Hockey Notes

The Terra Nova's and St. Bon's will clash this evening and a one-sided exhibition is expected.

The line-ups will be—

Terra Nova's	Goal	St. Bon's
Quick	Power	Point
Herder	Knigh	Cover
Tobin	McGettigan	Rover
Watts	Kelly	Centre
Trappell	McGrath	Right
Sellers	Walsh

On Wednesday evening the Fellsians and Victorias will try conclusions. A fast game will probably be the outcome.

The Vics. will miss Sinnott, who, we regret to note, is seriously ill. Though an invalided soldier, having been shot through a lung during the "big push" in France last July, Brendan played excellent hockey this winter. Only last Friday evening while playing against the Terra Novas he contracted a heavy cold which developed into pneumonia.

It is a possibility that the Windsorite hockeyists will be brought here about the 20th instant to play a series of games with the City.

With the Red Cross.

Letters have been received from Jim Simms, which contain news that will be of interest to his many friends here. He is now assisting at the Duchess of Connaught Canadian Red Cross Hospital, Buckinghamshire. He likes the work and is in much better health than when doing office work. They have at the Hospital 1,200 beds with a staff of 200; patients are going and coming all the time. He would like to be remembered to all his friends in St. John's and especially wishes to thank the members of the Llewellyn Club for a Xmas card from them which was a source of great pleasure to him.

Families' Separate Coinages.
The fact that the Chamber of Commerce of Marseilles, owing to the shortage of currency, has issued aluminium counters for small change, is another illustration of the way in which old customs are being introduced to meet the exigencies of the times.

Among the numerous minor Grecian States, in an early medieval Europe, separate coinages were, of course, issued, not only by individual nations, but by cities and even families. Such local coinages were valid only within a certain restricted area, and this is the case with the present issue at Marseilles, which has no value outside the city limits.

The publisher of the best Farmer's paper in the Maritime Provinces is writing to us states:

"I would say that I do not know of a medicine that has stood the test of time like MINARD'S LINIMENT. It has been an unflinching remedy in our household ever since I can remember.

Your Boys and Girls.

Be sure not to expose a young baby more than is absolutely necessary. Keep warm towels close by so you can dry the baby the moment you take him out of his bath. Before he is undressed you can wash his scalp. After the head and face have been washed and dried take off the clothing and soap the entire body. After the bath and drying use talcum powder freely. Dress the baby as quickly as you can or put him quickly to bed. It is well to accustom babies to tepid baths as early as possible.

Waste No Strength on Hate.

Sheffield Telegraph:—German hate may look ugly. But, as "Dryden" wrote, our enemies had better "be ware of the fury of a patient man." We have held on while we and our Allies have made ready for war. So we treat with scorn these renewed threats. We know what they are worth. We note, too, that the Germans say there is no weakness in their country. There has been plenty of pretended weakness. We are wise in that we go calmly and patiently on still preparing for the greatest clash of arms the world has ever known. As one of our generals expressed it the other day, we have to do what has to be done; and do it thoroughly.

That is the position. We shall waste no strength on hate. We shall just give the Germans "a big hiding."

A fine comedy drama by the Lubin Company is "Persistence"; and Rose Melville as "Miss Hopkins" features in "Her Great Invention," a very laughable comedy. Professor McCarthy plays a new and new and classy musical programme for this great week-opening show; don't miss seeing it.

Must Raid Holland or Denmark to Keep Up Struggle, Neutral Observer Writes — Coal Shortage Serious — Tells of Berlin Rioters Fighting for Shoes and Army Grumbling About Food.

London, Jan. 18.—The London Times to-day prints a description of conditions in Germany from "the neutral whose observations have proved so accurate in the past." The Times contends that this is one of the first direct, uncensored communications that have reached the outer world for some months. The neutral, who dates his despatch Cologne, Jan. 12, says:

"Since the period of Curtin's investigation of the economic situation in Germany matters have been getting steadily worse. It would be no exaggeration to say that one can now see fresh deterioration every week, and the pace down hill is getting faster. Both the German people and the German Army on the Western front have in the last few months experienced very considerable changes for the worse. I always have, as you know, warned the Allies against over-optimism regarding the economic situation in Germany, but there really does not seem to be much need of a warning now. It is not only my impression, but that of my German friends who are in a position to know the facts as to the food supply, that Germany is faced by the prospect of being unable to continue the struggle unless she really raids Denmark or Holland, or both, for meat, corn, butter and oil.

"Let me say first that throughout my tour I have not heard of any actual starvation. Every baby, at any rate every baby under 2 years of age, gets sufficient milk except in the principal munitions areas, where so much of the milk from the surrounding districts is converted into glycerine. Invalids are suffering, but those who have money can on medical certificates obtain permission to go to Switzerland, Holland or Denmark, for fixed periods, but the rich do not really suffer at all. The condition of the general population, especially in the towns, large and small, is deplorable. There is a great deal of complaining and of late disputes between various authorities of the various States have increased in intensity. There also is great bitterness as between the country and the towns, and in any particular town I have been told that some, other town is flowing with milk and honey, although I have been about Germany enough to know better. The complaints against the country people are doubtless justified by their greater possibilities of hoarding food, the possession of which they will not disclose, yet it would be a great mistake to exaggerate the practical effect of the prevailing distress. It seems to me that nothing is more striking than the way in which the docility of all the German tribes, Prussians, Saxons, Bavarians and the rest, positively increase with the decrease of strength caused by the lack of food.

"I do not see how Germany is to continue indefinitely without obtaining leather. As you well know, the system now has been put on a card basis. I was in Berlin on what was apparently the last day of sale without cards. The people crowded the fronts of shops and had to be dispersed by the police when the shops closed. Outside one of the shops in Leipzigerstrasse there was a great fight. Everybody wanted to get boots, no matter what kind or size, and men even bought women's boots, the idea being that it would be possible to change them later. However, it was promptly announced that in future boots would not be changed without a special permit.

My journey occupied much more time than I had expected, because the whole German railway system is disorganized by a shortage of coal. This is partly due to labor difficulties—in spite of the release of labor by the military authorities for work in the mines—partly to the vast increase in the amount of coal needed by the munitions works, and partly to the increasing quantity sent to Switzerland in exchange for food. Many trains have been stopped altogether, and ordinary travelling of business is rendered more difficult by the priority given to troops and transport trains. Nevertheless, at several places on my journey I saw new railway lines under construction, and much other public work going on as usual. At one place I drove along a road bordering a considerable stretch of new railway line, and noticed that all the workers were Russian and French prisoners, guarded by very old soldiers and very young ones.

"It is not true as stated in the English and French newspapers, which are sold here as freely as heretofore, that the diet of the armies remains as it was. There are bitter grumblings from the soldiers back from the eastern front, and the soldiers returning from the Somme and Verdun complain of increasing diminution in the mixture of butter and margarine served out to them.

"There are military bands everywhere as usual, but there is no military spirit left in any of the cities I visited. The German people generally are sick of the war. Their only comfort is in their belief that food prices and the scarcity in Russian, England and France are worse than in Germany."

RENOVATING PROSPERO.—The work of thoroughly overhauling and renovating the S. S. Prospero will occupy at least two months. A number of the ship's plates, which were damaged by contact with ice, will have to be taken off and repaired. The hull and engines also need attention.
