

would complicate matters considerably and make the chart difficult to follow. As it stands, one can obtain a general idea as to what the insects belonging to each order are doing. It is a noteworthy fact that almost one half of the species of insects, which we have in our midst, are engaged in useful activities.

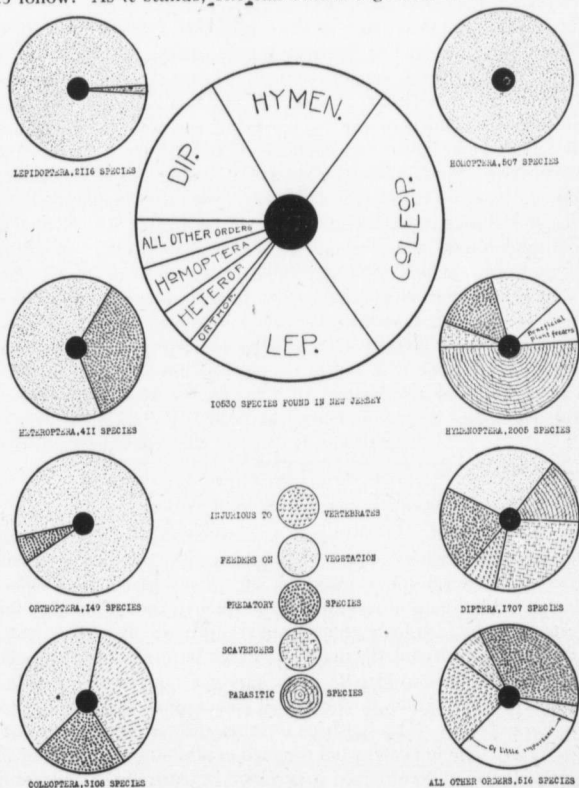

Fig. 9.

Mailed July 12th, 1916.