this is Lemon 23." Then for the first time you realize you have been stung by the young lady with the haughty voice.

Again you follow directions and after a brief wait you hear "Hello." When you ask for your number someone says "Why don't you ring off." As you attempt to explain a sharp "Brrrrr-burr-burr" rings in your ear and, thoughtfully, you replace the receiver on the hook and go and kick the cat. After you have said a few things and have mastered our courage to try it again you address the maiden of the chilly tones and at last you get the connection. For a few seconds all goes well, but when your friend at the other end of the wire is about to supply the information for which you phoned him, his voice suddenly stops and you hear nothing. Then you again call the central office and say, "Parlor me, Central, but I am afraid you cut us off." In an instant your ear is almost frozen to the receiver by the chilly reply which comes back, "I did not cut you off, your 'phone is still connected." With a sigh you--but what's the use. Every user of a "phone can supply the rest ad lib. But suffice it to say that the telephone service St. John is "enjoying" just now is about the worst ever, and a sudden change is surely due.

portance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "That's Main 4114," and the answer comes back "No; this is Lemon 23." Then for the first time you realize you have been stung by the young lady with the haughty voice.

Again you follow directions and after a brief wait you hear "Hello." When you ask for your number someone says "Why don't you ring off." As you attempt to explain a sharp "Brrrrr-burr-burr" rings in your ear and, thoughtfully, you replace the receiver on the hook and go and kick the cat. After you have said a few things and have mastered our courage to try it again you address the maiden of the chilly tones and at last you get the connection. For a few seconds all goes well, but when your friend at the other end of the wire is about to supply the information for which you phoned him, his voice suddenly stops and you hear nothing. Then you again call the central office and say, "Parlor me, Central, but I am afraid you cut us off." In an instant your ear is almost frozen to the receiver by the chilly reply which comes back, "I did not cut you off, your 'phone is still connected." With a sigh you--but what's the use. Every user of a "phone can supply the rest ad lib. But suffice it to say that the telephone service St. John is "enjoying" just now is about the worst ever, and a sudden change is surely due.

portance you say "Main 4114." Just here you are in luck if central does not reply, with just a tinge of haughtiness in her tones, "line's busy." But if she does not, you wait not longer than 20 minutes when a voice says "Hello." You reply "