Boxers Chosen In Gym Meet

A boxing meet was run off at Dal last Monday night in order to select the Intercollegiate team for the Meet at Antigonish next weekend. A total of seven bouts were run off, with four K. O.'s and T. K. O.'s being registered, welterweight Kev Miller scoring two technical knockouts to win his class.

The first bout was an exhibition encounter with Bryce Burgess (136) scoring a 3rd round K. O. over John Moulsson (135). Although slow to open up, Burgess made short work of his opponent, when he started to move in the third round.

In the second bout of the night, Don Kerr (144) made a good showing for two rounds against Kev Miller, (144) who was favoured to win, but in the third, Miller completed the work he started at the end of the second, when he had Kerr down for a 7-count. Kerr was knocked down and injured his knee, the Referee stopping the fight.

The third match was a slugfest between Ace Furlong (156) and Creighton Baker (160), with Furlong having the edge, especially in close-in fighting, knocking his opponent out in the last few seconds of the second round. The closest fight of the evening was between Norm Stewart (172) and Johnny Lindsay (172), who, for the second time, fought to a three-round draw. Both boys roughed it up a little at the first and both were bleeding at the end of the fight, from cuts.

In the slowest contest of the programme, Al Kenty (135) and Bryce Burgess (136) fought to a three-round waltz and draw, although the Gazette correspondent thought that the decision should have gone to Kenty.

Kev Miller (144) scored his second win of the night over Warren Conrad (145) in a hard-hitting match, knocking Conrad to the canvas in the second round with a hard right cross. Conrad struck his head on the floor and was further dazed, with the Referee, Jack McKenna stopping the fight, after Miller had landed a few more blows.

In the last encounter of the evening, Wallace (174) gave Bert Campbell (195) an artistic boxing lesson in three short rounds, with an excellent display of pugilistic skill.

DIL GODDS PUTS FAITH IN LORD

The GAZETTE was fortunate enough the other day in obtaining an interview with Dil. Godds, the Dalhousie long distance runner who is one his way to New York to compete in the 1947 Spring Track season. As a matter of fact Mr. Godds was already on his way when we spied him trotting down Robie Street on his way out of Halifax. On his singlet, superimposed over a large "D", was the inscription "New York or Bust, or Godd's sponsored by the S. C. M." Not willing to delay the athlete we jogged along with him for some way, and discovered several facts about him that had not appeared in the local newspapers.

Dil, who claims that it is the Lord who enables him to win every race he comes first in, said that he keeps in condition running to classes and to church. While he is in the United States he intends to take part in the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. Championships, the Daily News Carnival in Chicago and the Kentucky Derby in Kentucky.

While competing in the coming outdoor track season, Dil is confident he can at last break the four minute mile. His secret, he says, is the Math I dogma of Professor Hebb that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points. Conversely, Godds argues, the mile is shorter if laps are eliminated and he runs in a straight line.

Dal students, and his S. C. M. colleagues in particular will view Dil. Godds activities with interest.

DVA NOTICE

Students concerned should note:
 (1) A failure in a final examination in the last complete year of entitlement will disqualify a student from an extension of benefits beyond the normal period of month-for-month; since D. V. A. obtain all final marks from the Registrar any recommendation of a student with a failure would be cancelled automatically by D. V. A. Rumors concerning procedure in other colleges or D. V. A. offices are without foundation.
 (2) D. V. A. have asked that students concerned take note that an extension of benefit will apply only to training taken in attendance at the University; it will not apply to "training-on-the-job", which includes articling for Law and apprenticeship for Pharmacy.

CAMPUS ROUNDUP

(By THOMAS O'NEILL)

Every so often, we get our faith built up in human kind, only to have it shattered again by the actions of some heel, the genus being well spread through the race. Last week, a Dal co-ed student laid her year's typewritten notes down, for a minute, and afforded a Dalhousie representative of the above genus its chance. The book was later found with the typewritten notes of two subjects removed. The next time some type throws his arms in the air, gets a dazed look in his eye and says all men are good, I'm going to crash'er right in his eye.

