The Three Worst Emotions.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Jealousy, remorse and a sense of injustice of all the painful emotions that we are called on to experience, I think these are the most painful. Which is the worst of the three I wouldn't presume to judge. They are all bad enough. And any one of them is together too bad for a kind-hearted woman to visit upon a child.

And yet how many women do make their children smart from a sense of injustice because they, the mothers, will not take the time and pains to find out in every childish squabble just where justice lies.

A friend of mine has two children, a little girl who is almost invariably very sweet and good and obedient, and a boy just as sweet in his way, but with all the instinctive wilfulness and mischievousness that makes a boy child so much more difficult to deal with than the average girl.

The Boy Of It And The Girl Of It. He teases his little sister and she breaks and destroys things and is perpetually getting into mischief of one sort or another.

His little sister is used to seeing him punished, and I am afraid she enjoys it, for she has lately developed a habit of running to her mother with news of her brother's misdeeds, especially offences toward herself.

"Brother pulled my hair"; "Mother, brother stepped on my foot," she says. And—whereby hangs my tale—almost without investigation, brother is scolded or punished, because he usually is guilty.

Once I happened to be a witness of one of these little fracasces and I knew that sister had been just about as much to blame as brother for the scrimmage that resulted in her rushing to her mother. Yet, had it not been for my testimony, he would undoubtedly have been the only one punished.

Tattling Makes Prigs Of Children. Incidentally, tattling is just as much a sin as hair pulling and should not be encouraged. Of course there are times when a child must tell in self-defence, but too often they get the habit and develop into self-righteous little prigs.

We do not easily forget injustice. A man of forty tells me that he has never ceased to burn with hate when he thinks of a nurse girl who unjustly put the blame on him in a dispute between him and one of his sisters. He says he will never forget the fury he felt when he heard her refuse to corroborate him in his true story.

The Unfairness Broke His Heart. In an article on child's suicide is an uncanny story of the youngest suicide ever known. A child of three was playing with his younger brother when his mother came into the room with a tub of scalding water. There had been some fracas between the two children, and without a question as to the right, the mother picked up the younger child and petted it and rebuked the elder. Whereat the three-year-old, in a passion of resentment, threw himself into the tub of water.

A horrible story, isn't it? But it shows how keenly even the youngest child can feel injustice and should make the mother judges even more zealous how they deal out justice in the little court where their power is absolute.

Three Hundred Years Ago.

It is difficult to realize the strained excitement in England three hundred years ago while our ancestors were waiting for the dreadful invasion. There were no Allies to help England, the people of the Netherlands were too hardly pressed to give us aid. The Spanish fleet was three times as great as ours, and according to the doctrine of probabilities, there ought to have been no disputing its command of the sea. Liberty was at stake, the very existence of our country menaced by a danger far greater than that which threatens us nowadays, because the national services had been starved, and the balance of strength was so decidedly against us. We know what the issue was. "Jehovah blew, and his enemies were scattered"—such was the proud inscription on the medal which signified the safety of the Netherlands. —London Telegraph.

"MEASLES."

Hundreds of children are suffering from "Measles" at the present time, and one has to be very careful in trying to avoid the complications that often follow them.

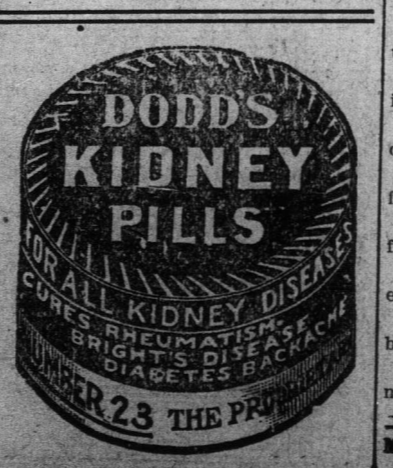

A heavy "Cough" is very prevalent during the present epidemic, and "Pneumonia" is the great danger. Avoid this by keeping a bottle of "Stafford's Phorotone Cough Cure" on hand.

