CHARACTER MAKING.

The Home the genuine Life School of Moral Training.

Character is catching—provided one who has it to give can get close enough to the one who is to take it. The reason the school cannot do the whole or the chief part of moral training is that even in the best schools and with the best teachers the children have to be handled so largely in masses and at arm's length. In the home the parent lives close to the individual child all the time, and whatever the parent has in the way of character to give the child, is pretty sure to take without knowing when or how or even being aware of what is going on, until days, weeks, months, perhaps years after, he breaks out with just such feelings, tones, tempers, looks, words and deeds as he had been catching all the while.

The child learns his moral principles by induction from concrete cases in his own experience and observation. A principle that does not rest on some such case makes about as much impression on a child as a drop of water on a duck's back. The example of the parent is the most potent moral influence over the character and conduct of the child. The kindness, the justice, the temperance, the purity, the charity, the patience, the courage, the foresight, the wisdom, that the child sees exemplified in the life of the father and mother he will tend to incorporate into his own life.

Of course the opposite qualities are equally contagious—unkindness, uncharitableness, impatience, foolishness and the like. What shall the parent do who not infrequently is guilty of these odious things and gets detected in them by the child's discerning eyes? There is only one thing to do.

A great many people confess their sins in a lump to God on Sunday who cannot bring themselves to frankly acknowledge a fault to their own children as soon as they recognize it has been committed. The most sympathetic influence over a child can be gained on no less searching terms.

An obvious corollary from all this is the fearful blunder which busy and preoccupied parents make who turn their children over to governesses and servants at the most impressionable period of their lives and never get near enough to the child's life to influence him one way or the other.

The wonder is that children brought up in that way do not turn out bad more often than they do. Their salvation is due to the fact that the governess and servants are often in all moral essentials much the superior of the parents who are capable of turning their children's training over to anybody but themselves.—Dr. William De Witt Hyde in Good Housekeeping.

Useful Satchels.
Scented pads of all sizes may be made to slip between articles in bureau drawers and trunks. The illustration shows a pad made of pale pink silk covered with sheer white organdie. A tiny ruffle of the material edged with baby ribbon is let into the edges. The top may be decorated in any desired manner with marking letters or small embroidered flowers. Figured organdie or dimity may be used to fashion the satchel if preferred, and narrow lace may be put on the edge.

The Picturesque Style.
The woman who affects the picturesque style nowadays has a large range of choice. The mode of hair-dressing renders the large hat a most suitable adjunct to the gown worn after those worn in the time of Louis XIV. The scarf is one of those little additions to dress which a woman can add with great significance, giving an added grace to her movements and to her toilet. Some very pretty ones are being made of tulle bordered with a ruche, in which nestle small artificial flowers, such as lilies or minute roses.

Strawberry Cups.
Scald a pint of milk and while hot stir in two tablespoonsful of arrowroot dissolved in a little cold milk; add a quarter of a cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt, half a teaspoonful of strawberry extract; cook until creamy, then beat in one yolk and the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs; butter small cups and dust thickly with stale macarons crushed very fine; fill with the arrowroot mixture and set on ice to become chilled; unmold and garnish with strawberries; serve a boiled custard sauce with these.

Household Brevities.
When boiling fowl do not add salt till the last hour of cooking. When crackers are used in stuffing a fowl, use less dressing than if bread-crums were the base of the forcemeat. Crackers swell more than crumbs.

Do not lay a carpet without a lining under it, even if it is nothing but a newspaper.

Break lettuce leaves apart. Do not cut them.

Never add flavoring extracts to a dish till it is cold. If put in while hot, much of the flavor passes off in the steam.

Millions for Autos.

According to an authority on auto-mobiling, Great Britain provides the world's largest market for motor-cars. The great majority of these machines come from the Continent, the importation figures for 1902 being 3,500 cars, valued at $5,280,000, for the year just closed the figures increased to 5,320 cars, amounting in value to $8,000,000. It is said that most of the expense is a matter of wages, as the raw material of the machines is of little comparative value.

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is irreparable. The good you can possibly derive from them, Hal's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hal's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Makarov's Sister's Visions.

The Petit Parisien's St. Petersburg correspondent sends a sad story regarding the sister of Admiral Makarov, whose hair, although she is only fifty years old, has turned absolutely white. She told a representative of the press that she had two visions on the night of the admiral's death, when he appeared and told her of the explosion. Her name is Mme. Tabouloff. She is the widow of an officer and receives only a small pension, which Admiral Makarov used to supplement.—London Mail.

HIS LAST HOPE REALIZED.

(From the Sentinel, Geko, Mont.)
In the first opening of Oklahoma to settlers in 1889, the editor of this paper was among the many seekers after fortune who made the big race one fine day in April. During his traveling about and afterwards his camping over his claim, he encountered much bad water, which, together with the severe heat, gave him a very severe diarrhoea which it seemed almost impossible to check, and along in June the case became so bad he expected to die. One day one of his neighbors brought him one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a last hope. A big dose was given him while he was rolling about on the ground in great agony, and in a few minutes the doctor was repeated. The good effect of the medicine was soon noticed and within an hour the patient was taking his first sound sleep for a fortnight. That one little bottle worked a complete cure and he cannot help but feel grateful. The reason for bowel disorders being at hand suggests this item. For sale by All Druggists.

