If illegalities arean, penalties are prescribed under sec-tion 38, but they have to be recov-ered afterwards by information filed by the Attorney-General. It is im-portant to observe that the Act, by excluding the question of prosecution to be considered on the merits of the case by the Attorney-General, does not contemplate that proceed-ings should be taken in all cases of contravention. The duty of the po-lice is confined to the maintenance of order. It is most desirable that in these matters common sense and mutual tolerance should influence all who are concerned—(Nationalist cheers)—and when such influence as a bed of white narcissus in an analysis of the old monastery all? POLICE PROCESSIONS. Colonel Long: -Arising out of that answer, may I ask the Home Secretary whether his attention has been drawn to what took place in Liverpool the other day? Mr. Gladstone: -I have had under my attention the most regretable and most unnecessary flots which have taken place in Liverpool. I have only to say that the police there took strong and efficacious.ac-tion, and I hope that the disturb-ances will not recur (hear, hear). Mr. Belloc (Salford, S., Min.): --Arising out of the reply to the main question, is it not the fact that the police authorities for London did de-finitely report in the case of the and sling-shots or air gun seems unknown in Rome. Herses, donkeys and cows have hard lives in Italy. Often the cows are kept in dark, cave-like stables and are very poorly fed, as evidenc-ed by the quality of milk they yield. ignorance of sanitary conditions, Many families in Italy live in quar-ters where one would hesitate to place a cow. This treatment is due to poverty and police authorities for London did de-finitely report in the case of the Eucharistic procession at Westmins-ter that there was no danger, and that it was acting on that advice that the Archhishop of Westminster decided to hold the procession ? Mr. Gladstone: --They did not ex-actly report that. There undoubted-ly was a certain amount of danger but the police themselves did not an-ticipate that it would probably amount to a serious breach of the peace. The poor little donkeys are ill-fed, beaten and exposed to all kinds of weather. They are terribly galled by the strap that passes under the body, to steady the two-wheeled cart behind, which otherwise would tip backward. This is due, I am told, to the fast that the government 'axes four-wheeled carts. I can read-it believe this to be true as in Ital-taxes four-wheeled carts. I can read-ily believe this to be true, as in Italy the most unlikely things are taxed. The drivers pay no attention to these galled places, saying that it is inevitable, and the sooner it be-comes calloused, the sooner the ani-' mal will cease to suffer. When an animal falls hame, little is done for it. Probably the 'owner does not know what to do. One of the most promising features of the humane work in Rome is the Colonel Long asked the Secretary for War by whose authority four Lifeguardsmen wearing his Majesty's Lineguardsmen wearing his Majesty's uniform, took part recently in carry-ing a canopy over the Host in an il-legal outdoor procession at High-gate, and if he would take steps to prevent a repetition of this offence in future.

The "Church of Rome" is shaping the policy of Canada. Citizens may not have observed this movement, not have observed this movement, but there is the word of Rev. F. Dealtry Woodcock, chaplain of the Loyal Orange Lodge of Brockville, to substantiate this statement. Further Sir Wilfrid Laurier is the instrument by which "Rome" is achieving its desired end. The reverend gentlemen addressed Brockville Orangemen on the occes.

The reverend gentlemen addressed Brockville Orangemen on the occa-sion of their church parade. He told them how best to uphold their side of the argument, and warned them that there will be two sides for the Orange order to deal with, viz., Roman Catholic hierareby and the higher criticism—the agraphic higher criticism, the agnost agnosticism

A DIFFERENCE.

He said an Orangeman was a traitor to his order and religion to lis-ten to infidels preaching the doctrine of Socialism because any man who denies Christ cannot impart anydenies Christ cannot impart any thing of value. Educate your child-ren, he said, to know the difference between a Roman Catholic and a Catholic and there may be some hope Catholic and there may be some hope for the next generation to regain that which we have lost. It is part of the Orangeman's creed to uphold the faith of Jesus Christ as the Son of God and of man. No true Orangeman will stay away from his church. If all Orangemen were con-sistent a different state of affairs would be prevalent to-day. He pro-tested arainst the Church of Rome tested against the Church of Rome through Sir Wilfrid Laurier shaping the policy of Canada

CREEPING CATHOLICS.

The Roman Catholics are creeping, creeping, gathering a little temporal power here and a little there, and holding it. It would not do merely for us to show our colors on Jul-12th. We must show that Jesus Christ is the centre and foundation of our whole doctrine. To show this will not be an easy affair. We may have to sacrifice our religion and our lives. We will have infidels on the other to deal with, and it beon one hand and Roman Catholics on the other to deal with, and it be-hooves us as soldiers and servants of Jesus bore. His. Don't shirk from it, take it and bear it like men; re-member our forefathers did it and be meanered to accent wish for comer member our forefathers did it and be prepared to accept whatever comes, Remember our order is no sham, but it stands for a glorious faith. Bear your cross patiently and when your work is done you will hear the glad voice, 'well doone, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of the Lord.'"

The "Catholic" Votel

Those people who are always talk-ing about "the Catholic vote" are not so much to blame for their mis-apprenension as the easy-going and saily-led Catholic himself who lets ther folks do his thinking for him.
