THE TORONTOS DONE UP TO THE

It is becoming monotonous, this series of defeats. It is true there is an occasional histus in the record, when the tail of the kite looms in view, but then there are The Toronto Baseball Nine.

kite looms in view, but then there are cases in the Egyptian deserts and yet those same deserts are still not pleasant roads to for travelers. The fact is the Toronto team is not able to cope in its present state with any nine that has pretensions to play. There is scarcely a man in the crowd that can bat decently, and in the field they can invariably be depended on for one or more costly errors. It is true the club has experienced hard luck in having Stemmyer disabled and Reid laid up, but these things are the natural appurtenances of a baseball nine and as far as possible should be guardad against by having two or three spare men, and above all, a change battery, who should not be required to play in the field on their off days. One thing the directors may be sure of, and that is that a picayune policy will not pay. Toronte offered, and does still offer, an excellent field for a first class baseball club, but it must be as near as possible first class in every particular. It must be able not only to pluck the tail of the kite but to win against decent clubs. At present the Toronto club cannot do so. They may perchance secure an occasional victory, but it is safe to bet that it will be more owing to the blunders of their opponent than to any particular merit of their ewn. A good club means increased gate receipts, but a non-winning organization means a dropping off until the benches will present a lamentable spectacle of emptiness. It is, therefore, to the interests of the directors to allow nothing reasonable to stand in their way until the benches will present a lamentable spectacle of emptiness. It is, therefore, to the interests of the directors to allow nothing reasonable to stand in their way as regards the procuring of a good nine. Other clubs appear able to secure acquisition, why not the Torontos? The gate receipts here on a mid-week-day are as large as they are elsewhere on a Saturday, and there is no good excuse consequently for not having a reputable nine, that is, if money can attain that object, and we believe it can. Report has it that even now the Toronto team is the most expensive in the league. In that case there is no reason why it should not be the best.

MACLEOD, N.W.T., July 31 .- For some time past there has been bad blood between time past there has been and blood between two cowboys on the Walrond ranche, named respectively Thomson and Charlie Wright: This finally oulminated in a dispute which occurred last week in a corral on the ranche. Thomson seems to have been the man who forced the fighting, Wright repeatedly saying that he did not want any trouble Thomson insisted upon fighting, and both men pulled their revolvers at the same moment. Three shots were fired by each party. The first two did not take effect on either side. At the third shot the lates went against Thomson. His opposent, Wright, was not hit, but he (Thomson) received a ball in the left shoulder, which at once placed him hors de combat. Immediately after the shooting, in which loth men displayed an abundance of that quality known as sand, Wright bid a tender facewell to his old stamping grounds, and mounting a horse, struck out for Montana. The wounded man was at once brought to Macleod, and taken to the police hospital, Dr. Kennedy trailed up the offending ball, and took it out just under the left shoulder-blade. Sad-Eyed Widow Left Without a Penny The inquest Further Adjourned Until Next Tuesday—Gibson to Remain

Coroner Duncan and his jury resumed he inquest last night at Queen and arliament streets on the death of John Varden. Very little additional light was Warden. Very little additional light was hrown on the mysterious affair. The sale of oil paintings advertised to take emains of Warden were buried yesterday fternoon. His widow is left penniles, Monday, August 3, at 2 p.m. and a "movement" was started by one of the jurymen sitting on the inquest to raise a subscription for her benefit. She was at the hearing last night dressed in black and wearing a very sad face. Gibson maintained his bright and unconcerned demeanor, and his friends are deeply confident that he had nothing whatever to do with Warden's death. One afternoon. His widow is left penniles, whatever to do with Warden's death. One of the strange features of the case is that, even supposing that Warden's skull was fractured in the scuffle with Gibson, he should be able to walk around the black with the Burton brothers, stop at Wright's hotel Burton brothers, stop at Wright's hotel (according to one of the Burtons' testi-mony), light a cigar, talk to the Burtons on the way and not complain of any pain in his head. All the distress he exhibited, his head. All the distress he exhibited, according to the witnesses, was the putting of his hand to his head a couple of times. The witnesses examined last night were Daniel A. McCuaig of the Kingston road and Albert Huff of 61 Berkeley street. George Burton was recalled by the coroner. The jurymen engaged in the case are nearly all close cross examiners. Among their number is Ald. Sheppard and the gentleman from St. Thomas' ward seems to deeple enjoy the interest of the mystery. Both McCuaig and Huff were in Gibson's billiard-room when the scuffle took place on Monday night. McCuaig deposed that he heard Gibson tell Warden that he "he would not get out of the house until he settled for the drinks and the pool table." He saw the men scuffle for about a minute and a half. A juryman having suggested that Gibson might have struck Warden with one of the billiard balls, witness stated that he did not see any of the balls which were in the racks or on the tables touched.

Witness continued: "Just after the souffle began Warden made a pass at Gibson, and missing him he fell forward. He did not reach the floor because he grabbed Gibson around the legs. Gibson had some trouble in freeing himself from Warden's grasp. The combatants were separated by Mrs. Gibson, the mother of the prisoner. Warden had no severe icipity that I could see. He admitted that on June 28 he drew up what Mr. Massie's counsel called Mr. Murphy's brief. The question then arose as to how he had managed to convey the information to the outside world. Mr. Murphy objected to any such question being asked, on the ground that the commission had not the power to enquire into such subjects and that if the prisoner had broken the prison regulations it was the fault of the prison authorities. His objections were overruled and it came out that McCarthy had given his brief to Guard Robinson for delivery outside the the prison. He gave evidence chowing that with all the warden's precautions the prison regulations are constantly being evaded by the prisoners. The witness says While the family were from index Thursday afternoon last the residence of A. J. Rattray, No. 20 Gwynne street, North Toronto, was broken into and val-uables consisting of jewelry, plate, cloth-ing, etc., stolen. The robbery took place at 2.30, and within a very short distance of the police station. that with all the warden's precautions the prison regulations are constantly being evaded by the prisoners. The witness says that if a prisoner is on good terms with his tellow prisoners he can get almost anything he desires, money, paper, ink, tobacco or anything else. Notes and letters were produced from McCarthy to the warden betokening the greatest familiarity. After Mr. Idington was through with the witness the commission adjourned till this morning. Albion and Middlesex lodges, Sons of England, gave twenty members of their society who served in the suppression of the rebellion a grand reception at St. Andrew's hall Thursday night.
