

STORIES OF AUTHORS

In a lecture called "Recollections of Books and Authors," given before the Young Men's Christian Association...

When Schlemmer returned from his expedition to Mysene he said to my father, "Would Mr. Gladstone write a preface for my book?"

On my father's death Gladstone called on me. In my father's library were several copies of Sir Robert Peel's speeches.

LIVINGSTON'S PORTRAIT My father got Livingston to sit for his portrait. Speaking of the portrait to my mother Livingston said, "I don't think I looked like that."

Darwin's modesty is shown by the following incident. He came to my father and said, "Mr. Murray, I have just written a manuscript."

WELLINGTON'S CARE FOR SICK SOLDIERS People often say that Wellington was a hard man. This was far from being the case, as is shown by the following incident.

EARLY HARDSHIPS All this took months. Some 30,000 souls were dumped into the wild woods of Nova Scotia, where Government surveyors had been for some time busy.

CHINESE DOMESTIC SERVANTS VISITING a high-class Chinese lady one is impressed with the number of children and servants that seem to be swarming over the place.

There is a peculiar democratic custom which servants may claim, but which is seldom used—the right of reviling the family when discharged.

LIFE IN THE WILDERNESS The remaining 10,000 refugees who found their way by long laborious wilderness-trails or by wearisome voyages to Western Canada (Ontario) had an even worse pioneering period, though an even stirring future. They were mostly plain of wet fur to be lifted from the cone. The resulting cone of fur is a delicate embryo except as to fur.

THEY MUST LAUGH. And why, sir, must they? The boy's plain way of words, church, he said, "I don't know, but I'll try to do my best."