Safety Signal for Streets.

In Dresden, Germany, an automatic safety signal at street car crossings that has recently been put into operation consists of a box about two feet long suspended above the centre of the crossing and furnished with electric connections whereby an approaching car on arriving within a certain distance causes the word "halt" to appear in conspicuous red letters on the opposite sides of the box, thus warning of their danger all cars and pedestrians coming toward the crossing at right angles.

No man or woman will hesitate to speak well of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets after once trying them. They always produce a pleasant movement of the bowels, improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion. For sale by All Druggists.

GOOD THINGS IN SEASON.

Refreshing Green Vegetables—Black-Strawberries.

Radishes and rhubarb are now in season in many of our gardens; beets and turnip tops, as well as young lettuce, are, or ought to be, available, thus giving us the green vegetables required at this season of the year.

In preparing radishes as a side dish leave on them about an inch of the stems, as this is said to make them more digestible. Heap on a dish and sprinkle with finely chopped ice. When added to a salad they should be thinly sliced, the scarlet edges adding a touch of dainty color to the dish.

Asparagus, as its season is comparatively short, ought to be served at least twice a week, especially as it has a direct and very beneficial effect upon the kidneys. Each stalk should be scraped with a dull knife, an inch of the dry lower end cut off, then tie in small bundles and boiled in salted water from half to three-quarters of an hour's cooking will be needed. If it is to be served cold as a salad, it is then set aside.

As a vegetable it requires a drawn butter sauce made wholly or in part with the pot liquor. It is also best to serve it on slices of toast dipped for an instant in some of the pot liquor before arranging on the platter.

Shad is slowly disappearing from market, and in its place comes bluefish, one of the best salt water varieties for broiling and baking. In broiling this, or any large fish, the split halves are laid in a greased broiler, and the flesh side is given the longer cooking. After the first searing it is raised from the coals, that the flesh may be thoroughly cooked without burning. During the broiling it should be moistened several times with a little melted butter; season with salt, pepper, a little lemon juice and a drop or two of tobacco or Worcestershire. For baking, the fish should be stuffed.

The illustration shows strawberry croquets. Each large berry has been dipped into beaten egg and rolled in fine stale sponge cake crumbs. This dipping and rolling are repeated; then the balls are plunged into smoking hot fat and quickly browned. When laid on a napkin, each croquet is pierced with a tiny ornamental skewer, and the dish is garnished with fresh berries.—Table Talk.

English Cherry Pie.

One cupful of lard and butter mixed, two cupfuls of flour and a teaspoonful of salt. Work the shortening into the flour with a knife, mix with sufficient ice water to hold together, handling as little as possible. Line the sides of a deep earthen baking dish, fill two-thirds full with stoned cherries, add two cupfuls of sugar and place a small cup inverted in the center of the dish. Cover with a thick top crust, no bottom crust being used. Spread over the crust a liberal coating of lard or butter before placing in the oven. When done raise the crust carefully and remove the cup, allowing the contents to flow through the pie. The juice never boils over when confined in this manner, as is too frequently the case with fruit pies.—Exchange.

A Black Silk Hat Bag.

A black silk hat bag is mentioned by a Table Talk correspondent as a great comfort for man or woman, especially in traveling across the continent. The hat slips easily in and out and is perfectly protected from dust when not in use. Materials: One and one-third yards of good quality of black India silk twenty-four inches wide and three yards of black satin ribbon one-half inch wide. Make the bag with a French seam. Make a three inch hem in the top. Stitch two rows half an inch apart above the hem for the black ribbon draw strings.

Rhubarb Jelly.

Rhubarb jelly is delicious and especially appetizing with meats. To make it cut up the stalks without peeling, then steam them until very soft. Lay them in a sieve to drain overnight or pour in a jelly, as preferred. Measure the juice and allow one pound of sugar to every pint of rhubarb juice and let it simmer ten minutes or until it begins to thicken on the edge; then add the sugar and let it simmer till it jellies on the spoon or when dropped on a cool plate. Remove the scum carefully as it forms and turn into glasses to harden.

Spinach In French Style.

The French prepare spinach by a superior method. When the spinach is boiled thoroughly tender and properly salted, of course free from every trace of grit, throw it in the colander and drench with cold water. This gives it a certain firmness and delicacy attained in no other way. It is to be shaken free of water, chopped fine, placed in a hot saucepan and stirred with a tablespoon of butter and two of cream until hot. Then heap in a mound in a dish with poached or boiled eggs on top.

Lemon Shortcake.

Make a rich cake, split and butter it; then take the rind, juice and pulp of three lemons grated, one cup of sugar, one cup of cream, mix thoroughly and spread.
