

RAILROADS.

New Brunswick Railway Co.
(ALL RAIL LINE.)

ARRANGEMENT OF TRAINS: in effect Oct. 1st, 1888.—From Fredericton, St. John, and Woodstock, via St. Stephen, Houlton, and Woodstock, to Portland, Boston, and all points west, and to St. Stephen, Fredericton, St. Andrews, St. Stephen, Houlton, and Woodstock, Presquile Isle, Grand Falls and Edmundston, with the man Park Car, and intermediate points.

4.30 p.m.—(Except Saturday night)—For Bangor, Portland, Boston, and all points west, except Saturday night, for Fredericton, St. Andrews, St. Stephen, Presquile Isle, and Grand Falls, with Pullman, Sleeper Car for Boston.

ARRIVALS AT ST. JOHN.

5.45 a.m.—(Except Monday Morning)—From Bangor, Portland, Boston and all points west, and to St. Stephen, Houlton, and Woodstock, Presquile Isle, Grand Falls and Edmundston, with the man Park Car, and intermediate points.

4.30 p.m.—From Bangor, Portland, Boston and all points west, and from Fredericton, St. Andrews, St. Stephen, Houlton, and Woodstock, Grand Falls, and Edmundston.

LEAVE CARLETON.

5.20 a.m.—For Fairville, and for Bangor and all points west, and for Fredericton, St. Andrews, Houlton and Woodstock and points east, and for Fairville, and for Fredericton, and intermediate points.

ARRIVE AT CARLETON.

10.10 a.m.—From Fairville and Fredericton, 4.20 p.m.—From Bangor and points west.

H. D. MCLELLAN, General Manager, Bangor Southern Division. P. T. G. CRAMER, Superintendent, St. John, N. B., October 17, 1887.

INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAY.

1887 SUMMER ARRANGEMENT, 1888

On and after MONDAY, Nov. 26th 1887
the trains of this Railway will run daily
Sunday excepted as follows—

Trains will Leave St. John:

EXPRESS FROM A. 7:30
ACCOMMODATION FROM B. 7:30
EXPRESS FOR SUNDAY C. 7:30
EXPRESS FOR HALIFAX & QUEBEC. 7:30

A Sleeping Car runs daily on the 18:00 train to Halifax.

On Saturday, Thursday and Saturday, a Sleeping Car for Montreal will be attached to the Quebec Express, and on Sunday, Wednesday and Friday a Sleeping Car will be attached at Montreal.

All Trains are run by Eastern Standard Time.

D. POTTERING,
Chief Superintendent.

Railway Office,
Montreal, N. B., November 22nd, 1887.

Grand Southern Railway.

ST. STEPHEN & ST. JOHN.

EASTERN STANDARD TIME.

ON AND AFTER SATURDAY, Nov. 5, Trains will run daily (Sundays excepted), as follows—

LEAVE ST. JOHN at 2.30 p.m., and Carleton at 3.20 p.m., for St. George, St. Stephen, and intermediate stations, via St. Stephen at 5.14 p.m.; St. Stephen at 7.45 p.m.

EXPRESS FROM HALIFAX & QUEBEC. 7:00

EXPRESS FROM SUNDAY. 7:30

EXPRESS. 7:30

ALL EXPRESS. 7:30

All Trains are run by Eastern Standard Time.

D. POTTERING,
Chief Superintendent.

Railway Office,
Montreal, N. B., November 22nd, 1887.

STEAMERS.

INTERNATIONAL
STEAMSHIP COMPANY.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.

FOR—

BOSTON,
Via Eastport and Portland.

COMMENCING MONDAY, November 14th, and until further notice, Steamers of this line, will leave St. John every MONDAY and THURSDAY, at 12 m., and at 4.30 p.m., and will return, with the exception of Saturday, at 5.30 p.m., Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and at 4.30 p.m., for Eastport and St. John.

Steamer will be received, and delivered at Yarmouth, and will be sent where required, and will be in attendance.

J. N. GREENE, Manager.

E. W. HUTCHISON, Agent.

NOVA SCOTIA
STEAMSHIP CO., Limited.

TO—

DIGBY, ANNAPOLIS,

Yarmouth, Kentville, Halifax, and all intermediate stations.

ON and after NOVEMBER 14th, and until further notice, Steamers of this line, will leave St. John for Digby and Annapolis every MONDAY, WEDNESDAY and SATURDAY morning, returning, with the exception of Saturday, at 5.30 p.m., Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and at 4.30 p.m., for Eastport and St. John.

Steamer will be received, and delivered at Yarmouth, and will be sent where required, and will be in attendance.

H. W. CHISHOLM, Head's Point Wharf.

BOARDING.

Mrs. CHAPMAN, ENGLISH LADY, has taken the rooms, 132 Market Street, and will be pleased to receive Gentleman boarders, who will have with her all the comforts of home.

Terms moderate. A Good Table.

