G.W.V.A. Circus Popularity Contest

If the lady candidates in the forthcoming Municipal Contest will receive the same support from their friends and admirers as are the fair contenders in the War Vets' popularity contest then they must certainly lead the poll and St. John's will enjoy the unique reputation of having a lady as Deputy Mayor. The close of yesterday's voting found the results positions unchanged from yesterday's official standing with Mrs. Kinsella still leading by a small majority, which Miss Marlon Moore second, and Miss Stella Crane valiantly holding her place as third. A new high record for one day's polling was established by Miss Margaret Firth who produced 2,925 votes. Miss Fannie Coady brought in 2,600 and will undoubtedly prove a strong incentive for numerous friends (particularly in the West End) to have the honours taken from the East End.

Easy Lessons in - AUCTION BRIDGE

ARTICLE No. 5

There are still a number of auction players who as dealer do not understand what to do with certain types of hands. Most players know when to bid no-trump or one of a suit but every now and then they hold hands that puzzle them. For example, suppose you dealt and held the following hand:

Hearts—A, K, J
Clubs—9, 7, 4, 3
Diamonds—A, K, Q
Spades—8, 5

What would you bid? The only proper bid with this hand is one no-trump and yet the holder of this hand passed. It is too strong to justify a pass for if you do, there is a very good chance of the hand being passed out. It will also mislead partner as to strength held. Here's another hand:

Hearts—A, K, 4
Clubs—A, 9

Hearts—K, J
Clubs—1, 6, 3, 2
Diamonds—9, 3, 2
Spades—A, K, 10, 4

No score, rubber game, Z dealt and passed, A bid one spade, Y one no-trump, B passed and Z bid two hearts. A and Y passed and B bid two spades, Z bid three clubs, A and Y passed and B bid three spades, Z bid four clubs, A doubled, Y redoubled and B bid four spades, Z and A passed, Y doubled, B redoubled and all passed, Y opened the ace of hearts and then led the trey. How should A play the combined hands? After winning the second trick with the king of hearts, A should lead the king of spades. He should then lead a low diamond and win the trick in B's hand with the king. He should then lead a low spade and win the trick with the ace in his own hand. In this particular hand, Z failed to follow suit on the second round of spades. A was now in a position where he could count Z's hand very accurately. Y's lead of the ace and the fact that B held the deuce indicated that Y originally held only two hearts. Therefore Z must have held six hearts. Z's bid and rebid of clubs indicated that he must have held at least five clubs so that his original holding must have been six hearts, five clubs, one spade and one diamond. Therefore, A at the sixth trick should lead a diamond and finesse the jack. Played in this way, AB should make their contract for YZ can only make the ace of hearts and two spade tricks. Play out the hand for practice.

Problem No. 3

Hearts—8
Clubs—none
Diamonds—none
Spades—K, 9, 8, 3

Hearts—K, 9
Clubs—none
Diamonds—none
Spades—J, 6, 2

There are no trumps and Z is in the lead. How can YZ win three of the five tricks against any defense?

Answer to Problem No. 3

Z should lead the jack of spades and A's best play is the queen. If A should play the ace, YZ will win the balance of the tricks. If A allows the jack to hold the trick, AB can only win one trick. When A therefore, plays the queen of spades, Y should win the trick with the king and lead the eight of hearts. If B plays the ten, Z should play the king and then lead the nine. If B plays low, Z should play the nine, forcing A in the lead. A can now lead a heart or a spade. If the former, Z wins the trick and leads a spade. If A leads the ace and small spade, Y will win the remaining tricks. In either case therefore, AB can only win one spade and one heart trick so that YZ win three of the five tricks against any defense.

Little Jack Rabbit

Soothing Syrup's a wonderful thing. For a tummy ache or a sneaker sting. It makes one feel so comfy and warm. Just like the sunshine after a storm.

And that's just what happened to Mr. Wicked Wolf as soon as he had swallowed Dr. Quack's wonderful medicine. You remember what might have happened as we ended last night's story, or what probably would have come to pass had not the famous duck doctor cured Mr. Wicked Wolf's hunger pains in the nick of time. I'll let you guess, for I'd hate to put the dreadful consequences into words.

"Ah, I feel better—almost well," smiled the old wolf, rubbing his hairy vest with his hairy front paw. "Why, I feel perfectly well. Not the least twinge of a hunger pang."

"Glad I could be of service to you," replied Dr. Quack, the famous duck doctor, locking his little black medicine case. "Sorry that I must hurry on. Uncle Lucky has sprained his pinkie toe, the one that has the rheumatiz, you know. Goodbye," and turning to Peter Pig, he asked him to drive on.

Dear me, at first poor Peter Pig scarcely heard the brave duck doctor. Peter was so frightened he had all but lost his sense of hearing. Indeed, he had lost control of his tongue, for without a word, he clapped the reins on the back of Donkey Longears, who at once started off towards the dear Old Bramble Patch.

"Goodbye," again quacked the brave duck doctor, waving a wing to Mr. Wicked Wolf, who, wonderful to relate, stood quietly on the Old Cow Path, his face wreathed in smiles and his tummy soothed with Dr. Quack's magic syrup. With a bow, the old wolf watched the donkey start rumble down the hill. Then, his face still a-smiling, he trotted off to his little rocky den in the Shady Forest.

"Whew!" at last exclaimed Peter Pig, having found his breath and the use of his tongue. "I never was so frightened in all my life. Thought my last minute had come, sure as the hills on the first of the month."

"Pretty close shave," agreed Dr. Quack, jumping out of the rig as the little donkey stopped at the gate in the old picket fence, that ran all around the dear Old Bramble Patch. The next minute the little rabbit hopped out of the bushes. "Hurry, hurry Dr. Quack. Uncle Lucky's little

The old wolf watched the donkey cart ramble down the hill.

"Come right in," cried Lady Love, on seeing who was standing there, and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.
