TUESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 25, 1888.

Rapid Transit of Cattle.

Attention has been attracted by the favorable opinion expressed by Dr. Fream, of England, with regard to the prospects of the cattle business in Alberta and elsewhere in the Northwest. Dr. Fream is agricultural editor of The London Morning Post and professor of the College of Agriculture, Downton, Salisbury, England. He recently went across the continent by the Canadian Pacific Railway, and on the way out he stayed off at Calgary, and drove over a considerable part of Alberta. This is not his first visit, either, for he has been in the Northwest before. He notes that this season over 4000 cattle will be sent to England from Alberta, though the trade began only last year. The Argentine Republic, in South America, is Canada's most formidable competitor in the cheap production of meat. But that country is "across the line" and so far away that it would not be possible to ship live cattle thence to England; whereas to ship cattle from Alberta is quite a feasible enterprise. He finds that a full-grown animal can be sent from Calgary to Liverpool for $30; and at this rate he thinks the trade can be made to pay. Dr. Fream is a good authority, and he is clear that there is an opening for a large trade between Alberta and England.

Apropos of Dr. Fream's favorable opinion, there appear to be prospects of new improvements in railway facilities for the cattle trade. A despatch from Cheyenne, Wyoming, says the first train of Idaho beef cattle to make the run through to the seaboard was loaded Sept. 20 at Soda Springs. The cattle were loaded in the new improved palace cars, having a compartment for each animal. The stock is fed and watered in transit. A time schedule has been figured which will deliver the stock in New York in less than one hundred and twenty hours.

If this can be done from Idaho, it can from Alberta too, we suppose. We fancy Mr. Van Horne would not like to admit that his competitors south of the border can do what he can't. Taking these two things together—the highly favorable opinion of an eminent English authority of the Calgary district as a cattle country, and important improvements impending in the transit of cattle by rail, we are surely warranted in thinking that the prospects of the trade look well. Next year it will probably go far beyond this year or anything ever known before.

The Liberals of Montreal East are said to be reviving the Riel cry. This The Toronto Empire denounces as outrageous, but immediately afterwards tries to transplant the disgraceful revival to Ontario constituencies—Cardwell and Frontenac. The Empire is often very stupid in its eagerness to do party service. It is would take the higher ground of the disastrous effect on the Dominion's unification of the revival of a cry that sets race against race and creed against creed, without making so evident an attempt to do party rather than national work, it would carry weight. Such agitations as the Riel question to be hushed, not spread.

Canada For Herself.

The Globe is doing the best it can by degrees to wriggle out of its unpleasant position of recent time. So ardent had become its advocacy of American connections and American ways for Canada, that it was in danger of being looked upon as more an American than a Canadian journal. But the retaliation crisis came; The Globe took the alarm in time, and was saved. The Reform organ, however, brushed danger, to say the least. Certain remarks by The London Spectator are made the text for some fresh loyal utterances by The Globe. Loyal to Canada, we mean, for that is the kind of loyalty which this country of our own stands most in need of these days. The Spectator believes that Canada will dispose of her own destinies, also that there is no ground to suppose that the contemplates being absorbed in the Republic. Admitting what a Great Power the States and Canada together would be, The Spectator still says Canadians have begun to think they have an alternative, namely, to become a nation, with a history of their own. We say "ditto" to you, and thank you for the compliment. You are like the apt pupil whom the Yankee master had at his guessing-school once—you have "guessed it the first time." Canadians are just exactly that way inclined; you may be sure. Such healthy expressions as these, from so influential a journal as The Spectator, will do good at this time.

It rather puts us in good humor with The Globe to be able to quote from it such sound Canadianism as the following:

"Without any but friendly feeling to Brother Jonathan, our people do not at all 'cotton' to the idea of Annexation as an alternative to British connection. This is not merely because men bred under Responsible Government value its advantages highly, nor because the evils of the American system are now pretty well apprehended in this country. Sentiments—the prime force in politics—impels Canadians to refuse to take an allegiance that might possibly place them in arms against Great Britain without their consent. A most commendable pride impels them to make a plucky effort to work out an independent destiny for their country. The forces against Annexation rather than those for British connection have kept the Dominion so long under the Crown, and those forces will not be weakened, but, in our opinion, greatly strengthened, by Independence. Surely the majority of Ardent British Connectionists would favor Independence as an alternative to Annexation. And Young Canadians would be vastly more pleased with Independence than now with British Connection, which they cheerfully sustain because they see the wisdom of biding the time for Independence and realizing the aid of British Connectionists against Annexationists, the common enemy."