"To-morrow. Must I then tell him of this new affliction?"

"Yes, find tell him that whatever happens, we, my wife and I, will be to his little daughter true and tender parents, and that we will take care of her when she is found in time, all this said trouble. We shall stay here as long as there is a hope that poor Henriette's body may be found, and then we will go home. I will take charge of Roger's factors, and manage it for him as far as it is settled, and if you would come the expenses will be for Suzanne. Tell him he will find me at Rue Sainte-Maur or at my home, as long as I live."

"Repose yourself a little," said the president.

"Lucien shook his head. He knew now and Roger's innocence of this crime commanded his best efforts. The rest could count.

"Friend, prepare yourself to hear a new truth—'

"My child is dead!" cried Roger, with a husky voice.

"No, it is feared, and with alms too much reason that poor Henriette has shown herself into the river in a fit of mental aberration."

"Let my destiny be accomplished."

The day of the trial came, and Roger learned that they were going to bring Suzanne again to testify. This was the last chance already brought up, and he was indifferent and apparently the least interested of all there present as the name of testimony was given.

"Lucien entered the court room painfully, his face pale and wan, and when the doctor reached him he said: 'He is dead; he has ruptured a blood vessel in his brain.'

Roger tried to speak, but he was held silent by a lawyer, and when Lucien told him Suzanne had died he burst into an agony of sobs, which he vainly tried to stifle. He alone knew what had been Lucien's death blow, and he felt himself condemned of God and man. "I am ready to die upon your conscience, Henriette, and I do so." He wished that subject from Roger.

"Let my destiny be accomplished."

The day of the trial came, and Roger learned that they were going to bring Suzanne again to testify. This was the last chance already brought up, and he was indifferent and apparently the least interested of all there present as the name of testimony was given.

"Lucien entered the court room painfully, his face pale and wan, and when the doctor reached him he said: 'He is dead; he has ruptured a blood vessel in his brain.'

Roger tried to speak, but he was held silent by a lawyer, and when Lucien told him Suzanne had died he burst into an agony of sobs, which he vainly tried to stifle. He alone knew what had been Lucien's death blow, and he felt himself condemned of God and man. "I am ready to die upon your conscience, Henriette, and I do so." He wished that subject from Roger.

"Let my destiny be accomplished."

The day of the trial came, and Roger learned that they were going to bring Suzanne again to testify. This was the last chance already brought up, and he was indifferent and apparently the least interested of all there present as the name of testimony was given.

"Lucien entered the court room painfully, his face pale and wan, and when the doctor reached him he said: 'He is dead; he has ruptured a blood vessel in his brain.'

Roger tried to speak, but he was held silent by a lawyer, and when Lucien told him Suzanne had died he burst into an agony of sobs, which he vainly tried to stifle. He alone knew what had been Lucien's death blow, and he felt himself condemned of God and man. "I am ready to die upon your conscience, Henriette, and I do so." He wished that subject from Roger.

"Let my destiny be accomplished."

The day of the trial came, and Roger learned that they were going to bring Suzanne again to testify. This was the last chance already brought up, and he was indifferent and apparently the least interested of all there present as the name of testimony was given.

"Lucien entered the court room painfully, his face pale and wan, and when the doctor reached him he said: 'He is dead; he has ruptured a blood vessel in his brain.'

Roger tried to speak, but he was held silent by a lawyer, and when Lucien told him Suzanne had died he burst into an agony of sobs, which he vainly tried to stifle. He alone knew what had been Lucien's death blow, and he felt himself condemned of God and man. "I am ready to die upon your conscience, Henriette, and I do so." He wished that subject from Roger.

"Let my destiny be accomplished."

The day of the trial came, and Roger learned that they were going to bring Suzanne again to testify. This was the last chance already brought up, and he was indifferent and apparently the least interested of all there present as the name of testimony was given.

"Lucien entered the court room painfully, his face pale and wan, and when the doctor reached him he said: 'He is dead; he has ruptured a blood vessel in his brain.'

Roger tried to speak, but he was held silent by a lawyer, and when Lucien told him Suzanne had died he burst into an agony of sobs, which he vainly tried to stifle. He alone knew what had been Lucien's death blow, and he felt himself condemned of God and man. "I am ready to die upon your conscience, Henriette, and I do so." He wished that subject from Roger.

"Let my destiny be accomplished."

The day of the trial came, and Roger learned that they were going to bring Suzanne again to testify. This was the last chance already brought up, and he was indifferent and apparently the least interested of all there present as the name of testimony was given.

"Lucien entered the court room painfully, his face pale and wan, and when the doctor reached him he said: 'He is dead; he has ruptured a blood vessel in his brain.'

Roger tried to speak, but he was held silent by a lawyer, and when Lucien told him Suzanne had died he burst into an agony of sobs, which he vainly tried to stifle. He alone knew what had been Lucien's death blow, and he felt himself condemned of God and man. "I am ready to die upon your conscience, Henriette, and I do so." He wished that subject from Roger.

