PROJECT FOR ASSISTING INDUSTRIES

Business League of St. Paul to Supply Power

HELP LITTLE FELLOWS

Secure Huge Building in Which Small Manufacturers Will Be Nurtured Along At Low Rental Until They Can "Go It Alone"

St. Paul, Minn., July 1.—The plan of the Business League of Saint Paul for the erection of a huge power building for the assistance of small manufacturers, where space and power may be furnished them at a reasonable rental, and where they may carry on their business until such time as they are able to "go it alone," have finally culminated in the securing of an option on a splendid site in Saint Paul's lower town manufacturing district, and if accepted, construction will soon begin and the building will probably be ready for occupancy during the coming winter.

The site chosen comprises a total of 22,000 square feet and has a frontage of 300 feet, extending southward for 90 feet. The purchase price agreed upon is $80,000. This site was finally selected from among several other offers made to the committee in charge and is especially desirable owing to its close proximity to both wholesale and retail districts.

From the south side of the property it is proposed to set aside an alley-way of twenty feet to admit of constructing necessary railroad truckage at some future time.

Proposed building will be seven stories high of the latest and most modern design for business purposes, and will be constructed of concrete, with special reference to obtaining the very best possible lighting facilities. The seven stories will give a total floor surface of 189,000 square feet, from which 20 per cent is deducted for construction obstacles, leaving a total of 151,200 feet available for tenants.

On the basis of from 3,000 to 5,000 square feet per tenant, it is figured that accommodations may be had for 30 institutions. The estimated cost of the building is placed at $220,000, which, with the price of the ground, will bring the total investment to $300,000. A committee will be appointed this week for the purpose of visiting similar buildings in other cities to the end that the very best and most up-to-date plans may be utilized.

The proposed power building will be the first of its kind in Minnesota. It is planned with a view to offering substantial inducements to small manufacturers and infant industries, rather than with an eye to making large profits, the rate of rental as proposed being 30 cents per square foot, which is said to be the rate now charged for a similar building in Cleveland, and is lower than that of several eastern cities.

JESUIT SPEAKS OF HIS VOWS

Father Vincent Naish Gives Plain Talk in Toronto

OATHS AND VOWS

Only One Jesuit Oath and He States It—There Are Vows of Poverty, Chastity and Obedience—Must Disobey Were Sinful Order Given

(Toronto Telegram.)

"Because people do not clearly understand the essential difference between an oath and vow, some confusion has arisen in connection with the king's accession oath," said Rev. Vincent Naish, S. J., last night to a crowded audience in St. Peter's R. C. church.

The king's accession oath is often wrongly called the "coronation oath." The oath over which there is so much discussion is not the oath taken by the king at the coronation, but the oath he takes immediately on his accession to the throne.

"The old form of accession oath is getting out of date now," said the preacher, "and we are all anxious to get rid of it; and I think, too, that it is time our old friend, the so-called 'Jesuit oath,' was also decently interred. But let it be clearly understood that tonight we are dealing not with oaths, but with vows."

The Only Jesuit Oath

"There is only one oath known to the members of the Society of Jesus," went on the pastor, who, with his fine commanding presence and dignified mien, seemed to tower in the pulpit above his hearers. "Our professors and teachers in Jesuit colleges have an oath to take that they will teach faithfully the doctrines of the Catholic Church. But a vow is an utterly different thing from an oath. Only one vow known to the Catholic Church is beyond the power of the Pope to annul—that is the marriage vow. In these days, when divorce and immorality are making such inroads on the world, I think that the Catholic Church has not meddled with this sacred marriage vow."

"Religious vows are promises of a different character. The three Catholic vows of poverty, chastity and obedience, which, briefly, bind the Jesuit to relinquish wealth, to relinquish all idea of marriage, and most important of all, to devote his life to the service of the church, are taken by every Jesuit. I have taken these vows myself, of course. The vow of obedience imposes on me the necessity to how to the will of my superiors for the service of the church. But every one who takes this vow has permission, is even under obligation, to disobey if the order given him by a superior is a sinful order. The vow is a vow to do right, not wrong. Before the vows can be taken a long period of testing must be undergone, ranging from five to even fifteen years.

Vow Not an Oath at All

"The so-called Jesuit oath is not an oath at all," declared the Rev. Vincent Naish. "I am a Jesuit and have been so for years, but I have never taken an oath. I should have to take an oath if I were to become a professor teacher in a Jesuit college, not unless."

"But," went on the preacher, "a special fourth vow has been sanctioned by the church besides the three I have named. It is not taken by all Jesuits, but when it is taken it has to be taken in public. It can only be taken after a trial period of from fifteen to twenty years, and after repeated examinations as to character and ability. The man who takes this fourth vow is competent to teach in colleges. It is, in fact, the Jesuit equivalent to a university degree."

"When I took this vow," explained the preacher, "I vowed to give special obedience to the Pope—to go wherever he chose to send me as required to carry out the mission of the church for teaching, preaching to, and converting pagans in all parts of the world."

Meant Much to Canada

"That vow," said the Rev. Vincent Naish, earnestly, "is a vow that meant much to Canada. It is the vow that sent out the first missionaries to endure the most terrible tortures for the cause of our Lord Jesus Christ, at the merciless hands of the red men on the shores of Georgian Bay."

"Immediately after taking the public vow, I had to take certain private vows; for instance, the vow that makes it a sin for any Jesuit to accept a religious office of any kind. The Jesuit must live and die content with what is ordinarily given him. He must wear the plain black habit which was the first religious dress of civilization known to the red Indians, for it was worn by the men who brought the gospel words of Jesus first to the red men, taught them,

Malta-Vita THE PERFECT FOOD

Little children like Malta-Vita but that isn't the best reason for letting them have it. Malta-Vita provides them with all the nourishment their young bodies need, and in such a form that they digest it easily. This perfect malted whole-wheat food is the ideal food for children. It makes them healthy and robust. It is as delicious, so satisfying as a bowlful of Malta-Vita with milk or cream. It's good for the children whenever they are hungry. Always ready to eat. No cooking. No inconvenience. All grocers. 10 cents.

preached to them, yes, and died at the stake for them."

The Rev. Vincent Naish gave a brief outline of Jesuit history, criticizing strongly the account of the Jesuits as given by Lord Macaulay.

"Meet the Jesuit in the flesh as you are meeting me tonight," he cried earnestly. "Hear his account of himself before you pass judgment on him, and remember that there is one point on which we Jesuits will never change—that is one of whole-hearted loyalty and devotion to our Sovereign Lord Jesus Christ. We are ready, everyone of us, at any moment to sacrifice all, even life itself, to serve Him, and to obey the Pope in any right cause."

Kay McCurry, a farmer living near Roscoe, Wis., got along very well with his ploughing until a swarm of bees alighted on his hat and his horses. McCurry placed his hat on a pole and set the pole, with the result that the bees left the horses and swarmed about the hat. Neither McCurry nor the horses were stung.
