On Simplicity of Life.

because I never yet met any person of this class who was contented with his work or took as much satisfaction in it as the porter feels in shovelling away the snow from before their doorsteps.) All these favorites of fortune are either deprived of work or are obliged to work at what they do not like, after the manner of criminals condemned to hard labor.

[Here follows a dessertation on what Tolstoi considers third, fourth and fifth conditions of happiness-family, unrestricted intercourse with all classes of men such as is debarred from people of wealth and rank, and bodily health, best attained by physical toil in the open air, with the sleep that follows. The simple life, he considers in accordance with the doctrine of Jesus.]

If a man will cease to have faith in the doctrine of the world, and not think it indispensable to wear varnished boots and a gold chain, to maintain a useless salon, or do the various other foolish things the doctrine of the world demands, he will never know the effects of brutalizing occupations, of unlimited suffering, of the anxieties of a perpetual struggle; he will remain in communion with nature; he will be deprived neither of the work he loves, nor of his family, nor of his health, and he will not perish by a cruel and brutish death.

Bits from Tolstoi.

[From "My Religion" and "What Can We Do Then?"]

"The life of a man is an aspiration towards welfare; what he aspires to is given to him; a life which cannot be death, and a welfare that cannot be evil.'

"A powerful means to secure true happiness in life is to spin in all directions, like a spider, a whole web of love, and catch in it all that one can-old women, children, women, men and constables."—Diary, May 12, 1856.

" Our entire social fabric is founded upon principles that Jesus reproved. Believers profess that Christ, as God, the second person of the Trinity, descended upon earth to teach men by his example how to live; they go through the most elaborate ceremonies for the consummation of the sacraments, the building of temples. . . . for the performance of rituals; but they forget one little detail—the practice of the commandments of Jesus.

"God said, Do no evil, and evil will cease to exist. Was the revelation from God really nothing but that? It would seem that everyone might understand it."

"I tried to imagine the results, if, instead of the national hatred with which we are inspired under the name of 'patriotism'; if, in place of the glory associated with that form of murder which we call war-if, in place of this, we were taught, on the contrary, horror and contempt for all the means--military, diplomatic, and political-which serve to divide men; if we were educated to look upon the division of men into political states and a diversity of codes and frontiers, as an indication of barbarism; and that to massacre others is a most horrible crime, only to be perpetrated by a depraved and misguided man, who has fallen to the lowest level of the brute."

"The kingdom of God upon earth consists in this, that all men should be at peace with one another."

"The first duty of thinking beings that he must endure difficulties to the worthy bishop promptly and a procure any good superior to that "Two hundred." which he has enjoyed before.'

in the present, and hands it down to the future."

TOLSTOI'S LAST WORDS.

Before he passed from earth, the great Tolstoi left this farewell message to the world: "Instead of returning evil with evil, try to return evil with good; to say nothing ill of men; to act kindly even with the ox and dog. Live thus one day, two days or more, and compare the state of your mind with its state in former days. Make the attempt and you will see how the dark, evil modes have passed away and how the soul's happiness has increased. Make the attempt, and you will see that the gospel of love brings not merely profitable words, but the greatest and most desired of all things."

EVERYBODY ATE ROYAL HAMS. "The most successful swindles," said James R. Keene at a dinner, that have a basis of honesty. It's like the story of King Edward's pigs. "At Sandringham, you know, King Edward raised prize swine, prize bullocks and all manner of fancy live stock. Well, ·there was a fashionable west-end butcher who bought all the king's fat swine every year at a simply enormous price, and a reporter said to this butcher one day

"How can you afford to pay such prices for the royal swine? 'Well, you see,' said the butcher, with a wink of the eye, 'the king's pigs have such a lot of legs?' "-Detroit Free Fress.

The Queen of Denmark once paid a visit to the Danish colony of Iceland, where the good old bishop exerted himself to the utmost to show her everything that was worth seeing.

The Queen paid many compliments to her host, and, having learnt that he was a family man, graciously inquired how many children he had. It happens that the Danish word for "Every being endowed with even "children" is almost identical in second the most rudimentary reason knows with the Icelandic word for "sheep," and