The Dalhousie boxing team held a tournament on Monday night and came out with a surprising array of mitt talent. If Jack McKenna stays with us, to coach, an-circles. Like all the other sport-tough to beat in intercollegiate ing groups on the campus the leather pushers are short of equipment. A felt mat must be purchased to be placed under the canvas for absorbing the shock of the numerous falls. Conrod was knocked out of the tourney by hitting his head on the floor—an injury like this, could be serious.

PING-PONG RESULTS

The Dal Ping Pong Championships have been completed, and the awards were made at the annual meeting of the D. A. A. C., with cups going to Bill Pope, Bob Blois, and Whitney Truman.

Pope won the Singles Title, defeating George Mosher in the finals by scores of 21-19, 21-13, 21-19.

In a closely-contested doubles final, Bob Blois and Whitney Truman edged out Bill Pope and Jim Bell: 21-19, 19-21, 21-17, 16-21, 21-19.

With this last issue, The GAZETTE finally realizes that it has forgotten something — the name of, Bob Tuck on the Mast Head as Assistant Sports Editor. Pardon us, Bob — And thanks a lot.

MEDS WIN INTERFAC HOCKEY PLAYOFF

The Engineers, down nine goals on the total goal round, defeated Medicine by a 9-5 score Friday afternoon but lost the series 15-10. The Boilermakers displayed great fight in their vain endeavour to overcome the commanding lead Meds piled up by winning the first game 10-1.

Meds started strong, but two tallies by Skinner Flynn took the wind out of their sails and Engineers were holding a 3-1 lead at the end of the period. Engineers kept it up in the second and soon took a 6-1 lead on goals by Graves, Blakeney and Lamont. However Medicine settled down their shaky defence and held the rampaging shacksters scoreless for the remainder of the frame.

The third period told a different story as the Forrestites outplayed the Engineers and outscored them 4-3. This period was rough, but referee Carson sent only one offender to the cooler. Deacon of Meds led his team's offensive thrusts in this period with three of the four goals put behind Harvey McKeough. Altogether Deacon scored four goals. Flynn had two goals and a like number of assists and Teasdale, Thorman and Steeves potting singletons.

Meds: — Moffatt, MacDonald, Thorpe, MacKay, Cox, Vair, Deacon, Allen, Miller, Hill, Giffen, Ross, Fox.

Engineers:—McKeough, Graves, Brown, Steeves, Isnor, LaMont, Thorman, Flynn, Teasdale, Blakeney.

Letter From Hoop Coach

Dear Don:

Now that the basketball season is pretty well over I'd like a little of your valuable space for a few comments, if possible.

You are aware of the final play-off situation with Navy and the results of it. To say it is the most unfair decision I can recall in basketball is putting it mildly.

You will recall in a little interview at the first of the season I told you the year should be regarded primarily as a "building" year for basketball. Only about three of all the men who turned out for basketball were over the junior age limit, and I think the results achieved with this squad give reason for gratification.

We won the intermediate city league in which we were entered, lost the first playoff with the senior winner by only five points, won the second by 12 and dropped a close third one after the Navy augmented their team with a player we claim they had no right to use.

We brought along a number of younger players who I'm sure will be most valuable assets for future Dal teams. I think if the proper procedure is followed next year Dal should have three or four teams in competition, thus assuring a steady flow of basketball material.

I regret we did not compete in junior basketball this year but we covered ground which I think will lead to junior teams in future at Dalhousie, where an abundance of material of players in this age category exists.

I would like to add a word relative to the conduct of the players. Both on and off the floor I have never been associated with a finer group of young men. For some teams it is fashionable to cut up a bit when on the road, action which sometimes brings disrepute upon the organization they represent. There was not one instance or suggestion of this with the Dal basketball team this year.

The university undoubtedly has had better teams but I'm sure no finer group of men ever represented Dalhousie.

The co-operation from team members and officials has been all that one could ask and this, my first association with Dalhousie as a coach, has been a most happy one.

Sincerely,
 KEN CHISHOLM.