So sentiment is to be recognized as the prime force in politics. We should think so, indeed, unless you are prepared to bid defiance to history by the lump, for it is sentiment mainly which makes and unmakes empires; in which great revolutions have their birth, and in which they find the force which drives them through. Loyalty to Canada is a worthy sentiment for her people to indulge in; and none the less so because it is also true, as Carlyle might have said—that it is quite compatible with the interests of the weaving shop and the cattle pen as well as with the worthy appearance of Canadians when they come to present themselves in the Mystic Temple and Hall of Doom.

One hint we get from The Spectator is above all things timely. It comes in specially good just now, when wrongheads and blatherskites enough to weary us are becoming impatient and urgent to an alarming degree to have us wipe out this Canada of ours altogether as a separate country and make it part and parcel of the United States. Says The Spectator: "At present they are a colony, but if a change should appear inevitable—if England should prove effete—Canada would certainly try to become a nation[illegible] the present they can omit."

Yes, for the present[illegible]en wait. It would be a fool's policy, sur[illegible]rush upon a decision which, once made, would be irrevocable. For the act of national suicide, once done, cannot be undone. As our London friend suggests to us: We can wait.

In the discussion of the British North America Act now going on in many of our exchanges, the reading of the act is ignored and all stress is laid on what the opposite party's leaders have done in the past. "Mr. Blake, Mr. Laflamme or Mr. Fournier did so and so, then why are you making all the fuss because Sir John and Sir Sparrow do the same?" This is too often the popular style of argument in political discussions. Suppose we try to govern ourselves by our constitution and according to principles of right and wrong, rather than by what other men have done in the past.

Why Not There?

An interesting sight at the octocentenary festival of the University of Bologna was the procession of more than a hundred and fifty foreign delegates from all the universities of the world—an exhibition of academic costumes never seen together before. In many cases no change has taken place during the last four hundred years—as in the stately dress worn by the Spanish doctors of Salamanca and Santiago de Compostella. This consists of a long black cassock, with tight sleeves, ornamented with large cuffs of point lace; over the shoulders and chest a cape and hood are worn, made of flame-colored silk, and on the head a tall silk biretta of the same color. Scarcely less imposing in appearance were the French doctors of the Sorbonne, with ample gowns of black silk faced with orange, and high black birettas, giving them the look of officials of the Holy Inquisition. The only academic dress that could at all compete with the finest of the Continental robes are those worn by Toronto and Cobourg masters of arts and graduates in medicine. The combination of red fustian and the fringe of Canadian rabbit fur is magnificent. We are not aware that the university sent a delegate to Bologna. It might at least have forwarded a wooden man draped in the gorgeous vestments of our M. A.'s and marked, "strictly for procession purposes."

The young Kaiser has ordered that the bills of fare used at the Berlin court be in future printed in the national language instead of in French. Compare that sign of the times with this other: Mr. Matheson, Master-in-Chancery at Ottawa, has ordered that the announcements of sales of land in connection with the Chancery Court in Ottawa district, which have always been printed in our national language, be in future also printed in French.

To Put the "Bulls" Out of the Manitoba Wheat Fields.

The Winnipeg Sun says that the damage to the wheat crops up there is nothing like as serious as the reports have made out and calls the dissemination of the reports a system of "bulling" that has been manipulated by large grain dealers. We cannot agree with our contemporary that the "bulls" have been let loose in the Manitoba wheat fields and that the reports have merely been the result of a "bulling" effort. Some of the estimates of the damage were perhaps exaggerated, but they came from settlers who were inclined to take a disheartened view of the frosting. With the first reports the grain men had little or nothing to do. They may have profited by the excitement but can hardly be charged with creating it. Reports continue to come from various parts of the province from farmers who place their losses at even more than the figures of the grain men.

There is in fact so much contradictory evidence with reference to this wheat business that The Sun's suggestion, that some system be adopted by the Government by which reliable reports may be procured each year as to the condition of the crops, will recommend itself. This work might be undertaken by the Department of Agriculture, or it might be managed by the Winnipeg Grain Exchange as a body. Prompt and accurate estimates of the crops would prevent "bulling," attempts as which cannot but be injurious to the interests of the province.

