"The statue of the great Prussian king in the capital of the mightiest republic the world has ever seen, as a gift from Emperor William, will constitute one of the most interesting and sympathetic historic mementoes is existence. Prince Henry of Prussia's visit, Miss Roosevelt's christening of the emperor's yacht, and the present of the statue are merely symbols. The real motive of the rapprochement be-tween the two peoples is mutual esteem which, is politics, is always highly effective. The friendship of the two nations is the result of a historical process, and therefore is not likely to be subjected to severe shocks in the immediate future, but more probably it will contribute to diminish economic differences."

ANOTHER VIEW. The Vorwaerts (Socialist) is inclined to disparage Emperor William's Friday. The other members of the exgift, it says that if congress accepts it, King Frederick's will be the only statue of a monarch at the Republican capital. The paper also digs up from the memoirs of Frederick the Great covering 1774 to 1778, his threat to levy cattle duty on the Hessian

Bulwer Lytton.

A Mora of Revelry Preceded a Night of Horror.

Lord Edward Bulwer-Lytton, the famous English novelist and historian, probably wrote the most graphic description of the terror, panic and despair which a volcanic eruption causes fiercely against the solid gloom. In the concluding chapters of his story of "The Last Days of Pompeii." "A gala event of unusual magnitude had been arranged to take place on that day and everybody had arisen in a happy anticipation of the event. "The air was uncommonly sultry, a thin and dull mist gathered over the valleys and hollows of the broad Campanian fields. "But yet it was remarked in surprise by the early fishermen, that, despite the exceeding stillness of the atmosphere, the waves of the sea were agialong the blue and stately Sarnus, whose ancient breadth of channel the traveler now vainly seeks to discover, there crept a hoarse and sullen murmur as it glided by the laughing plains and the gaudy villas of the wealthy

"Clear above the low mists rose the time-worn towers of the immediate town, the red-tiled roofs of the bright streets, the solemn columns of many temples and the statue-crowned portals of the Forum and the Arch of

"Far in the distance the outlines of the circling hills soared above the vapors and mingled with the changeful hues of the morning sky.

"The cloud that had so long rest-1 over the crest of Vesavius had suddenvanished, and its rugged and haughty brow looked without a frown over the beautiful scenes below "Despite the earliness of the hour, the gates of the city were already opened. Horseman upon horseman, vehicle after vehicle poured rapidly in; and the voices of numerous pedestrian groups, clad in holiday attire, rose high in joyous and excited merriment; the streets were crowded with citizens and strangers from the populous neighborhood of Pompeii, and noisily, fast, confusedly swept the many streams of and gigantic through the darkness, ife toward the fatal show.

"Four condemned men had been compelled that day to meet in deadly fire! Its summit seemed riven in two gladiatorial combat in the arena. The or rather, above its surface there day was nearly ended when one them, learned and crafty, noticed that each confronting each, as demons con-Vesuvius was about to break forth. 'Behold!' he shouted with a voice of thunder, which stilled the roar of lighted up the whole atmosphere far the crowd: 'behold how the gods pro- and wide; but below, the nether part of the crowd; 'behold how the gods protect the guiltless! The fires of the avenging Orcus burst forth against the false witness of my accusors!'

"The eyes of the crowd followed the gesture of the Egyptian, and beheld, with ineffable dismay, a vast vapor shooting from the summit of Vesuvius, in the form of a gigantic pine tree; the trunk, blackness—the branches, fire! the fire that shifted and wavered in its hues with every moment, now fiercely luminous, now of a dull and dying red, that again blazed terrifically forth with intolerable glare!