"Let my destiny be accomplished."

The day of the trial came, and Roger learned that they were going to bring Suzanne again to testify. This was the last chance already brought up, and he was indifferent and apparently the least interested of all there present as the name of testimony was given.

"Lucien entered the court room painfully, his face pale and wan, and when the doctor reached him he said: 'He is dead; he has ruptured a blood vessel in his brain.'

Roger tried to speak, but he was held silent by a lawyer, and when Lucien told him Suzanne had died he burst into an agony of sobs, which he vainly tried to stifle. He alone knew what had been Lucien's death blow, and he felt himself condemned of God and man. "I am ready to die upon your conscience, Henriette, and I do so." He wished that subject from Roger.

"Let my destiny be accomplished."

The day of the trial came, and Roger learned that they were going to bring Suzanne again to testify. This was the last chance already brought up, and he was indifferent and apparently the least interested of all there present as the name of testimony was given.

"Lucien entered the court room painfully, his face pale and wan, and when the doctor reached him he said: 'He is dead; he has ruptured a blood vessel in his brain.'

Roger tried to speak, but he was held silent by a lawyer, and when Lucien told him Suzanne had died he burst into an agony of sobs, which he vainly tried to stifle. He alone knew what had been Lucien's death blow, and he felt himself condemned of God and man. "I am ready to die upon your conscience, Henriette, and I do so." He wished that subject from Roger.

"Let my destiny be accomplished."

The day of the trial came, and Roger learned that they were going to bring Suzanne again to testify. This was the last chance already brought up, and he was indifferent and apparently the least interested of all there present as the name of testimony was given.

"Lucien entered the court room painfully, his face pale and wan, and when the doctor reached him he said: 'He is dead; he has ruptured a blood vessel in his brain.'

Roger tried to speak, but he was held silent by a lawyer, and when Lucien told him Suzanne had died he burst into an agony of sobs, which he vainly tried to stifle. He alone knew what had been Lucien's death blow, and he felt himself condemned of God and man. "I am ready to die upon your conscience, Henriette, and I do so." He wished that subject from Roger.

"Let my destiny be accomplished."

The day of the trial came, and Roger learned that they were going to bring Suzanne again to testify. This was the last chance already brought up, and he was indifferent and apparently the least interested of all there present as the name of testimony was given.

"Lucien entered the court room painfully, his face pale and wan, and when the doctor reached him he said: 'He is dead; he has ruptured a blood vessel in his brain.'

Roger tried to speak, but he was held silent by a lawyer, and when Lucien told him Suzanne had died he burst into an agony of sobs, which he vainly tried to stifle. He alone knew what had been Lucien's death blow, and he felt himself condemned of God and man. "I am ready to die upon your conscience, Henriette, and I do so." He wished that subject from Roger.

"Let my destiny be accomplished."

The day of the trial came, and Roger learned that they were going to bring Suzanne again to testify. This was the last chance already brought up, and he was indifferent and apparently the least interested of all there present as the name of testimony was given.

"Lucien entered the court room painfully, his face pale and wan, and when the doctor reached him he said: 'He is dead; he has ruptured a blood vessel in his brain.'

Roger tried to speak, but he was held silent by a lawyer, and when Lucien told him Suzanne had died he burst into an agony of sobs, which he vainly tried to stifle. He alone knew what had been Lucien's death blow, and he felt himself condemned of God and man. "I am ready to die upon your conscience, Henriette, and I do so." He wished that subject from Roger.

"Let my destiny be accomplished."

The day of the trial came, and Roger learned that they were going to bring Suzanne again to testify. This was the last chance already brought up, and he was indifferent and apparently the least interested of all there present as the name of testimony was given.

"Lucien entered the court room painfully, his face pale and wan, and when the doctor reached him he said: 'He is dead; he has ruptured a blood vessel in his brain.'

Roger tried to speak, but he was held silent by a lawyer, and when Lucien told him Suzanne had died he burst into an agony of sobs, which he vainly tried to stifle. He alone knew what had been Lucien's death blow, and he felt himself condemned of God and man. "I am ready to die upon your conscience, Henriette, and I do so." He wished that subject from Roger.

"Let my destiny be accomplished."

The day of the trial came, and Roger learned that they were going to bring Suzanne again to testify. This was the last chance already brought up, and he was indifferent and apparently the least interested of all there present as the name of testimony was given.

"Lucien entered the court room painfully, his face pale and wan, and when the doctor reached him he said: 'He is dead; he has ruptured a blood vessel in his brain.'

Roger tried to speak, but he was held silent by a lawyer, and when Lucien told him Suzanne had died he burst into an agony of sobs, which he vainly tried to stifle. He alone knew what had been Lucien's death blow, and he felt himself condemned of God and man. "I am ready to die upon your conscience, Henriette, and I do so." He wished that subject from Roger.

"Let my destiny