No. 1283-A Practical Kitchen Apron. Every woman, whether she has to Every woman, whether she has to do the work about the house or not, will find use for a simple, practical work-apron, such as the one here pictured. It slips on and off easily, and is the simplest of garments to make. Besides, it is infinitely attractive and becoming, with its long lines and squarecut neck. The usual apron materials are suitable for reproduction, such as linen, gingham, holland and percale. The pattern is cut in three sizes, small, medium and large. It requires 5 yards of 36-inch material for the medium size. takes to "strew his bride's way with lowers" and literally begins this arduous duty before the ring is safely on her finger. An item of the wedding expenses falls to the lot of the bridegroom the item of flowers for bride and bridesmaids. He may also, if he is a thoughtful young man, send a big bunch of violets to the bride's mother and some roses to any other immediate female relative who will be at the wedding, though not in the bridal procession; but to the pride and her maids he must send the flowers they carry. This and the wedding fee to the officiating clergyman is the only expense in the wedding pageant that falls to his share. But immediately after the ceremony his turn occurs, beginning with the carriage in which he and his bride are whirled

A modern wedding bouquet costs the bridegroom at the very least the sum of $5. If the flowers are orchids t will cost more. There is a deal of skill in the making of a bride's bouquet It may not be tossed carelessly together, neither may it be a stiff, rigid bunch of flowers. It must express utmost grace and must give the idea of loosely arranged blossoms together with a certain formality and elegance that will accord with the wedding gown. Most brides prefer lily-of-the-valley, the bride's own This is mingled with maidenhair fern and shower loops of white ribbon tied with small sprays of the valley lily trail from the large bouquet.
