Psalm of the Bald Heads

fell me not, in merry accents, That I have an unthatched roof Tis the hairy head that lacks sense Baldness is of thought a proof.

Hair is vulgar, hair is useless, And to brush and comb a bore Making life but dull and juicele I need brush and comb no more,

Not for wise men matted hair is, Black or brown or red is fair: Let the savage of the prairies
Waste his time in raising hair!

Life is short and hairs are numbered. And, though flies are hardly borne, Still at night I've always slumbered, When the nightcap I have worn. In the world's broad field of battle.

Listening to his tiresome tattle, Better bare as a billiard-ball. Fear no future, bald-headed brother

You were bald in infant days; Crave not hirsute or another— Brain it is, not hair that pays.

Lives of great men all remind us Leave all hairy heads behind us. Let us thank the favoring fates! L'ootprints of Ola Time's fleet walking

No one sees on our smooth crowns, Mind no more the idle talking Made by anxious mop head clowns Let us, then, O hairless brother

A novel gas-light, devised by Dr. Auer has been in operation in a chemical laboratory in Nienna. A cotton wick, saturated with an incombustible metal solution, is introduced into the flame of an ordinary Bunsen lamp, the result being a light similar to the incandescent

Not a single instance of color-blindness has been found by Schwarzback in an examination of 2000 Hottentots, Malays, Melanesians, Australians, Maoris and Polynesians; and he concluded that the defect is confined to the white race and is due to influences connected with civilized life.

The common perfumes used in confectionery and cordials have been investigated by two French chemists. Large quantities of these chemicals proved poisonous to animals, but it is doubtful whether the quanties actually employed by confectioners and liquor manufactur-ers are considerable enough to do harm.

HARPER & BROTHERS, New York 1886. Harper's Young People.

The position of HARPER'S YOUNG PROPLE as the leading weekly periodical for young readers is well established. The publishers spare ne pains to provide the best and most attractive reading and illustrations. The serial and short stories have strong dramatic interest, while they are wholly free from whatever is pernitrious or vulgarity sensational; the papers on natural history and science, travel, and the facts of life, are by writers whose sames give the best assumance of accuracy and value. Illustrated papers on athletic sports, games, and pastimes give full information on these subjects. There is nothing obean about it but its price.