Mr. Blakeley Hall is an obedient interviewer. He is sent to Canada to find a feeling favorable to annexation, and he has been so far successful, having interviewed Sir Richard Cartwright at Kingston and Mr. Goldwin Smith in Toronto. He interviewed Sir John Macdonald, it is true, and heard the other side of the story, but his interviews have been favorable two out of three.

Public feeling in Canada is apparently well understood by a portion at least of the English press. The London Spectator has rightly guessed us when it gives as a probable reason why Canada is not attracted by the prospect of a union with the United States, that she looks to an alternative that points to a nationality with a history of its own.

Sam Jones has abandoned the religious platform for a time while he mounts the political and points people to another way—the way to the polling booth. The cross he is now telling about is the cross that, multiplied a sufficient number of times, will send him to the Senate as a representative of the Atlanta district.

The Chinese Government have refused to ratify their proposed treaty with the United States as amended, and returned it. The United States Government seems to have a great deal of trouble with its treaty business.

Has 'Ras heard of the sale of a 100 acre farm near Whitby the other day for $9000? Hadn't he and Sir Richard better look into the ruin and decay of Canadian agricultural interests!

Poor Joe Chamberlain! a bright career cut off. The Montreal Post refers to him as "that fellow Chamberlain."

Is it true that life insurance companies are refusing risks on commercial unionists?

Canada's Destiny Not One of Provinces.

From The Shareholder, Montreal.

Now, however, an awakening to the fact that our interests are alike and common has taken place. Now every man feels that the destiny of the country is not one of provinces but one of the people as a whole.

Give every man thine ear but few thy voice. Listen to what others have to say and weigh it well, and when you want a good suit of clothes go direct to the Army and Navy and you will find you are money in pocket. The Army and Navy stores, 138 Yonge-st., and 128 King-st. east.

To Develop Our Copper Mines.

From The Port Arthur Sentinel.

It is intended to ask Parliament for a bounty on every ton of copper metal produced, assaying fifty per cent. copper or less, an increased bounty for higher grade metals, and still more for bar copper, with a subsidy per mile for any railway built to connect copper mines with smelters or tide water.

To Our Visitors.

No doubt our visitors will wish to bring home something in the line of dry goods, fancy goods or millinery, as a present to the friends at home. It is well to visit the busy stores which have made a name for selling cheap. The Waterloo House, 278 Yonge-street, is a great shopping place for our citizens. Before you go home visit this store and you will be amazed at the bargains McKendry & Co. offer.

Anna Dickinson's Stumping Tour.

RICHMOND, Ind., Sept. 24.—Last night for the first time in four years Anna Dickinson addressed a public meeting. It was the first of ten speeches she is to deliver in Indiana for the Republicans. She ignored the tariff, and talked to the workingmen about the benefits they had received and were likely to receive from the Republican party. Men and women were turned away from the hall by hundreds.

Dust from the Diamond.

The Toronto-Buffalo game to have been played here to-morrow has been forfeited by the Bisons.

Why didn't the Torontos play this kind of ball a few weeks ago?

The Torontos play at London on Thursday and Friday.

The annual meeting of the Toronto Baseball Association will be held on Oct. 9.

The Hams' defeat yesterday put them in fourth place.

Toronto and Hamilton will play here again on Saturday, which will wind up the season.

Kellogg, who played at short yesterday for Hamilton, recently played in the Eastern League. He was not a success yesterday.

A billiard match was played last night at the Albert Hall billiard rooms between Catchers Decker and Visner, 300 points for $25 a side. The Hamilton catcher won by 50 points.

Syracuse sent a motion to Secretary White recently requesting the deposit of $1,000 returned at the end of the season, but Toronto voted against it, as the home club has sufficient money in the treasury without using the deposit money.

At a meeting of the Toronto Baseball Association held last night it was decided to reserve all the players. Manager Cushman will again assume the management next season. The fine of $100 imposed on Kearns at Rochester will not be returned to that player.

Pete Wood has received an invitation from Spaulding to join his Australian combination.

At Whitby on Saturday Markham defeated the home team 15 to 9. Batteries—Milne and Pepper; Lang and Trow.

Editor World: The Maroons of this city hereby challenge the Atlantics of Toronto or any other amateur team to play a game of ball at Hamilton, on Saturday, Oct. 6. Address Mark Wilson, care of H. O. Sonntag, 10 King-street west.

IRELAND CLEAN BOWLED.

