

trade flows, the simplest assumptions may have come the closest to measuring impacts for GDP and welfare.

Conclusions

After ten and fifteen years respectively, we are now confidently able to say that the Canada-U.S. FTA and NAFTA did indeed have a significant and positive impact on the Canadian economy. They contributed to Canadian productivity growth which will allow Canadian-based companies to compete effectively in international markets and improved the standard of living for Canadians.