Nova Scotla and New Brunsvick such a law does exist, and is always enforced. That those who have had pructical experience as members of the Boards of Menagement of various charitable institutions in the cities and towas in ontario are convinced that there is a need of such a law in Outario, from the great difficulty they have often found in enforcing rules of their organization that those who could should contribute towards the maintenance of their relatives.

That if the Legislature did enact such a law the cest of maintenance of their relatives.

That if the Legislature did enact such a law the cost of maintenance of their relatives.

That if the Legislature did enact would be materially lessened and chat the poor would resolve greater justice, for then poverty would not so often be treated as a orime.

The second petition saked for a Government inquiry into the question of the material condition of women the companying the petition was a typewritten attement exting forth, among other things, that we had a typewritten attements exting forth, among other things, that we had a typewritten attements were in Ontarlo at least 900 women. Who this oble to work and carr a living, were mentally and morally defective, and therefore unable to protect themselves from ovil. Numerous justances were bitsed of women of weak intellect who had become mothers, and whose offspring suffered from some form or other of degeneracy. It was asked that if, after inquiry, the statogenets made should be substaniated, the Government should make some provision for the care of such degenerates. nt should make some provi-cars of such degenerates.

paired health. At the time it was eleit that Mr. Blevins would not again actively resume the duties of his office. The causes of death were gout and heart trouble. Two daughters survive him.

Mr. Blevins was born near Armagh, Ireland, in 1820, and he was educated at Armagh Academy, a school that is widely known throughout Ireland for the many classic scholars who have graduated there. In 1848 he accepted an invitation from his brother Henry, than a practising barrister, to come to Canada, and in Octoer Henry, than a practising barrister, to come to Canada, and in Octoer Henry, than a practising barrister, to come to Canada, and in Octoer of that year, he, too, commenced the study of law in Toronto with Dr. McMichael. Six years later he was called to the har, afterwards forming a partnership with Richard Dempey, County Crown Attorney. On the death, who was a sister of Governor Kidd, of the jail. Subsequently Mr. Blevins and John O'Connor, afterwards Dostmaster-General, organized a firm. In politics Mr. Blevins was a Conservative—in religion un adherent of the Church: of England, having worshipped for many years at All Sainter charch. He was a member of the Masonic body.

Mr. Blevirs first identified himself with mindipal politics in 1874, when he was elected an alderman for St. Dattick Ward, being re-elected consecutively until 1884, when he succeeded Robert Roddy, on the death of that gentleman, to the position of city clerk.

The Board of Control, at a meeting Monray afterrocon, concurring in a