All Philadelphia Just Manages to Pull Off the Game.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—The excitement, which has been increasing hourly since the game began, culminated when the Philadelphians took the field at noon on Saturday and stood ready to get rid of the formidable team of Irish amateurs for a total of less than 127 runs. The wicket would have been perfect but that it was somewhat worn; still, there was far more life in the pitch than on either of the previous days, and this, it was felt, was bound to tell in favor of the visitors.

As seventeen minutes past twelve, Captain Newhall having set his field, Captain Cronin sent out Hynes and Maxwell to oppose the deliveries of Palmer and Lowry, who were at first entrusted with the bowling. Hynes took the first over from Palmer, which proved a maiden, and then Lowry handled the ball from the far wicket. It was not long before Maxwell was taken behind the wicket by Morgan off Palmer, 7—1—4. Prospects now looked bright for the home team. Dunn took the vacant wicket. The newcomer began well by driving Palmer to the ropes for 4. With the second ball of the next over, however, came a grand disaster for the Irishmen, and a rare piece of good fortune for the Philadelphians, for Lowry caught and bowled the crack bat Hynes, who returned a puzzling delivery rather tamely, 11—2—3. Gillman curved in and both bat-man played with extreme caution. Several maidens followed. Immediately afterward in attempting a short run Gillman lost his wicket, the ball being smartly fielded and handed by Newhall and Palmer, 30—3—4. J. P. Fitzgerald went in. Dunn at once cut Palmer smartly for 3. Fatterson then took the bat from Palmer. The bowling and fielding were now excellent, but the hits that did get away produced more runs than at any previous period of the match, as the ground was rapidly drying. A storm of applause broke out all over the ground when Brown clean bowled E. Fitzgerald, 44—4—0.

Captain Cronin now sallied forth to do battle for Ireland, and the opinion was pretty general that on his wicket to a great extent depended the result of the match. After some hard hitting Brown clean bowled Dunn, who had made 42 out of the total score, the game now standing 57—5—42. An interval was then called for luncheon.

With the downfall of Dunn's wicket things again began to look very bright for the Philadelphians. Half the Irish wickets had fallen and at least two of the best bats were gone, and yet half the required runs had not been obtained.

Under cover of a hearty cheer the Philadelphians again took the field at half-past two. E. Fitzgerald joined Cronin in the defence and Brown and Patterson resumed the bowling. Both batsmen were cautious, but runs came none too slowly until 80 was marked on the telegraph and Philadelphian faces began to lengthen ominously. Then Eiting caught Cronin off Patterson grandly low down at cover point. 87—6—5.

Meldon went in, and now the home team once more seemed to have a shade the best of the match, as Meldon and E. Fitzgerald were the only two of the side left at all likely to run into double figures. A sneak ball soon disposed of Fitzgerald, the best man left, as Morgan at the wicket caught him off Lowry.

The excitement now became intense when Patterson found his way to Johnston's wicket, and the crowd yelled itself hoarse. Synnott came in, and immediately "pottered" at a ball, which got away through his legs for 2.

"Twenty to tie, twenty-one to win, with two wickets to fall." That is how the game stood when, sad to relate, Brewster missed Meldon badly. He at once got one from Newhall for 2. Then Melden hit Brown for 3. Immediately after, amid a scene of the wildest excitement, Brockie at point caught Synnott off Brown. The catch was a splendid one, and just about as hot as catches are made. 113—9—2. The last man, Tobin, went in, and a bye for 2 was run. Meldon now scored a single, then no runs came for a time—the batsmen were too cautious, the bowling too good and the fielding too close. Then the end came, for Brown found his way to Tobin's wicket and All Philadelphia had won the closest international match ever played by seven runs.

THE LORILLARD SALE.

Twenty-two Head Bring $29,260—Mr. G. Forbes the Only Canadian Purchaser.

Col. S. D. Bruce sold the Lorillard horses in training in the paddock of the Brooklyn Jockey Club before the racing on Saturday. It was an excellent sale, twenty-two head bringing a total of $29,260. The highest priced was the two-year-old Erie, which Trainer Huggins bought for Mr. Cassatt. Billy Lakeland was a competitor up to the last bid, but realizing that he could not outbid the Master of Chesterbrook, he retired. The two-year-old, Sobrante (Mortemer-Spinaway), knocked down to D. J. McCarthy, was after the sale transferred to Mr. W. Easton, who is said to have paid Mr. McCarthy $1000 for the transfer. The sales are as follows:

Gossip of the Turf.

The Brooklyn Jockey Club meeting will be continued to-day with the Willow Stakes, for 2-year-old fillies, and the Fulton Stakes for 3-year-olds.

