A Superfluous Industry.

Mr. GRAY inspecting the Government establishment for the manufacture of Canadian soldiers, at Kingston, popularly called the "Military College," which he finds to be a most useless and expensive affair, which the country could very well dispense with.

His Country's Benefactor.

Mr. D. A. JONES, of Beeton, Ont., certainly deserves some handsome recognition from the Government for his unexampled efforts as an emigration agent. We learn from the papers that this gentleman, entirely at his own private expense, has just brought to Canada several colonies of the most industrious natives of Cyprus and Palestine, with the intention of settling and supplying work for them in the northern part of this county. In view of the tremendous sums of money spent by the Government in endeavoring to bring out emigrants, and the comparatively trivial returns secured for it, surely the enterprise of Mr. JONES is most praiseworthy. Of course the colonies alluded to are made up of mere honey-bees, but in point of industry they will compare most favorably with any other class of "farm-laborers" secured by the Government, and will assuredly add vastly more to the "hum of prosperity" than any human importations would do.