Stafford's Drug Store (Theatre Hill) is open every night from 7.30 to 9.30. The above preparation is manufactured only by DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, St. John's, Nfld.

AT THE CRESCENT.

Some of the most interesting happenings in all the principal cities of the world is contained in the "Hearst Selig News Pictorial" shown at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day, the feature picture is a two-reel comedy drama: "Fish's Shy," produced by the Essanay Company featuring Richard C. Travers. "The Discontented Man" is a strong Lubin society drama. "When Snakeville Struck Oil" is a great Snakeville Comedy. Professor McCarthy plays a classy programme of music to accompany this big week end show. On Monday the Crescent shows a great three reel Diamond special feature, "The Agony of Fear."

The Gravenstein apple is better for jelly-making than almost any crab-apple.

Our Boys.

With a pride so thrilling, My bosom filling, I heard the deeds of Our native sons, Who did so nobly On Gallipoli In face of death from The Turkish guns.

Her sons courageous Have in past ages Renowned been For strength and skill; Now men like Donnelly Have proved quite solemnly Britain's Oldest Colony Has heroes still.

They've proved in Turkey That they are worthy An Empire's homage: And men's goodwill: They left behind them What will remind men Of their endurance: 'Tis "Caribou Hill."

A few plain crosses On mounds of mosses Tell of the losses Our bands sustain; Lost to the Nation But—Consolation! The Allies' losses Are Heaven's gain.

May God sustain them, Their friends regain them, And Peace proclaim them Victorious! Forebears cease humming May they be coming To Home and us.

Won't You Help?

Every little bit helps, so if you haven't yet exchanged that dime for a ticket for the opening baseball game on Wednesday next, you had better do it now.

The entire proceeds are being devoted to the new Soldiers' and Sailors' Club. If you cannot fight to help the Cause you can help the Cause by looking after the comfort of the fighters.

The ladies who have done such noble work since the beginning of the war, are working untiringly to secure sufficient funds and are co-operating with the baseballers to make the day a huge financial success.

The game will be under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency Sir W. E. Davidson. Mayor Gosling, who was initiated into the ancient and honourable Order of Fans last year, has very kindly consented to throw the first ball across the plate, and thus formally open the 1916 season.

The competing teams will be the College Cubs and B. I. S., and both lines are in great shape this year, owing to the addition of experienced material.

Six or more of the boys in khaki will be playing, but the managers of both Clubs have refused up to the present to give their lineups. Get your ticket to-day, only TEN cents, but 'twill help to swell the fund.

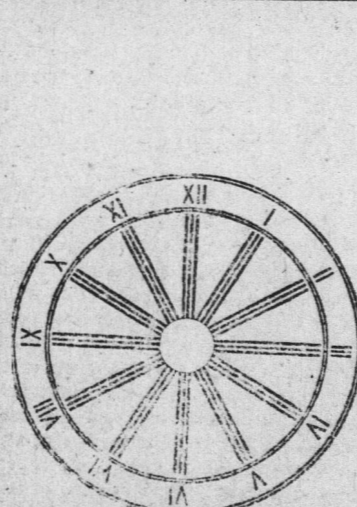

Never force a baby to sit up or to walk. Cabbage should always be boiled in two waters. Asparagus should be served every day during the season. Lack of system is the chief reason for poorly done housework. Japanese cotton rugs are excellent for dining and sitting rooms. There should be a rest period in every housekeeper's schedule. Salmon salad is delicious with hard-boiled eggs diced and added. The smaller stalks of rhubarb are much less tart than the large ones.

Scientific

New Discovery—
No scientific discovery in recent years has attracted such wide-spread attention among physicians in this country and throughout Canada as the wonderful D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema.
After years of debate, medical authorities are now agreed that eczema and other skin diseases are not so in the blood but are caused by the action of microscopic germs growing in the flesh just below the epidermis. The patient is perfectly healthy, it is only the skin that is diseased.
Hence, scientists are now agreed that you must cure the skin through the skin. The medicine must be