silence-through which there suddenly broke the roar of the lion, which was echoed back from within the building by the sharper and fiercer yells of its fellow-beast. Dread seers were they of the burden of the atmosphere, and wild prophets of the wrath to come! "Then there arose on high the universal shrieks of women; the men stared at each other, but were dumb. At that moment they felt the earth shake beneath their feet; the walls of the theater trembled; and beyond in the distance they heard the crash of falling roofs; an instant more and the mountain cloud seemed to roll toward them, dark and rapid like a torrent; at the same time, it cast forth from its hosom a shower of ashes mixed with vast fragments of burning stone! Over the crushing vines-over the desolate streets-over the amphitheater itself -far and wide-with many a mighty splash in the agitated sea-fell that awful shower! "No longer thought the crowd of justice or of Arbaces; safety for themselves was their sole thought. Each turned to fly-each dashing, pressing, crushing against the other. Tramping recklessly over the fallen-amid groans, and oaths, and prayers, and sudden shrieks, the enormous crowd vomited itself forth through the numerous passages. Whither should they fly! Some, anticipating a second earthquake, hastened to their homes to load themselves with their most costly goods, and escape while it was yet time; others, dreading the showers of ashes that now fell fast, torrent upon torrent, over the streets, rushed under the roofs of the nearest houses, or temples, or sheds-shelter of any kind -for protection from the terrors of the open air. But darker, and larger, and mightier, spread the cloud above them. It was a sudden and more ghastly Night rushing upon the realm of "The cloud which had scattered so deep a murkiness, over the day, had now settled into a solid and impenetrable mass. It resembled less even the thickest gloom of a night in the open air than the close and blind darkness of some narrow room. But in proportion as the blackness gathered, did the lightnings around Vesuvius increase in their vivid and scorching glare. Nor was their horrible beauty confined to the usual hues of fire; no rainbow ever rivaled their varying and prodigal dyes. Now brightly blue as the most azure depth of a southern sky-now of a livid and snake-like green, darting restlessly to and fro as the folds of an enormous serpent-now of a lurid and intolerable crimson, gushing forth through the columns of smoke, far and wide, and lighting up the whole city from arch to arch-then suddenly dy ing into a sickly paleness, like the ghost of their own life. "In the pauses of the showers you heard the rumblings of the earth beneath, and the groaning waves of the tortured sea; or, lower still, and audible, but, to the watch of intense fear, the grinding and hissing murmur of solid mass, and by the lightning to assume quaint and vast mimicries of human or monster shapes striding across the gloom, hurling one upon the other, and vanishing swiftly into the turbu-lent abyss of shade; so that, to the eyes and fancies of the affrighted wanderers, the unsubstantial vapors were as the bodily forms of gigantic foes-the agents of terror and death. 'The ashes in many places were already knee-deep, and the boiling showers which came from the steaming breath of the volcano forced their way into the houses, bearing with them a

In some places immense fragments of rock, hurled upon the house roofs, bore down along the streets masses of confused ruin, which yet more and more Graphic Description From Pen of with every hour obstructed the way, and as the day advanced the motion of the earth was more sensibly felt-the footing seemed to slide and creep -nor could charlot or litter be kept steady, even on the most level ground. "Sometimes the huger stones, striking against each other as they fell, broke into countless fragments emitting sparks of fire, which caught whatever was combustible within their reach; and along the plains beyond the city the darkness was now terribly relieved, for several houses, and even vineyards, had been set on flames, and at various intervals the fires rose sullenly and add to this partial relief of the darkness, the citizens had, here and there, in the more public places, such as the porticoes of temples and the entrances to the forum, endeavored to place rows of torches, but these rarely continued long; the showers and the winds extinguished them, and the sudden darkness into which their fitful light was

Wild, haggard, ghastly with supernatural fears, these groups encountered each other, but without the leisure to speak, to consult, to advise; for the showers fell now frequently, though not continuously, extinguishing the lights, which showed to each band the deathlike faces of the other, and hurrying all to seek refuge beneath the nearest shelter. The whole elements of civilization were broken up. Ever and anon by the flickering lights you saw the thief hastening by the most solemn authorities of the law, laden with and fearfully chuckling over the produce of his sudden gains. If in the darkness wife was separated from husband or parent from child vain was the hope of reunion. Each hurried blindly and confusedly on. Nothing in all the various and complicated machinery of social life was left save the primal law of self-preservation. "Suddenly the place became lighted with an intense and lurid glow. Bright which closed around it like the walls of hell, the mountain shone—a pile of seemed to rise two monster shapes, tending for a world. These were of one deep blood-red hue of fire, which the mountain was still dark and shrouded, save in three places adown which flowed, serpentine and irregular, rivers of the molten lava. Darkly red through the profound gloom of their banks, they flowed slowly on as toward the devoted city. Over the broadest there seemed to spring a cragged and stupendous arch, from which, as from the jaws of hell, gushed the sources of the sudden Phlegethon, and through the stilled air was heard the rattling of the fragments of rock, hurtling one upon another as they were borne down "There was a dead, heart-sunken the flery cataracts, darkening instant the spot where they fell, and suffused the next in the burnished hues of the flood along which they floated. "The ground shook with a convulsion that cast all around upon its surface. simultaneous crash responded through the city, as down toppled many a roof and pillar-the lightning, as if caught by the metal, lingered an instant on the imperial statue-then shivered bronze and column! Down fell the ruin, echoing along the street, and riving the solid pavement where it crashed!'
