A MAGNIFICENT EXHIBIT

Providence did not smile upon the Exhibition held in this town at its opening. The day previous was damp and rainy and many who had small exhibits to bring were kept at home. Nevertheless exhibits in quantity began to arrive on Monday and all that day and Tuesday and about all of Tuesday night the committee were at work and the bare building was being transformed into a veritable fruit show, the equal of which has never been seen here and perhaps never excelled elsewhere.

The large building downstairs was tabled off for fruit all around the sides and ends. In the centre were tables with high and low shelves for the display of potted and cut flowers and articles belonging to the domestic department.

In the centre of the North side a platform was arranged for the speakers for the opening and closing and all around and overhead was a profuse and rich display of flags and bunting.

The decorating committee deserve great praise for the interior arrangements for many were the expressions of delight at the pretty appearance of the building both by day and by night.

The upstairs part was arranged for vegetables, grain etc., and outside under canvas was a place arranged for the fowls.

Opening day proved very unfavorable. Rain fell in slight showers most of the morning. This did not keep the people at home for crowds began to arrive early in the morning. At ten o'clock the building was in readiness for the public and the doors were opened to the public and over fifteen hundred people were present.

A large number came by special train from the West. The Valley Brass Band was in attendance and furnished the music for the day.

Lieut. Governor Jones was to open the exhibition and he arrived on the afternoon accompanied by Premier Murray and Hon. T. R. Black. Hon. J. W. Longley arrived later and Sir Frederick and Lady Borden came from Canaan. At two o'clock the building was completely filled with people when President H. H. Wickwire took the chair and seated his distinguished visitors around him.

The Lieut. Governor was the first speaker. He said we in this country had much to be grateful for. In no part of God's creation could be found better fruits of the land. This country was making great progress East and West. He expressed his great pleasure at being present. He was a country boy and he liked to be in the pure open air. After paying high tribute to the amount of the show and the quality of the exhibits he declared the exhibition opened.

Hon. Premier Murray said it was worth his while to come here and see the magnificent display that was around him. The promoters were to be congratulated on the fair. One could not get a proper idea of what the fruit industry was without an exhibition like this (applause.) He knew the fruit growing industry was as prosperous here as in any country and it was in perfectly safe hands. He asked the Horticulturists to exert their energies so we could say this was the greatest fruit growing industry in the world. It was truly a magnificent exhibit and no one need feel ashamed to show it to the world. It showed the result of industry, care and intelligence and should be continued in the future.

Hon. T. R. Black said he knew he was in the heart of Kings County and also in the heart of the garden of N. S. If the garden of Eden was better it must have been a good place to live in. He had come home from his travels conscious with the feeling that we have here what makes for comfort above all other places.

Mr. Wickwire said we were indebted for much of the responsibility of the exhibition to the municipality and called upon Warden Dr. Balcom. He congratulated the executive in the magnificent display and arrangement and made a strong plea for county exhibitions and the continuance of a local exhibition in this county each year or the east alternating with the west. Exhibitions in this County had always been a success. Hon. J. W. Longley spoke for Provincial exhibition but stated that we needed local exhibitions especially one that was such a success as he judged this one was from a brief glance.

Sir Frederick Borden said his heart was in his native county and in seeing the rest of the Dominion after the province and the Dominion after than ever before. He held this exhibition if continued would be an auxiliary to the Provincial one. This was a magnificent display of fruit, etc. He believed they could show nothing equal to it in Europe even in peaches. He asked the county and surrounding districts to back up the executive and make future exhibitions here even more of a success.
