Great Fire at Miramichi.....	1825	General acts were passed providing for the incorporation of all the counties in those provinces. These acts have been consolidated and enlarged in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick during recent years, providing the fullest measure of independence to the people of any defined district in managing their local affairs: trying on efficiently any public improvements. Before the passage of municipal laws, the cities of St. John, Halifax and Fredericton had been incorporated, with a few towns in each province, and in New Brunswick several counties; but for this it was necessary to get a special act or charter from the legislature. In Nova Scotia a general act for the incorporation of towns was adopted in 1888. Before the incorporation of counties and towns, the general sessions in each county, composed of justices of the peace, had attended to all local affairs.
