

BLOOD WINS FORTUNE
What meaning's in this word so often breathed
By young, bold, buoyant women, men, and boy,
What largely, vivacious, does, and has it wrought,
For those who are of Fortune but the toy?
What has it qualified, what raised, what tamed to some
Within the throbbing, anxious, loving, breast?

Hope! 'tis, oh what? else, a living gleam;
Which dashes, pleases, quickly fades away,
And leaves us helpless in a troubled dream;
Then on 'tis life at intervals'—twil cheer,
And is but moment when Death!—hovers near.

The Hop's a beaten regal on shifting sand,
A light which grows, and fuses, lutes, beguiles,
At times a bursting bark to rocky strand,
Still do we follow, love its mystic smile;
Sigh when it leaves us, watch with eager eye
Its rays returning in our sunless sky.

Hope then's the "sign-fame" of life,
T' comes o'er our cradle, and our riper years,
Add's to prosperity, amorous strife,
Struggles with sorrow, severity, cheer.
Death takes us hence, but make brethren this word,
O'er our sad bosoms, in, "Here lies interred."

VARIETIES.

TOUGHING DELICACY.

There were many little occurrences which suggested to me, with great consolation, how natural it is to gentle hearts to be considerate and delicate towards any inferiority. One of these particularly touched me. I happened to stroll into the little church when marriage was just concluded, and the young couple had to sign the register.

The bridegroom, to whom the pen was handed first, made a rude cross for his mark; the bride, who came next, did the same.

Now, I had known the bride when I was last there, not only as the prettiest girl in the place, but as having quite distinguished herself in the school; and I could not help looking at her with some surprise. She came aside and whispered to me, while tears of honest love and admiration stood in her bright eyes:

"He's a dear good fellow, Miss; but can't write yet; he's going to learn of me—and I wouldn't shame him for the world!"

Why, what had I to fear, I thought, when there was this nobility in the soul of a laboring man's daughter!—Black House.

THE POET'S DOG.

The manner in which Pope, the great English poet, was perversed by the uncommon sagacity of his dog is truly remarkable. This animal, which was called Marquis, could not agree with a favourite servant of this illustrious writer; he constantly growled when near him, and would even show his teeth when this servant approached. Although the English poet was singularly attached to this dog, (which was a spaniel of the largest species), yet on account of extreme neatness which he pushed almost to excess, he would never allow him to remain in his chamber. Nevertheless, in spite of the most positive orders, the spaniel would frequently sneak towards evening into the apartment, of his master, and would not be driven from it without the greatest difficulty. One evening, having slipped in very softly without being perceived, the animal placed himself under the bed of his master, and remained there scarcely breathing. Towards morning, the servant rushed hastily into the chamber of Pope. At this moment the faithful dog suddenly left his post and leaped on the villain who was armed with a pistol. The poet started from his sleep; he threw open the window to call for assistance, and beheld three highwaymen, who had been introduced by his servant into the garden, of his villa, for the purpose of robbing him of his most valuable possessions after having assassinated him. Discovered by this unforeseen accident, the robbers hesitated a moment, and then took flight. The servant thus betrayed by the watchful dog was sentenced to forfeit his life. How powerful must have been the instinct of this faithful animal, by whose astonishing sagacity was thus preserved the life of a man of whose fame England may justly be proud.

The same dog, shortly after this singular event, exhibited another proof of his remarkable instinct. Pojo, refusing one afternoon in a little wood, about three leagues distant from his house, lost a watch of great value. On returning home, the poet wished to know the hour, and found the watch was not in his pocket. Two or three hours had elapsed, and a violent storm was just commencing. The poet called his dog, and making a sign which Marquis well understood, he said "I have lost my watch—go look for it." At these words Marquis departed, quick as the flash which lit up his step, and repaired, so doubt, to every spot at which his master had stopped. It so happened that the poor animal was long occupied in the search to create great anxiety, for midnight had arrived and he had not yet returned. What was the astonishment of Pope, when on rising in the morning, he opened his door, and there behold his faithful messenger lying quietly and holding in his mouth the wanted jewel, which he had retained perfectly uninjured, and which was the more highly valued by the poet, as it had been presented to him by the Queen of England.

A noble lion, not over courageous, was caused to be engaged in an affair of honour, as to be drawn to Hyde Park, to fight a duel; but just as he came to the porter's lodge, an empty horse came by, on which his lordship's antagonist, who was a droll officer, well-known, called out to the driver—"Stop here, my good fellow, a few minutes, and I'll send you a fat." This operated so strongly on his lordship's nerves that he begged the officer's pardon, and resumed home in a half-dazed condition.

BELLS! BELLS! BELLS!

THE Subscribers manufacture and keep constantly on hand, all sizes of Church, Factory, Steamboat, Ferry, Locomotive, School House and Plantation Bells, with the best description of Hanging.

These Bells are made from the best stock, and the small sizes undergo the same process in manufacturing as Church Bells. An experience of thirty years, with a great many recent improvements, and an entirely new method of casting, enables us to obtain the most melodious tone, combining also, in extraordinary vibration.

Nearly 9,000 Bells have been cast and sold from this Foundry, which is the best evidence of their superiority.

We have fifteen Gold and Silver Medals given to us, which were awarded for the "best Bells for sonorosity and purity of tone." We pay particular attention to the quality of Peals, Chimes, and Campaniles, and to the construction of Bells, and Railroads running in every direction, which brings us within four hours of New York. Cash paid for old Copper. Old Clocks, Levels, Compasses, Transits, Theodolites, &c., for sale, of superior workmanship. All communications, either by mail or otherwise will have immediate attention.

A FARM TO BE LET, AND POSSESSION GIVEN IMMEDIATELY.

IT is situated nine miles from Charlottetown on the entrance of the New Glasgow Road, and consists of a 100 acres more or less; the property of John Hunter, late of that name (Hunter's Hill), on which he now resides—the farm will be let for a term of 10 to 15, or 20 years. The dwelling house is very comfortable but not very large, there is a well of water at the kitchen door; the office houses are very commodious and will contain a number of cattle. There are two barns, one for hay, with a granary on it, and the other for threshing, containing a new set of machinery, both threshing mill and lassers. The threshing mill is of four pairs, power, and of great speed, threshing at the rate of 50 bushels an hour. The premises are quite new and very good indeed. The land is all cleared and in good condition, except about 3 acres of swamp. There is a brook passing through the land in the pasture ground, and also a spring rises about 20 chains higher up. The house is situated on the eastern side of a hill. The land is well fenced in fields of 6 or 7 acres each; there is a Grist Mill about half a mile from the house, and a Windmill nearly the same distance. Good roads can be had in the vicinity of Egham, distant from the dwelling about a mile and a half.

Terms may be known by applying at Haszard's Gazette office.