Drake Carter was sent half-a-mile at Woodbine Park yesterday morning in 1:04. It was the first fast work the old horse has had since he has been put in training. He will face the starter at the O. J. C. meeting on Oct. 6 and if he is at all "as himself" he will have little difficulty in winning.

One of the flyers seen occasionally on the driveways leading to and from the city is Mr. J. K. Macdonald's grey mare, who can show a 40 gait. She is a ideal roadster for a gentle man's driving, and it is a fast one that can straighten her neck.

FULLJAMES KILLED IN THE RING.

The Well Known Toronto Pug Terribly Punished and Left to Die.

GRAND FORKS, Dak., Sept. 24.—A prize fight was arranged Friday night between George Fulljames of Winnipeg and an unknown, who was backed by local sports. At 2 o'clock Saturday morning a large crowd went to a barn, in which a ring had been prepared, to witness the battle. The combatants shook hands and the fight began. Almost instantly the unknown struck Fulljames a blow on the temple, which knocked him down. He soon recovered, and, staggering to his feet, started to continue the fight. The men went at each other viciously, and Fulljames received several hard blows. The fight was brutal throughout, and the unknown finally landed a blow over Fulljames' heart that laid him flat. He was left unattended on the barn floor until 7 o'clock Saturday morning. At that time a doctor called and had him removed, but it was too late to save his life. He gradually grew worse and died during the afternoon. The police commenced an investigation and soon arrested a man who gave his name as Barrett. He declared his innocence and said he knew nothing of the fight. Sunday afternoon some one broke the lock on the station-house door and allowed Barrett and several others to escape. Diligent search has failed to find Barrett, and it is generally believed that he is the man who killed Fulljames. A coroner's inquest was held on Saturday night, but there was great difficulty in securing witnesses.

George Fulljames was born in London, Eng., and was about 35 years of age. He lived in Toronto the greater portion of his life and at one time was the best light-weight in America. Fifteen years ago he came to the front as a prize fighter and a trainer of fighting dogs. The last fight he participated in in Toronto was with Harry Gilmore, near Slattery's hotel, cor. of Bloor and Dundas-streets three years ago, and this was put a stop to by the police.

A short time ago Fulljames started a boxing academy at Winnipeg, and he announced that he was prepared to fight any light-weight in the country. The above is the unexpected result. His body has been sent to Winnipeg for interment.

Toronto Bicycle Club Notes.

Last Saturday the members of the T. B. C. arranged a run of 100 miles and it was expected a large number would have turned out to take part, but at the hour of starting only five were on hand, viz.: Messrs. Webster, Brimer, Whatmough, Lavender and Chaffey. They found the road in good condition, and Whitby was made in two hours and twenty minutes. It was the intention to go straight through to Trenton, but when Port Hope was reached all the riders had dropped out but Webster and Brimer, so they concluded to return to the city. They arrived home at 7[illegible] Saturday night, having made [illegible] The trip would have been done [illegible] time but for Mr. Webster, who unfortunately broke his wheel, which caused considerable delay at Whitby.

A club run is called for to-night to the Half Way House, and as the roads thus far are in first class condition it is expected there will be a good turnout.

An Unfounded Story.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The story that the Princess of Wales and daughters narrowly escaped being run over by a train near Gmunden is unfounded.

The Queen of Roumania, better known as "Carmen Sylva," is she sits amidst a group of happy children, resting to them one of her stories, is one of the most attractive pictures of modern times, but the greatest of all situations, especially to the nobby young men of Toronto and vicinity, is the "tailoring department" at the Yonge-street Army & Navy store.

Beware of entrance to a quarrel, but being in bear it that the offender may beware of thee. Some of our would-be rivals are very jealous of us and would like to quarrel, but we laugh up our sleeves at them and still continue to hold the inside track in the ready-made clothing trade, as the Army & Navy stores always do. See our boys' suits at $1.00, $1.50, $1.75 and $2.00. The Army & Navy stores, 138 Yonge-street and 128 King-street east.

His, Wills, and Pills.

An old mixture of words, but the sufferer from constipation, indigestion, impure blood, biliousness, and other such ills, can be cured by pills, wills, without taking the horrid, old-fashioned pills. These are superseded in our day by those wonder-working, yet tiny, little globules, known as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. No griping, no drastic purging; do not cause costiveness afterwards, as the old-style pills do. One little granule a dose. 14
