Pelletier says owing spring freshets and ice-jams, the fishing operations were delayed; how er, a fair catch was effected. A new fish, called German carp, made its appearance in the Thames River. This fish appears to be very prolific and grows to a large size. Some of the specimens taken weighed 22 pounds. 'Overseer John Crotty reports a decrease in pickerel, but an increase in carp. He does not consider the latter a desirable fish in our waters. It is the same nature as the mullets, they suck the spawn of the better class of fish, and are as voracious as the pike saw-dust regulations were well looked after by him."

His real name is Jean Baptist Leblanche. He is a son of a French plumber and a negress, and was born n the Island of Hayti. He left the sland at an early age and went to England, and thence to France, finally being engaged as valet to Gustavus Griffin, M.D., M.A., who was a promnent member of the French Academy. Leblanche picked up many of the forms of good society while in Dr. Griffin's employment. In March, 1886, blanche, or Griffin, was arrested in Los Angeles on a charge of embezzlement.
